TO THE
DESCENDANTS OF JOHN LEE,
OF

[FROM FIRST EDITION.]

The compiler of this Genealogy will in few words explain why she has undertaken a work of this kind, belonging, as it seems to her, more to a person accustomed to literary labor than to one who had never written a line for the press.

The collection of material for a Genealogy was begun about 1850, by her father, CHARLES LEE, of Norwich, Conn., for his own pleasure, and continued at intervals until his death, in 1865. Three or four years since, Rev. SAMUEL LEE, of New Ipswich, N. H., was very desirous that she who had been her father's helper, should take it up, adding what could be gathered, to bring it down to the present time. The beloved father's love for the work, and her love and veneration for him, were the only reasons for consenting to finish and publish it.

You now have the little book; excuse the errors which you will no doubt find, and judge it leniently. She will feel amply rewarded for all the trouble and labor it has cost her, if some one better qualified is incited by its perusal to make a more interesting and perfect history of the FARMINGTON LEES.

To all those who have promptly and kindly aided her by letter, or otherwise, grateful thanks are here returned.

Particular mention should be made of the following, all of whom have given very full records of the branches to which they belong : the assistance and encouragement of the first two have been of great service to her all through the preparation of this work.

SARAH MARSH LEE.

NORWICH, CONN., Feb., 1878.

NOTE.—In presenting this volume to the descendants of JOHN LEE of Farmington, Conn., it should be here stated that we are largely indebted to Miss Sarah Marsh Lee of Norwich, compiler of “JOHN LEE AND HIS DESCENDANTS,” 1878, for the foundation of this work, quoting largely from her book. Genealogical researches pursued by her have been continued still farther, the result of which is here presented to the reader.

Sarah M. Lee.

INTRODUCTION.

It is natural for any person of common intelligence to desire to know something of his origin, and, if never given to research for that information himself, he would be expected to listen with some degree of interest to anyone who had made that research for him. An honorable ancestry is a source of honorable pride.

The individual who embarks in genealogical literature with the expectation of amassing a fortune or earning his bread, even, is very sure to meet with disappointment, to remain poor, and to suffer from hunger if he has no other resource upon which to rely.

The number who have a natural taste for genealogy is comparatively small. It is a subject which requires cultivation in order to awaken much interest in all its details. No one should think of embarking upon such an enterprise without considering the subject thoroughly, and being possessed of at least two or three very essential requisites, among which may be named a large stock of patience, a reasonable amount of leisure, and a cash capital sufficient to defray the expense of postage, stationery, express charges, and the various little et ceteras which will present themselves from time to time, long before his work is ready for the press, and which, in the aggregate, will amount to a formidable sum, for a small capitalist, before he can realize the first dollar from his enterprise.

STARTING POINT.

Having, after mature deliberation, decided to embark in the hazardous enterprise, the first thing to do is, to decide upon a starting point, which, in this country, is usually established at the advent of the first immigrant of the family to the American shores, and then, if possible, from that point, to trace backwards through the "dark ages," to establish a connection with nobility or royalty, for indomitable ambition reigns supreme in the human breast, to boast of

in his veins. While it may be a laudable ambition to trace an undisputed connection with a family of noble traits, it so happens that blue blood tells for little, in connection with American institutions, except for the satisfaction of the individual, and if, perchance, he glories in being able to trace his lineage back to Julius Cæsar or to King Solomon, few will be found to do him homage, to rejoice with him, or to envy him. Farther, the royal, or blue-blood, will have become so diluted in a few generations of isolation, that a chemical process would be required to analyze it, and even then, the discoveries would prove but homœopathic or microscopic. Thus, the first generation of royalty or nobility is supposed to be of full blood, the second generation would be a half blood, the third generation a quarter blood, the fourth generation an eighth blood, the fifth generation but a $\frac{1}{16}$ and so on till the tenth generation is possessed of but $\frac{1}{512}$ part of the original, and through the veins of the fifteenth generation would course but $\frac{1}{16384}$ part of the ancestral blood, and thence onward becoming ever more diluted by a diminishing geometrical series till it becomes an infinitesimal quantity.

FAMILY CONNECTIONS ABROAD.

The result of attempts which some genealogists have made to trace their lineage back five or six generations in the old country is seldom reliable. It is certainly creditable to be able to trace to an honorable ancestry, and such attempts should, by no means, be discouraged. They may be able to establish, what, to them, appears satisfactory, whether fact or fiction. It may furnish an object for the mind to rest upon, in fancied certainty of their blue blood, for "Where ignorance is bliss, 'twere folly to be wise."

IMPOSITIONS

are quite too frequent. Professional genealogists are often applied to in the old country, who, knowing the ambition of their American applicants, are able to furnish them with a flattering record of their ancestry, or of a family bearing the same name, without regard to a positive connection. The applicants being able neither to disprove or to verify, accept it as genuine, which may or may not be in fact, and the professional usually pockets a fee, more or less liberal, in proportion to the flattering nature of the records furnished. These remarks, however, should not apply to a class of foreign genealogists of established reputation.

It is not probable that one genealogist in twenty succeeds in establishing a correct line of ancestry of five generations on the other side of the Atlantic, whose ancestors migrated to this country 150 to 200 years ago, which would be accepted as evidence in a court of justice ; hence, a formidable obstacle to obtaining a "vast fortune in the Bank of England awaiting American heirs."

Says a reliable writer : "It is stated among the librarians and officers of Historical Institutions in the Eastern States, that not ten per cent. of inquiries succeed in establishing the connection between their ancestors and the family abroad. Other authorities say two per cent. Most of their ancestors fled from religious persecution, and instead of promulgating their derivation or history, rather suppressed all knowledge of it, so that their descendants have no reliable traditions."

Certain it is, that we have been unable as yet to establish any positive connection of our ancestor with any family abroad.

FORMIDABLE OBSTACLES.

Having established a starting point—say of a half dozen generations in the American past—the first thing to be done is to examine all the old public and family records which can be found, few of which are strictly reliable, often so obscured by the ravages of time as with difficulty to be traced, and often-times, not one-half of which are legible. The traditions and information to be gathered from the living are very unreliable and records are often conflicting. After two or three generations the descendants begin to scatter, and succeeding generations grow up knowing little or nothing of their kindred, who still linger around the old homestead, or are scattered in other parts of the country, till at last they are entirely lost sight of to each other.

Such has been the case in our own family, till different branches have been lost to view for more than a century, and have been discovered, and their identity traced, only by laborious research.

The descendants of several families of our ancestor are supposed still to exist, the parents of whom "moved west" more than a century ago, leaving not a trace behind.

Among the formidable obstacles to be encountered by the genealogist are the indifference and suspicion of his own kindred. He obtains the address of some kinsman, who he believes would feel some interest in his family history, and addresses to him a letter of inquiry. Scores of letters never meet the least attention—are never heard from, although known to have been received, as the return card would insure their return were it otherwise. Others remain weeks and months without attention, holding the genealogist in suspense, not knowing whether he may expect to receive their records or not; in the meantime holding pages and numbers open at a great inconvenience and delay—for every individual must have a proper number in rotation—till, despairing of receiving the records inquired for, the pages and numbers are filled up. Instances have occurred in which within one day afterwards, the records have been received, and in order to give them their proper place among the generations, required the re-arranging and re-writing of many pages, and re-numbering of 500 to 1000 numbers, involving in some cases two or three days' extra labor, all of which might have been obviated by punctuality of the correspondent. In other cases the respondents to letters indicate a suspicion of some speculation at their expense, although not asked to contribute one cent, and scores of letters are returned "unclaimed."

A few families have kept no records, and are unable to furnish any information, except from an unreliable memory—though we are happy to state that such cases are rare—while others, to their credit be it said, are able to furnish full, intelligible and unmistakable records.

"WHAT GOOD DOES IT DO, to rake up all these old records?" says one. "What good does it do to erect a monument to the memory of your friends?" we respond. To die and be forgotten by all your friends is a thought repugnant to the heart of anyone possessed of human instincts. A history of the family is to the family, what a history of the State is to the State, and, if properly written, should prove a piece of valuable family literature.

"What do I care for old dead ancestors," said another. Such people are not to be envied. It may be reasonably assumed that posterity will care nothing for them.

MISS SARAH M. LEE'S WORK.

In 1878 was published JOHN LEE AND HIS DESCENDANTS, by Miss Sarah Marsh Lee of Norwich, commenced by her father, Deacon Charles Lee, some years previous. His decease in 1865, seemed, at first, to terminate all efforts in that direction. His daughter, who had been his efficient helper, was at length encouraged to persevere and complete the work—a work creditable alike, to both father and daughter—and, although it comprised the names of nearly 1100 of the descendants of John Lee, it, by no means included them all, and, although this volume contains more than four times as many names, it in no way diminishes the credit to which she is entitled. She collected what appeared attainable at that time, and opened the way which her successors have followed, and we have copied freely from her work.

LEE GATHERING OF 1884.

In 1882, it was conceived by Mr. William Wallace Lee of Meriden, that by utilizing her work as a basis, it would be possible to call together a goodly number of the kindred in a general family gathering, which, in 1884, as is well known, resulted in a success far beyond the most sanguine expectation of himself or friends, the proceedings of which were published by him, in a tasteful little volume, entitled, "LEE FAMILY GATHERING." At this meeting was formed the "Lee Association," with himself as secretary, and eventually as treasurer, although there were no funds to take charge of. That office was complimentary only.

A NEW VOLUME.

His correspondence with the few on the subject of this meeting extended from one family to another, as new discoveries were made, and continued several years, till it became voluminous, and in this manner a large amount of genealogical material was collected, which, though entirely disconnected, and by no means complete, was still valuable. Many family traditions, facts and names, were thus rescued from oblivion, from elder generations, which have since passed away, and which, with nothing to call them out, would have been lost to posterity.

This mass of correspondence had, in 1892, accumulated to what, as estimated by him, amounted to nearly 1,000 letters, and from this fact he conceived the idea of a new, revised and enlarged edition of the family genealogy.

CALLING ASSISTANCE.

Finding it impossible to devote the necessary time himself to compile this mass of miscellaneous material, in 1892 he solicited the assistance of the writer to take hold of the work. It appeared like a formidable task to produce anything tangible from such a mass of heterogeneous manuscript, but at the end of three months' close application the chaotic mass had been assorted, a portion consigned to the waste basket, other portions compiled for use, awaiting the connecting links, and still other portions filed away for future reference. During that time a fair progress had been made in compiling the most numerous branch of the family and a commencement made on the others, and an extensive correspondence had been opened with kindred in more than twenty States, besides in the Canadas and England.

WORK SUSPENDED.

At length it became necessary to suspend the work for want of material for continuous progress in order of the generations. Three years intervened, during which time a continuous correspondence was maintained, both by the secretary and the writer, and during the travels of the latter, calls were made at more than fifty homes of the kindred in New Hampshire, Connecticut, Massachusetts, Vermont, New York, Ohio, Michigan, Illinois, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Iowa, Nebraska, Kansas, Missouri, Tennessee, Florida, California and Ontario, taking many family records personally.

RESEARCHES.

During this interval of three years, researches were continued and old records examined in the Probate office and State archives at Hartford, and public records at Farmington, Plainville, Southington, Meriden, Wallingford, New Haven, Willimantic, Coventry, Kent, Salisbury, Windsor and Lebanon, in Connecticut; Northampton, Hadley and Pittsfield, Massachusetts; Ludlow, Vermont, and various works in the rooms of the New England Genealogical Society at Boston, besides the examination of more than twenty-five years' publication of the Connecticut Courant of the last century, including the period of the Revolutionary war, and numerous other works to be found in the Atheneum in Hartford. To the above list may be added many ancient church records. More than thirty-five old cemeteries were visited in Connecticut, Massachusetts, Vermont, New York and Ontario, to obtain dates and other items, some of which were prolific of results, others nearly or quite barren. No pains or labor have been avoided where there was a prospect of beneficial result. The secretary and the writer have expended both time and means in their researches, with no expectation of remuneration for time spent, except the satisfaction of rescuing from oblivion the many items of family history. Great credit is especially due to William Wallace Lee for his untiring perseverance in search of lost families and successful results.

AID OBTAINED—MISS SARAH F. LEE.

In the meantime, in order to crowd the work as fast as practical, aid had been solicited from Miss Sarah Fiske Lee of New Leonard Lee.

Ipswich, N. H., a daughter of Rev. Samuel Lee, the instigator of the first genealogy of the family, and the discoverer of the original headstone of John Lee, which had, for many years, been lost sight of—a lady of education and ability. The task was cheerfully undertaken, and to her belongs the credit of compiling the two branches of John and Stephen, besides material aid rendered in various ways. No opportunity has been left unimproved by her to make researches in the New England Genealogical Society's library in Boston, many discoveries in which have proved exceedingly valuable. But she will tell her own story.

INTEREST IN GENEALOGY.

The organization of the various orders of Sons and Daughters of the Revolution, Colonial Dames, and other kindred orders, has awakened a certain degree of interest in genealogy, but in a large majority of cases, when their line has been traced far enough to establish the eligibility of the individuals to those orders, their interest ceases. This ought not to be. An interest once awakened should be pursued, for the history of our family should be a history of the greatest interest. Several minor branches of our family still remain undiscovered—have been lost sight of more than a century, and we do not like to abandon the hope that they may yet be found and added to our numbers. Notwithstanding the apparent indifference on the subject, much is being done. The number of works on American genealogy in the Connecticut libraries is about 600, and the New England Genealogical Society and New York libraries contain about 900.

MILITARY SERVICE.

A special effort has been made to collect the names of those who served in the various wars of the country. In the early Indian wars, few names of the participants were preserved except of the officers. As every able-bodied man was presumed to be a soldier in colonial days, it is not probable that the earlier generations of our family escaped being called into service during the various Indian wars and alarms, and it is to be regretted that not a single name has been found, except that of our maternal ancestor, Stephen Hart. Thorough researches have been made in the State archives for a list of those who served in the French and Indian war of 1756—63, and the result of our discovery is recorded in these pages.

Revolutionary records have also been thoroughly examined, and although many names have been found, we are confident that the list does not include all who are entitled to credit. Some were credited in other States than Connecticut.

Before the war of 1812—15, the Lees had become widely scattered, and but few names are found on the Connecticut records.

Of those engaged in the late civil war, we have been able to collect names and records from States widely separated, there being a greater number of descendants in other States than in the State of Connecticut, but we are satisfied that our list is quite incomplete—that there are many whose names have not been reported.

It will be seen that a large number bear other names than Lee, but it will be remembered that no less Lee blood courses through their veins from the fact that they are descended through the female side of the family. They are entitled to the same recognition as though bearing the name.

By comparing notes, it will be found that kindred from States widely separated were often engaged in the same battles without knowing it, and in frequent instances were contending against Southern kindred in the Confederate army.

ERRORS.

It would be absurd to assert that a work composed largely of dates and statistics, and collected from so many different sources and individuals, would be void of some errors, notwithstanding the utmost care. The causes are numerous, a few of which may be named.

One prolific source of error in dates, arises from indistinct manuscript furnished by correspondents, and also from their own unconscious errors. Again, different members of the same family often furnish conflicting dates. Transcribing and typographic errors will sometimes unavoidably occur—frequently the year only of births is given. Errors arise from indistinct manuscript in similar names. Thus Hannah for Harriet, William for Willard—double names sometimes reversed by different members of the family—Lucy Jane for Jane Lucy, Ludosky M. instead of Maria L.—sometimes initials only are furnished, as B. R. Lee, J. H. Lee, b. 1836—by others the pet name only is furnished as Freddie, Willie, Sadie, Matie, etc.

Such errors are, by no means, the fault of the compilers. Scores of letters have been written to obtain correction of trivial errors, many of which met with prompt response, others were totally neglected. We would kindly request, however, that any errors which may be discovered, be reported to the compilers or secretary of the association for correction in any future work.

RESPONSIBILITY.

It has been remarked on a previous page, that scores of letters of inquiry had been neglected for months, and others had never been acknowledged. These remarks should not be so construed as to apply to correspondents in general, for the greater number have expressed an interest in the work, and an anxiety to assist, and have rendered efficient aid, for which they are entitled to many thanks. To enumerate them all would require a long list of names and to draw a line of demarkation would be a delicate task. It is safe, however, to say that one-third of the labor of the compilers might have been obviated by the punctuality of those who were delinquent.

It would have afforded us great pleasure to mention something further of individuals—public positions held, military history, or items of family interest, but we were not in possession of the facts, nor could we obtain them, though many letters were written expressly for that purpose. Hence, it is obvious that the compilers cannot hold themselves responsible for the omission.

EXPENSES.

By those who gave the subject a thought, it was not expected that the compilers, who had already expended several hundred dollars, and a large amount of time, with so little prospect of remuneration, would advance the necessary funds for publication of a work in which others should also take a deep interest.

When the subject was named at the re-union at Farmington, in Aug., 1896, the response from those present was liberal—both by donation and advance subscriptions, for a work which could not appear for several months. Other subscriptions followed later from various parts of the country. The names of both donors and advance subscribers will be found on another page. All who have nobly aided will please accept the thanks of the Publishing Committee, and although, at this writing, the funds in hand are not quite sufficient to defray the entire expense of publishing and incidentals attendant, we have faith in the liberality of the Lee descendants, and that they will see the committee safely through.

A few there were who stood aloof and said, "we will see what the work is before we subscribe for it;" others said, "we will take a copy when it comes out."

To those we would say, that if all had acted on the same principle the work never would have come out.

The genealogy of several families, who could be named, has been ready for publication for several years awaiting funds. In contrast with those the liberality of the Lees is to be commended.

CONCLUSION.

That the work of compiling this genealogy has been no easy task will be readily understood, when it is stated that there were three prominent families in the State by the same name during the last century, besides as many in Massachusetts which, in the course of two or three generations, became mingled together, requiring no little investigation to discriminate between them, and, to add to the labor, many in the different families bore precisely the same Christian names. Several families have been omitted who believed themselves connected with ours, but were unable to establish the connection.

The result of our labor is included in this volume. Unwearied pains have been taken to be correct in all statements and details. If we have failed it has not been for want of industry—"to err is human." The compilers have had no advantages of membership of historical or genealogical societies, or opportunity for advice or suggestions from experienced genealogists, but were novices in the work. Such as it is, it is now before you, and we beg our readers to judge leniently, and bear in mind that it has been a "labor of love, rather than one of profit," and that we expect to acquire neither fame nor fortune by it, but, instead, to incur many harsh criticisms, whether deserved or undeserved. To those who are disposed to criticise harshly, we have only to say: "You try it."

We felt conscious that such a work must be accomplished during the present generation, if accomplished at all, for elder generations were fast passing away and opportunities were fast receding. It is a source of regret that the work of the writer could not have fallen into more able hands, but if we have succeeded in rescuing from oblivion the history of our family, or have contributed to awaken an interest on the subject, our object has been accomplished.

During the preparation of the work, the writer, although a resident of Kenosha, Wis., spent more than a year and a half in the State of Connecticut for convenience of access to State archives at Hartford, and other public records throughout the State, and also for personal conference with the secretary and others interested.

TO THE
JOHN AND STEPHEN.

WHEN PLANS were being formed for publishing a second edition of JOHN LEE AND HIS DESCENDANTS, I was asked to take charge of the John branch. I assented readily, glad to aid a project, specially dear to me. Later, as no one seemed ready to arrange the Stephen branch, it was suggested that I should also take charge of that. In this work I have had the efficient aid of Mrs. Jeannette Lee Coe of Winsted, Conn., who has furnished the record of her grandfather's family. I desire to acknowledge my obligation to Mr. Leonard Lee for his help in both obtaining and noting records which otherwise would not have been accessible to me. The clearness and legibility of his records left nothing to be desired.

As the work has been done by two parties widely separated, readers will please pardon a few slight differences in the minor details of arrangement.

These years of labor have been an offering of love to the memory of my venerated father, one of the first in our whole family to make genealogical researches and to arouse the interest of others—to my young brother, whose enthusiasm would have made him an efficient helper, had he not been called to join the army of those who have gone before—and to the beloved "Cousin Sarah," who, with patient labor and generous bounty, gave us that first Lee Book which has made possible this larger edition.

Pardon the many errors which are on these pages, of necessity, from the fallible humanity of the writer, but I hope you will say of it as Dr. Samuel Johnson said of a dictionary. "The worst is better than none, and the best cannot be expected to be quite true."

Jo. Lee,	" 30.	{
Matthew Westwoode,	Æ. 18.	{ In the "Bonaventura," Harmon, Master, for Bar- badoes, 1635.

Tickets were granted out of the Secretary's office of the Island of Barbadoes, for the departure therefrom, beginning in 1679 to the following :

Henry Lee,	{ In the "Unity," for Va., April 1, 1679.
Henry Lee,	{ In the "Martin," for Newfoundland, April 3, 1679.
Richard Lee,	{ In the "Rebecca," for Virginia, July 17, 1679.
Henry Lee,	{ In the "Happy Return," for London. Oct. 25, 1679.

From the city records of Leyden, Holland, among the lists of names, mostly natives of the eastern coast of England, especially Essex County and Colchester, there were Samuel and Bridget Lee, the latter a daughter of Joos Lee.* These came to New England and settled here.

There is no evidence that either the Pilgrims from Leyden, or those who left for St. Christopher's and the Barbadoes were in any way related to our ancestor, John Lee. But is it not probable that of the emigrants to these islands, many found their way to New England, where they could enjoy religious liberty, and that from these men have come some of the families of the name of Lee in other parts of Connecticut, and in Massachusetts, Vermont and New Jersey? It is historical, that many of the emigrants to the West India Islands finally settled in New England.

LEES OF ENGLISH HISTORY.

The name first appears as Lega, De Le, De la Lee, and of various spelling, gradually taking the present form, Lee. In the "Doomsday Book" Lega and Lee are often used to denote the same family. The name has also sometimes assumed still other forms, as Lea, Leigh, Lay and Ley. The word "Lee" signifies a "pasture, meadow or grass land." Previous to the use of surnames, persons were designated by the place of their residence, or some epithet descriptive of their personal character or occupation. Thus, John, residing near the lee, eventually became "John Lee," Samuel, very pale or white, became "Samuel White," and William the carpenter, became "William Carpenter," etc.

The family of Lee is one of the most ancient in English history. In the eleventh century the name of Launcelot Lee is associated with William the Conqueror, and is of Norman origin, and in the division of estates by that chieftain, a fine estate in Essex county was bestowed upon him.

Lionel Lee "raised a company of gentlemen cavaliers," at the head of which he accompanied Richard Cœur de Leon, in the third crusade, A. D. 1192. For gallant conduct at the siege of Acre, he was made "Earl of Litchfield," and another estate was given to the family, which was later called "Ditchly." The armor worn by the crusaders is still preserved in the Horse Armory, Tower of London. They were devoted followers of the Stuarts, and distinguished for loyalty to the crown, and, for their acts of valor, received various honors and distinctions. Two of the name have been Knights of the Garter, and their banners, surmounted by the "Lee Arms," may be seen in St. George's Chapel, Windsor.

For the satisfaction of those who may be interested in tracing the origin of the family to nobility and antiquity, we make a few extracts from the "Baronetage of England," published in the middle of the last century. They will be found to be more curious than useful at the present day.

HUGH DE LA LEE was witness to a grant of land and an abbey of Bilderwas in 1155.

REGINALD DE LA LEE was a witness to deeds of estates, and sons John de la Lee and Phillip de la Lee "held lands of £20 or more, per annum in Shropshire and were summoned to attend the king with Horse and Arms, to go beyond sea."

THOMAS DE LA LEE, Lord of Stanton, with his wife Petronilla, grant to Thomas, their son and heir, and to the heirs of his body, an estate in Stanton, and also grant lands to his brother, Stephen de la Lee. The seal to these deeds is described "a Fess chequy, between 10 Billets," circumscribed "Sig. Thomas du Lee," with a crest.

REGINALD DE LA LEE was heir to an estate on which he was living in 1320. He had issue, John de la Lee, Knight, called Lord of Roden, 1321, who was one of the Knights of Shropshire in the parliament held at York. To him Thomas de la Lee and his wife granted all their lands, "seminatam cum terra seminata" (i. e. saved and land not saved.)

HUMPHREY DE LA LEE of Langley Esquire, "served all offices suiting his degree, as Justice of Peace and Lieutenant of the county, and was advanced to the dignity of Baronet, 3 May, 1620."

"SIR RICHARD LEE of Langley, Baronet, was one of the Knights of the Shire in the parliament that met in 1640, and adhering faithfully to King Charles the First, in the time of his trouble, did not a little contribute to his assistance when his Majesty set up his standard. He afterwards marched with the king to Oxford and sat among those members who met there in 1643, whereby he became a great sufferer in his estate. He took to wife Elizabeth, daughter of Sir Edward Allin, Knight and Alderman of London."

SIR HENRY LEE, of "Quarenden Bucks" was created "Earl of Litchfield" May 22, 1611. He was succeeded by his son, SIR EDWARD HENRY LEE in 1674, and he by his son, SIR GEORGE HENRY LEE, Feb. 13, 1716.

JOHN DE LEE, KNIGHT OF ESSEX, was sent to Parliament A. D., 1307.

THOMAS, son of Johis Lee, bequeaths to his eldest son the patrimonial estate near "Pebenhul," an ancient village in Shropshire, now extinct. Johis, or Johannes Lee is mentioned frequently in parliamentary writs of Edward II.

Further similar extracts might be made but these are deemed sufficient.

An old volume of English history, which gives the derivation of names, mentions that the family of "JOHN LEE OF LEE HALL," Parish of Wibenbury, County of Chester, sometimes spelled the name Lee, Lea, Leigh and De la Lee.

Various descriptions of the "Lee Arms" have been found, varying but little, however, from each other, but the following appear the most reliable: "Gules a fess Chequy; an Aziere between seven billets in chief, and six in point Argent." Another, "a shield, bend sinister, battled and embattled." Crest, "Trunk of a tree, vert, with a squirrel, gules, sitting thereon, browsing on a nut branch, proper." Another, "A closed visor, surmounted by a squirrel, holding a nut, with the motto, "Non incautus futuri."

It may require an expert in "Heraldry" to explain the "arms," while the "crest" is less difficult of comprehension. Whether comprehended or not, their significance to the American Lees is not important.

It is not positively understood that any one American family at the present time has an exclusive claim to the use of the "Lee Arms." If records could be correctly traced, there is little doubt but it would be found that the Lees of English origin emanated from the same source, viz.: from the followers of William the Conqueror in 1066.

RICHARD LEE, third son of Launcelot Lee of Cotton, emigrated to America about the year 1641. This Richard is the ancestor of the Virginia Lees.

The tradition and circumstances of our ancestor John, and Richard, both coming from Essex county, England, one emigrating in 1634, the other in 1641, are the only reasons that can now be assumed that they were both of the same origin.

A correspondent of one of our family in London, Rev. Frederic George Lee, a distinguished clergyman of the Church of England, has interested himself in our efforts to obtain something authentic as to the birthplace of our ancestor, and has kindly furnished us with many interesting facts as to the family name in England. He has in his possession (1877) upon parchment, in Latin, the pedigree of his own family from a very early period down to 1629. This can be found in the London Genealogist, April, 1876, and is copied in this work from one sent by the above named gentleman to Mr. William H. Lee of New York.

Another distinguished genealogist of London, Col. J. L. Chester, says that "in his opinion it will be found that our ancestor is of a Shropshire branch of the name, which dates back to the 14th century in the time of Edward III," and noted in printed records as "of Lee Hall in the parish of Wibenbury, in the County Palatine of Chester, whose ancestors have been there for ages."* The link wanting to connect our ancestor with the English family must be found—if found at all—in the years from 1620 to 1634.

That the lineage of our ancestor, is yet, somewhere a matter of record, is scarcely to be doubted, but where to be found is a question not easily answered.

The uncertainties of such researches are best expressed in the words of Mr. Albert Welles, President of the "American College of Heraldry," in his introduction to the Welles Genealogy, and is as follows :

"Most of the emigrants fled from religious persecution, and instead of promulgating their derivation or history, rather suppressed all knowledge of it, so that their descendants had no direct traditions. On this account it became necessary to give the descendants, separately, of each of the original emigrants to this country, with a general account of the family abroad, as far as it can be learned from history, without trusting too much to tradition, which, however, is often the only source of information on these matters."

LEES OF NEW ENGLAND AND OTHER STATES.

AMONG the early immigrants to the Colonies were several families by the name of Lee, Lea and Leigh—the same name but spelled in different ways. No connection, as far as learned, has been established among these families, except from inference, as coming from the same locality in England.

I. JOHN LEE, who came from Essex Co. 1634, settled first in 1634 Cambridge, came to Hartford 1635, and to Farmington 1641.

II. JOHN LEIGH (Lee)—“A younger son of an ancient and honorable family of Burton St., London,” described as a “person of good abilities in the bloom of life”—came to Mass. and settled at Agawam, or Ipswich, in Essex Co. His name is first found on the Colonial records, April 1, 1634. He died 1671. “His two sons, John and Joseph, by agreement, began in 1677 to spell their name Lee.” 1634 A branch of this family settled at Barre, Mass. Gideon Lee, a former mayor of New York, was a member of this family.

The genealogy of the family, containing records of 1,224 descendants, compiled by Dr. William Lee, M. D., of Washington, D. C. (deceased Feb. 1893), was published in 1888.

III. THOMAS LEE, left England with his family, consisting of his wife, several daughters and one son, Thomas, in 1641. “He died on the passage, of small-pox, and was buried at sea.” The family settled at Saybrook, Conn., and from the son Thomas are descended the Lees of 1641 Saybrook, Lyme, Guilford and other towns. In 1851 a pamphlet of twenty-one pages, with an appendix, was published, compiled from information furnished by Hon. Martin Lee of Granville, N. Y., purporting to be a history of the family. In his preliminary remarks the compiler says, "In the year 1641, Thomas Lee, the ancestor of all the Lees in this country, sailed for the United States." The descendants of this numerous and respectable family ignore such pretensions at the present day.

IV. RICHARD LEE, of Virginia, 1641. See further notes.

V. THOMAS LEE, came in 1642 and settled at Ipswich, Mass.
1642 Records furnish little information.

VI. HENRY LEE, came in 1650—said to have come from Cheshire, Eng.—was in Boston in 1655. "Henry Lee is admitted an inhabitant (of Boston) on his good behavior, and Capt. Davenport is engaged to save the town any 1650 expense that may arise from his family." Eventually settled at Manchester, Mass., where he died, 1675. Inventory, £144; debts, £28.

VII. WALTER LEE, appears on the town records at Westfield, Mass. as early as 1660. The name continues on record 1654 for more than a century at Westfield and Northampton, and then disappears. He is supposed to have been the Walter Lee who was made a "Freeman" at Hartford, May, 1654.

VIII. WILLIAM LEE, New York. In the History of Westchester Co., New York, it is found that he came from Nottingham, Eng., in 1675, and his descendants settled 1675 on Long Island and New Jersey. They claim descent from the Lees of Lee Magna, Kent, Eng.

IX. SAMUEL LEE, of Swansea, Mass., came from Warwickshire, Eng. in 1692, built a house near Lees River.—Further 1692 notice of the family may be found in the New England Historical and Genealogical Register.

- X. THOMAS LEE, of Boston. The name appears about 1700. This is a well known family of Boston, Cambridge and other towns, prominent with other families with whom its members have intermarried. The christian name of the first American ancestor seems not to have been positively settled. A bronze statue of Thomas Lee may be seen in Boston, but its significance has not been ascertained.
- 1700
- XI. THOMAS AND BENJAMIN LEE, of Boston, 1765, and Lancaster, Mass, 1797. No particulars of this family.
- 1765
- XII. WILLIAM LEE, of Norwalk, Conn. This is a highly respected family whose ancestor is believed to have been William, but at what time he came to America is unknown. The descendants appear to have made their way up the western part of the State, and were prevalent in Ridgfield and Redding in the early part of the last century, some of them purchasing land of the Indians. Still later they appeared in Salisbury. Joseph Lee and wife Mary, and Joseph Jr. and wife Mary, were admitted to the church of Rev. Jonathan Lee by letter from Redding, in Dec. 1747.

VIRGINIA LEES.

It has often been asserted that the Lees of Farmington and those of Virginia were of the same English origin, and there has long been a standing tradition to that effect.

That both families came from Essex county, England, is clear, and their common origin is by no means impossible, but there is no satisfactory documentary evidence to show a family connection.

In 1640-1, Richard Lee, son of Sir Robert Lee, came out to Virginia as secretary to the colonial governor, Lord Fairfax, and finally settled at York, on James river in 1647. He was among the pioneers of the Lees of Virginia, and, as he wrote in his will, "late of Stafford-Langton, county of Essex, England, and of the Lee family Cotton near "Bridgeworth," the seat of Launcelot Lee. There were different motives in the emigrants leaving for Virginia and those settling in New England.

The New England pilgrims were Puritans and Non-Conformists, who came for the purpose of seeking religious liberty and freedom. The Virginia Lees were churchmen and adherents of the Stuarts, and Richard Lee came out under a commission from the crown.

Of the pilgrims leaving home, a great majority were males and but few past the meridian of life. They had endured suffering and persecution in the wars of Charles I. and the severity of Laud, Archbishop of Canterbury, in his hatred of heretics. Essex county, and especially Colchester, was the stronghold of dissenters from the days of Wickliffe and particularly so in the sixteenth century.

In a publication called "King and Commonwealth" (London 1875) there is given much that is new from the archives of recently discovered evidence. Especially does it show that in the wars of that eventful period the three religious bodies, viz.: Churchmen, Presbyterians and Independents, were the distinctive divisions in the thirty years conflict and not the Royalists as against those in rebellion to the Crown.

In the above memoranda and considerations as here set forth, it is designed only to put into this work something suggestive, as the result of researches made, hoping that it may be put into better shape by abler hands, and perhaps stimulate others interested in the name, to endeavor to find evidence of their origin, and so to trace the connection, if any, of the different settlers of that name and period.

In all genealogical researches, extending back to the time of the settlement of New England, there is much that can be only conjecture. The parish records of England in the wars were imperfect and often destroyed by contending parties, and in the thirty years' war a whole generation passed away and another, nursed in strife and warfare, assumed their places. Very few of the original settlers were possessed of much or any property, and had but little to expect of those whom they left behind; so that of those who became eminent in this country, like Washington, Adams or Jefferson, very little is known of their English parentage or history.

The Lees, from the time of the Norman conquest have been distinguished in their various callings; and we have perhaps as satisfactory an account of our English ancestors as almost any family emigrating as early as 1634.

When John Lee left his home for the new world, the city of London was a city of renown and commerce, with a population of but 500,000. Manchester numbered but 5,000, and other cities of England, now renowned for manufactures and commerce, maintained but a proportionate population. Few of the streets of London were paved and those only with small cobble stones. Coaches had but just come into use as common vehicles of conveyance.

Education, sufficient to read and write, was the exception with the common people, and not the rule. In judging of the men of those days, we are to take into account the condition of society at that time, the manners and customs of the people, and the want of advantages common to all at that time. Then we can better appreciate the character of our forefathers.

There are other families, bearing the name, equally entitled to recognition, but it is the design of this work to publish the records of the Farmington Lees only. So numerous are the descendants of the different families, that there are thousands who are unable to trace their origin to any family, and the percentage of those who take an interest in the subject is quite insignificant.

The many Irish Lees whom the writer has consulted, almost uniformly claim to be of English origin, whose ancestors migrated to Ireland at some previous date, and many respectable families still residing there make the same claim.

It is not assumed that the above statements are all positively correct, but only in accordance with such information as we have been able to obtain.

The name is also quite common in the Canadas, New Brunswick and other British Provinces, mostly descended from New England Loyalists, who emigrated from the United States during, or soon after the Revolutionary war. Among these might be named the descendants of Dr. Ebenezer Lee of our own Farmington family, who migrated to Canada West in the latter part of the last century. The Canadian subjects of his descendants are noted for loyalty to their own government, many of them holding honorable positions of trust.

WILLIAM WESTWOOD.

OUR INTEREST IN WILLIAM WESTWOOD arises from the fact of his guardianship over our common ancestor, JOHN LEE, from the time of his immigration to this country, at the age of 13, to his majority, at the age of 21, and the supposed relationship existing between them.

William Westwood was born in Essex county, in the eastern part of England, in 1606. Nothing is known of his early life till his appearance at Cambridge, then called Newtown, about 1632. He is supposed to have come with a company from Braintree in Essex county, England, as the records of Cambridge show.

In various records he is named as "Yeoman," a title next to nobility. He was possessed of a landed estate, and either left it to come to America, or inherited it afterwards, as appears by his appointment of an agent, with power of attorney, to take charge of it.

Our information is gleaned entirely from the meager public records, many of which are in such a defaced and mutilated condition as to require skill and patience to decipher.

Savage, in his Genealogical Notes, says, "He may have been there as early as 1632," and the records of Cambridge, though very imperfect, seem to confirm it. In an "agreement concerning the division of common pales," (fences for a common field,) William Westwoode was "directed to build 30 rods," and "Stephen Hart, to build 8 rods," and others to build their shares. Dated "29th of" (torn off, but previous to Dec. 24, 1633.) "The 5th August, 1633. Lots granted for cow yards: William Westwoode 1 acre, Stephen Hart $\frac{1}{2}$ acre," and others. "Common pales about the neck of land," William Westwoode was to "build 30, to be made with sufficient posts and rails, and not with crotches." Of the "planting field," Westwood had 27 acres. "The inhabitants, most of them, are very rich, and well stored with cattle of all sortes," (1633.) He appears to have been appointed to serve on various committees and to have been one of the leading citizens.

"The 3d of Feb. 1634, at a general meeting of the whole Towne, it was agreed upon by a jointe consent that 7 men should be chosen to do the whole business of the Towne, and so continue until the first Monday in November next, and until new be chosen in their room. So there was elected John Hayes, Mr. Lyman Bradstreet, William Westwoode" and others.

This date, "Feb. 3d, 1634," might at first seem to preclude the idea that he sailed, with his family, from Ipswich in England, April 10, 1634, but we have official evidence of both facts. Savage remarks that, "As being a man of good estate, he had made the exploration here before bringing out his family, which, in the early days of the colony, was judicious."

Having been a prominent citizen of the colony, a temporary absence to bring out his family would not necessarily preclude his being chosen in his absence.

EMIGRANTS FROM ENGLAND.

Captains of vessels engaged in transporting passengers were obliged to furnish bonds for faithful performance of duty, and upon return of the vessel, with proper evidence of such duty performed, were entitled to a return of their bonds.

In the list of names accompanying this petition is found William Westwoode, Bridgett, his wife, John Lea, Grace Newell. In a "note of names and ages of all the Passengers w^{ch} tooke shipping in the Francis of Ipswich, Ma^r John Cuttinge, bound for Newe England, last of April, 1634" were "forty-four adults, who tooke the oath of Allegiance and Supremacy at his Maj^{ties} Customs house in Ipswich, before us, his Maj^{ties} Officers, according to the order of the Lords, and others of his Maj^{ties} most Hon^{ble} Privy Council. Dated 12 Nov^{br} 1634."

In this list are the names of William Westwoode, age 28, and Bridgett Westwoode, aged 32.

In a list of those who did not take the oath, being under age (forty minors), were the names of John Lee, aged 13 and Grace Newell, aged 13—wards of Westwoode. The date of their arrival has never been ascertained.

His duties as one of the "seven townsmen" appear to have been assumed on his return to the Colony. Extracts from the records of Cambridge: "It is further ordered by joint consent (that) whatsoever the Townsmen shall do in the compas of their time, shall stand as if the whole town did the same for making of new orders or altering of old ones." "Further it is ordered that whatsoever person they shall send for to help in any business, and he shall refuse to come, they shall have power to lay a fine on him and gather it."

Feb. 8, 1635. In a division of ground, Westwoode receives five acres and Stephen Hart two. His residence at that time was at the southwest corner of Holyoke and Winthrop streets. He also owned land which is now occupied as part of Harvard College Grounds, and was forfeited by his removal.

About this time, attention was attracted to the fertile meadows of the Connecticut valley, and parties were organized for settlements. Just at what date Westwood appeared at Hartford, we have no means of knowing, as records are missing, or are imperfect, and dates conflicting.

Two parties came out from Newtown the same season (1635), one in June, the other in October. On the 4th day of March, 1635, he took the "Freeman's oath" at Newtown in the Colony of Massachusetts Bay, and on the 5th of September was a sworn constable of the "Plantation of Connecticut," "till some one was chosen in his place." This was the executive office of the colony, and a position of great importance. On the 3d of March following he was made one of a "commission to govern the people at Connecticut." The first "General Court" of six members was held April 26, 1636, and, as there were no written statutes, this body acted both as a court and legislature, and was clothed with great powers. The people were governed largely by church or Mosaic laws.

In 1637, he was one of the court which declared war against the Pequot Indians, and was one of a special "committee to hasten military preparations." He was a town "selectman" from time to time; in 1638, was one of a "committee to lay out a road on the upland from Hartford to Windsor."

It was supposed the church records would furnish some items of interest concerning him, but, previous to 1685, they are entirely missing, and it is "impossible to determine who were in Hartford previous to the arrival of the Hooker party in October or November, 1635, except William Westwood and John Steele."

"He was a man of note and prominent influence, both in ecclesiastical and civil affairs, with more than ordinary possessions for the day, and honored often with offices of trust,—was deputy for Hartford from 1642 to 1656 inclusive, except 1645, and a frequent juror. In 1653 he was one of a commission of three, to advise about impressing men for the present expedition against the Indians—65 men to be ready, with provisions and ammunition at one days' notice."

He was one of the first proprietors and large land owners of Hartford, standing fourth on the list. It is evident, however, that he invested but a portion of his means there, as his estate in England had not been disposed of at the time of his death. His home lot consisted of three acres, being one of the largest on the town plot, and located on the west side of what is now Front street, on the river bank near the foot of Morgan street—now occupied by business houses, and crossed by a railroad. The lot of Stephen Hart, the subsequent father-in-law of John Lee, joined it on the north.

Most of the settlers were members of the church of which Rev. Thomas Hooker was pastor, and many of these had been attendants of his ministry in Braintree, Eng., and among them, Westwood. Mr. Hooker died in 1649. His grave may be seen in the ancient cemetery, in the rear of the First church on Main street, Hartford. The name of William Westwood may also be found on a public monument in the cemetery as one of the first settlers.

After the death of Mr. Hooker church controversies arose which increased from year to year, with much bitterness, and became so deeply involved with outside matters, that it was difficult to determine the first cause of the dissension. The troubles also extended to the churches at Windsor and Wethersfield. To such an extent were these controversies carried, that sixty members from the three churches, who considered themselves aggrieved, determined to withdraw and found an independent colony beyond the jurisdiction of Connecticut, and the present site of Hadley, Mass., was selected for the town. Among those who withdrew was William Westwood. "At a meeting held at Goodman Ward's house in Hartford, April 18, 1659, William Westwood (and four others) were chosen by the whole company of 59, to go up to the aforesaid Plantation and lay the number of 59 home lots, and to allow 8 acres for each home lot, and have a street 20 rods broad betwixt the two westernmost rows of lots, and to divide the said home lots into quarters by highways."

On the 9th of Nov. 1659, those who remained at Hartford chose the same committee, "to order all public occasions that concern the good of the plantation for the ensuing year."

Thus, after having been one of the pioneers of Hartford, and a resident for 24 years, we find him forsaking his old home, to become a pioneer at Hadley.

A home lot of 15 acres was assigned to him, on the east side of the west street, a few rods from the south end of the row, and may be easily designated at the present time—this lot, besides meadow land.

He at once assumed a prominent position in public affairs,—was frequently chosen Selectman—was given the title of "Master," or "Mr."—a title of distinction, at that time. May 22, 1661, by order of the General Court of Massachusetts Bay, a commission was appointed "for the better government of the people, and suppressing of sins, and y^t Wm. Westwood is hereby authorized to joyne persons in marriage at Hadley."

His family consisted of his wife and one daughter, born at Hartford, 1644, who married Aaron Cook, Jr., May 30, 1661, eight days after the date of her father's commission "to joyne persons in marriage at Hadley." Hence, it requires but a little stretch of the imagination to conceive that he performed the marriage ceremony.

After ten years of active life at Hadley, he died April 8, 1669, aged 63. His wife died May 12, 1676, aged 74. It is probable that they were buried on the knoll in the west part of the Hadley cemetery, as that part contains all the early graves, but several hours' diligent search by the writer in 1890, and again in 1892, failed to discover their graves. Hence, it is assumed that no headstones were erected, or, if erected, have long since disappeared.

As in Hartford, so in Hadley, he was one of the most active supporters of the church, and his religious principles were ever his rule of action.

“The preceding sketch shows the character of the man under whose care our ancestor was placed, and we may infer what John Lee was from the prominent characteristics of his posterity, as we shall see them in these pages, being earnest and efficient supporters of religious institutions. Farther researches may bring to light his early history, his parentage and home, but it is pleasant to know that our ancestor was associated with the true and good men who laid the foundation of one of the most thriving and pleasant towns in Connecticut, and which has sent out to bless the land her portion of distinguished and reliable men in the various departments of life. By patient industry on a farm, he acquired a handsome property for those days; professed the religion of the gospel; presented his children in baptism, and made himself useful in the sphere of life in which God, in His providence, had placed him. His descendants, numerous and widely scattered, have been distinguished for enterprise, industry, liberality and success in business; respect for the laws, and readiness to bear their portion of the burdens of society, civil and religious.”—“John Lee and His Descendants,” by Miss Sarah Marsh Lee.

COOK,

HADLEY, MASS.

SARAH, dau. of William Westwood, and his wife Bridget D., b. at Hartford 1644, m. at Hadley, Mass., May 30, 1661, Aaron Cook, Jun, b. at Windsor, Conn., 1641—son of Maj. Aaron Cook of Northampton, Mass,

(He came from England about 1630 and located at Dorchester, near Boston—about 1635, removed to Windsor, Conn, where he became prominent in local affairs, and was chosen captain of the train band. He removed with the Hadley Co. in 1659, but settled at Northampton—was chosen Selectman and Justice of the Peace, also acquired the title of Major, the highest military rank held by the Colonial militia, at that time. He died in Sept. 1690. His monument may be seen in the eastern part of Northampton cemetery.)

After their marriage the young couple took up their abode at the Westwood homestead at Hadley, on the east side of West street, which they continued to occupy ever after. He became prominent in local affairs—was Selectman 1666-71-74-76-78-80-82-84-90 and 92. In 1674 he is named as Ensign, and as Captain in 1680, and held the latter office thirty-five years—was also Justice of the Peace many years. He inherited valuable lands and other property by will of his father-in-law. His wife inherited lands at Hartford. In the west part of the Hadley cemetery may be seen the tombstones of the couple side by side, containing the following inscriptions :

“In memory of
who died on Sept. 16, 1716, in y^e 76th year of his age.”

SARAH, wife of AARON COOK, ESQ.
Dye^d on March y^e 24, 1730, aged LXXXVI.”

CHILDREN :

- I. SARAH, born Jan. 31, 1662, married — Hovey. Her father wills her “forty shillings in addition to what she has already received, to be paid within three years after my decease.”
- II. AARON, born 1664. Inherited through his mother lands of his grandfather Westwood’s estate at Hartford, and went there to reside, where his descendants may still be found.
- III. JOANNAH, born July 12, 1665. Probably died young as she is not named in her father’s will.
- IV. WESTWOOD, born Mar. 26, 1670. Acquired the title of Lieut; was selectman in 1717. “Here lieth the body of Lieut. Westwood Cook, who departeth this life June 18th, 1744, in y^e 74th year of his age”—Hadley Cemetery

- v. SAMUEL, born Nov. 26, 1672. Was selectman 1720-28-29, Lieut. in the 'Train Band, Exr. of his father's will, and gave his individual bond for £1,000. "Here lies buried the body of Lieut. Samuel Cook, who dyed Sept. 16, 1746."—Hadley Cemetery. It will be observed that he died just 30 years after the death of his father.
- vi. MOSES, born May 5, 1675. Was selectman in 1708-22-24-26-29-31-34-36-38-40-42-44-46-48-50, and also Lieut. in the Train Band.
- vii. ELIZABETH, born Jan. 9, 1677. Not named in her father's will —probably died young.
- viii. BRIDGET, born Mar. 31, 1683, married — Barnard. Her father wills her "£10 in addition to what she has had before, to be paid within three years after my decease."

DEACON STEPHEN HART.

DEACON STEPHEN HART, father of our ancestral mother—Mary Hart Lee—is supposed, from good authority, to have been born at Braintree, Essex Co., Eng., in 1606. Of his English history or parentage, we have no account. It is probable that he came to this country as early as 1630-31, and located first at Braintree, Mass., and subsequently removed to Cambridge, then called Newtowne. It is also probable that one Edmund Hart, who came out at, or about the same time, was a brother of Stephen—both were “made Freemen” on the same day at Cambridge, May 14, 1634.

The name of Stephen Hart is found on record in connection with Wm. Westwood and others, in regard to building a fence to enclose a common field at Cambridge, as early as 1632, and he is also represented as one of the first 54 settlers of the town. His name is also found in the allotment of ground for cow yards in which Westwood is granted one acre and Hart half an acre, and others various amounts. On another occasion Westwood receives 5 acres and Hart 3. For building “Common Pales,” (fence enclosing field) Westwood was to build 30 rods and Hart 8 rods, all of which indicates that Westwood had invested in the common stock, a much greater amount than Hart.

The fertile lands in the Connecticut Valley had begun to attract attention, and in the summer of 1635, he went through the wilderness to Hartford with the Rev. Thomas Hooker's party, including Westwood and wife, John Lee and Grace Newell, inmates of Westwood's family.

It is stated, and apparently on good authority, that he was an attendant on the ministry of Mr. Hooker of Braintree, Eng., and it is a well known fact that he was one of Mr. Hooker's deacons at Cambridge and again at Hartford. The church records at Hartford previous to 1682 are missing, and consequently many interesting items of early church history are lost.

At Hartford, the records show him to have been one of the original proprietors, and a home lot was assigned him on the river bank, on what is now Front street and a little north of the present foot of Morgan street, and may be easily located at the present day. Westwood's lot was about one-half larger and joined it on the south. From the fact of finding their names frequently associated, located on adjoining lots, attending the same church, about the same age, and coming from the same vicinity in England, we may infer that they were particular friends.

It is stated on good authority that Hart joined the expedition against the Pequots under Capt. Mason's command in 1637, and his name may be found in a list of names in the "Memorial History of Hartford County," vol. 1, p. 50.

In 1640 he joined a party of a few others in the settlement of Farmington. Tradition informs us, that he with others were on a hunting excursion on Talcott Mountain and discovered the Tunxis Valley (since known as Farmington) then occupied by the powerful Tunxis tribe of Indians. It was a beautiful valley, and partially cleared, and the prolific crops revealed the fertility of the soil. The country was coveted by the hunters, but there is no evidence that they resorted to any unfair means to wrest it from the Indians. As soon as arrangements could be effected, a purchase was made and the settlement commenced. Outbreaks did, however, often occur and a few years later the house of one of Deacon Hart's sons was attacked in the dead of night, and burned, and every member of the family perished, except one son, a lad of 11 years, who was absent from home.

Dea. Hart is said to have been the leading man of the settlement. The settlers still retained their connection with Hartford, attended church there and perhaps wintered there.

About 1645 the town was incorporated by the name of Farmington. The township was laid out 15 miles square, the proprietors being 84 in number, of whom he was one. When the church was organized Oct. 13, 1652, there were appointed 7 deacons, who were designated as the "7 pillars of the church," of which he was named as the first, and no man was more influential or active, either in the church or settlement than Dea. Hart.

He was one of the first representatives of the town in 1647, an office which he held continuously for 15 sessions (two sessions a year) with but one omission—and again in 1660.

He purchased of the Indians a large tract of land three miles north of Farmington in the present town of Avon and, for 150 years, known as Hart's farm. His house lot was located on the west side of Main street opposite the meeting-house, and was four or five times as large as any other town lot, consisting of 15 acres, extending from what was known as Mill Lane on the north, to the present stone store on the south, and from Main street, west to the river. The south part of this lot he gave to his son John, and the north part to his son Thomas. A part of the lot eventually came into the possession of John Lee and became his homestead, and may be easily located at the present time as the site of the Misses Porter's noted school for girls.

In 1653 Dea. Hart was appointed by the General Court as one of a Commission to aid the constable in impressing men into the service for an expedition against the Indians. At this time John Lee was 33 years of age and it would be a subject of interest to learn if he joined the expedition, but unfortunately the names were not preserved.

Dea. Hart was first married in England, and several of his children were born there. His wife died, when he married Margaret, widow of Arthur Smith. Dates are wanting. His son Stephen died Aug. 19, 1689, as may be seen on a rough headstone a few yards east of the monument of John Lee, on which is the following inscription :

"S. H. Dee'sd Æ 55. 19: 9: 1689."

"Stephen Hart deceased Sept. 19, 1689." Probate records confirm this. Deacon Hart died in March between the 16th and 31, 1683, aged 77. His will is dated March 16, in which he says "being weak in body, etc," and his inventory is presented in court the 31st. After mentioning what he had given to his sons John, Stephen and Thomas, he gives to his grandson Thomas Porter, and son-in-law John Cole, his plow land and meadow swamp, "their agreement to my beloved wife being fulfilled."

"Item. I give to my sons Stephen and Thomas, and my daughters Sarah Porter and Mary Lee, my swamp lot in the Great Swamp, and all my uplands, to be divided equally between them.

Item. I give to my grand child Dorothy Porter, £10.

Item. I give to my grand child John Lee, £3.

Item. I give to my grand child John Hart, my eldest son's son, £3

Item. I give to my beloved wife," etc.

We append a copy of his inventory :

The Harts are a numerous family and their genealogy was published in 1875.

DEACON THOMAS JUDD.

AS THERE were many intermarriages between the Lee and Judd families, it seems but proper to devote a few lines to a sketch of the Judd ancestral line.

DEACON THOMAS JUDD crossed the ocean about 1633, and settled at Newtowne (now Cambridge), near Boston, where land was granted him in 1634. In 1636 he removed to Hartford. His home lot may be found on the map of ancient Hartford (1640), adjoining on the south, the Wyllis lot of Charter Oak notoriety.

Here he lived till 1644, when he removed to Farmington, and at once took a prominent place in the community. He was chosen second deacon of the church—Stephen Hart being the first—The seven deacons were styled the "Seven Pillars of the Church." He and several of his sons were among the "eighty-four proprietors" of Farmington. His home lot was on the west side of Main street, the third from the north end of the street. He and his sons also seem to have owned several lots in various parts of the town.

In 1646 he was chosen a representative to the General Court, and served 14 sessions.

In 1679, after thirty-five years' residence at Farmington he removed to Northampton, Mass., and the same year, at the age of 71, married for his second wife, Mrs. Constance Mason, "a childless widow of good estate,"—widow of Capt. Thomas Mason, with whom he lived nine years.

In 1682, at the age of 74 years he was chosen one of the selectmen of the town. He died Nov. 9, 1688.

NOTE TO THE READER.

[FROM FIRST EDITION.]

IN numbering generations, John, the emigrant ancestor, is considered the FIRST generation, his children the SECOND generation, his grand children the THIRD, and so on. Under every generation, except the first and second, are included parents and children; but the number of the generations refers only to the children. The numbers prefixed to the names of children, and repeated in larger figures when the children become parents, are for the purpose of tracing a line of ancestors backward, and a line of descendants forward, and also for reference.

John Lee had four sons who left posterity; each one has been placed at the head of a branch, and his descendants, generation after generation, numbered separately, as being easier of reference than if all were numbered together.

Of Mary, the eldest daughter of John, we are able to give only such records as have been furnished, and which will be found in their proper place.

Tabitha, the youngest child of John, who married a Strong, and her descendants are so fully carried out in the "Strong History," that we have not thought it best to go farther than the FOURTH generation.

ON THE SUPPOSITION that the readers of "JOHN LEE AND HIS DESCENDANTS," by Sarah Marsh Lee, are familiar with her manner of presenting the several generations, and also, from the fact, that we have examined no work which we deemed preferable in general arrangement, we have endeavored to follow her style as closely as practicable. This work, however, being compiled by two individuals, viz: the John and Stephen branches by Sarah Fiske Lee of New Hampshire, and the other branches by the writer, with little opportunity for comparing notes, will naturally differ in style in some trifling particulars, which the reader will easily comprehend.

In mentioning places, when no State is named, they are to be understood as being in Connecticut, except large and well known cities, viz.: New York, Buffalo, New Orleans, etc.

Few abbreviations have been used—b.-born—m.-married—d.-died—dau.-daughter—Æ.-aged—* indicates that the name is carried forward to the succeeding generation for further notice, with a paragraph of corresponding number.

DESCENDANTS OF JOHN LEE,

FARMINGTON, CONN.

1. JOHN LEE, American ancestor of the Farmington family of the same name, was born in Essex county, England, and probably in Colchester, in 1620, between April 10 and August 8. In the official shipping list of passengers sailing from Ipswich, April 10; 1634, he is represented as 13 years of age. When he died August 8, 1690, his age was given as 70 years, consequently his fourteenth year must have been completed previous to August 8 of 1634.

Of his parentage, or the names of his parents, we have no records, but we know that the name was very common in Essex county among families of distinction.

In a record kept by a great-grandson of his, Seth Lee, A. M. (21) a paper, evidently written for posterity, entitled, "SOME ACCOUNT OF THE LEES OF FARMINGTON," taken down about 1766, and continued to 1802, he says :

"Mr. John Lee was sent by his father from Colchester, England, to America, among some of the first settlers, and his father told him he designed to come with his family afterward. However, he never came, and John never heard, ('tis said,) much about him. This John was under age. He lived at Hartford, and when they began to settle Farmington he came here with the Rest, and was one of the eighty-four Proprietors to whom the large Tract of Land called Farmington was granted, as may be seen in the Records of the town, where, in the several Division Lots were layd out to him, the s^d John Lee."

Undisputable evidence of his arrival in this country under the guardianship of William Westwood may be found on another page, (Petition to Lordships, etc.)

After spending one year with his guardian at Cambridge, Mass., he came with him to Hartford in 1635, where he spent his boyhood, perhaps a portion of his time under the tutorship of Samuel Stone, the teacher of the day and assistant minister, who died in 1659. The school house is supposed to have been located a little south of the present post office building, in Hartford.

In 1641, the year following the first coming of the whites to Farmington, he joined their little band, and became one of the first eighty-four proprietors of the township. As he was but just 21 at that time, it is probable that he had inherited property, or funds were furnished him by his guardian to contribute his share to the purchase of this tract of land from the Indians, fifteen miles square. The public records of Farmington, previous to 1666, are missing. One account reports them as burned in February of that year, when the house of John Hart, brother of Mary Hart Lee, was attacked by the Indians and burned, and the whole family perished except one lad, who was absent. This would indicate that John Hart was town clerk. Another account reports some other cause for their destruction, but, be the cause whatever it may have been, we have no access to them.

It is a subject of record in the State archives, that "John Lee was sworn constable at a particular court at Hartford, March 4, 1657," an officer of great importance at that date, being considered as the "right arm of the law," and chief executive officer of the town.

In 1658 he married Mary, daughter of Deacon Stephen Hart, first deacon, and "pillar of the church," (see article, Stephen Hart). It has long been current that she was born about 1635, but this is evidently an error, as her second brother, younger than herself, Stephen, Jr., was born in 1634, as shown by dates on his tombstone. Mary was probably born in 1630-31. She and her husband joined the church at Farmington, July 15, 1660.

His home lot was located on the west side of the main street of Farmington, and may be designated now as the ground occupied by the noted ladies' school of the Misses Porter.

The original town of Farmington belonging to the eighty-four proprietors, was fifteen miles square, including the present towns of Farmington, Southington, Bristol, Burlington, New Britain, Berlin and Kensington, in all of which land was assigned to him in the general division, consisting of many hundred acres.

Remnants of these lands are still owned by his descendants in Southington, Bristol and New Britain, having never been sold out of the family during a period of 250 years.

That portion of his life at Farmington, consisting of forty-nine years, was spent during a period when the whole community was more or less harassed by fear of depredations of the Indians. Seldom did the settlers feel themselves perfectly safe, and as late as 1691, a committee was appointed, of which John Lee, Jun. was one, to designate seven houses, to be fortified against attacks by the Indians.

Our ancestor died Aug. 8, 1690 (old style), and was buried in the old cemetery at Farmington, and his grave was designated by the usual headstone of that day, but which in the course of time disappeared, no one of the present generation being able to account for it. A few years since, however, it was brought to light through the efforts of Rev. Samuel Lee of New Ipswich, N. H.—it having sunken into the soil out of sight. It is a coarse, unhewn slab, 20x29 inches in dimensions, the lettering being rough and jagged as the slab itself.

William H. Lee of New York, a native of New Britain—with a generosity worthy the name he bore—had a beautiful monument erected in its place “executed in Glasgow, Scotland. It is of dark gray Scotch granite, highly polished, standing seventeen feet high, upon a base four feet square. The inscription on the old stone has been carefully reproduced on one side of the monument. The name JOHN LEE in large block letters on the base is surmounted by the die, upon which are the inscriptions, and above which is the main shaft of obelisk proportions.”

"THE JOHN LEE MONUMENT," FARMINGTON, CONN.

After the erection of the monument in 1876, the old headstone was deposited in New Britain with Lee Bros. & Co., merchants, in whose custody it remained till 1895. Deeming it insecure from fire, it was suggested by some of the kindred that it be returned to the cemetery. Accordingly, on August 24, 1895, having been provided with a suitable stone base, it was placed beside the monument, where it now rests.

The vacant space of a few square yards, adjacent to the monument on the north, is presumed to contain the remains of his two sons, John and Thomas, and perhaps of other kindred, but no headstones have been found, though the ground has been thoroughly probed.

"His homestead, after his death," so says Deacon Seth Lee in his manuscript, "was inherited by his son John, (2), who lived there during his life, when it descended to Hezekiah, (13), youngest son of John, (2). Hezekiah then sold the Lee House, about 1750-60, to Elijah Cowles, who now occupies it, (about 1766,) removing with his family to Goshen, Litchfield county, where he died in 1762."

"Mary, his widow, married January 5, 1692, Jedediah Strong, son of Elder John Strong of Northampton, Mass., to which place she removed, taking with her the two younger children. She was the third wife of Jedediah Strong. He was born May 7, 1637. The following account of her death may be found in the records of Northampton :

Jedediah Strong and wife "set out early in the morning to visit their children at Coventry, (Ct.) but when they came against the Falls at South Hadley among the broad smooth stones, the horses feet slipped up, and he fell flat on the off side, and by the fall killed the woman, tho' she was not quite dead then, but had life in her till next day, yet never spoke a word." (October 9, 1710). Died October 10, 1710. It is reasonable to presume that she was buried in the Northampton cemetery, but several hours spent by the writer in the ancient part of the cemetery in 1891, and another thorough search a couple of years later, failed to reveal it. If a headstone was erected it has probably disappeared, as did that of her husband in Farmington.

Her husband went to reside with those children, and died at Coventry, May 22, 1733.

"The question of his nativity being settled, there remain the two following queries, of great interest to us all, and which, if solved, will give new matter to whoever may undertake to complete this imperfect genealogy.

"First, John (1) was a ward of the Westwoods, and lived with them until he removed to Farmington. The circumstances all go to show that his relations were those of consanguinity ; but this can only be called inferential, and not now susceptible of proof.

"Second, Who were his parents and family, and what relation did he bear to those of his name, who emigrated from Essex Co. about the same period of time, and of whom brief mention is made in this work?"—Sarah M. Lee.

These queries are still unsolved.

DESCENDANTS OF JOHN LEE,

ELDEST SON OF

JOHN, OF FARMINGTON.

In the John and Stephen branches the smaller figure at the right hand of a name indicates the generation of the individual.

THIRD GENERATION.

Farmington.

2. JOHN² LEE resided at Farmington, lived in his father's house, where is now Miss Porter's school, and was a man of influence in the Plantation, being annually chosen to offices of honor and trust. "He was street and land surveyor; was one of the committee appointed by the proprietors to treat with the Sachem Marsakepe, and to obtain his signature to a deed, conveying to them the tract of land named Farmington." He married Dec. 27, 1682, Elizabeth, dau. of Thomas Loomis, of Windham, born in 1664. Her mother was Mary, dau. of Dea. Thomas Judd of Farmington. John Lee united with the church Nov. 24, 1686; his wife, Jan 3, 1687. Children :

| 15. | VIII. RUTH, | " Jan. 14, 1703.* " July .. 1703. |

John Lee died April 24, 1723. His will is dated 1722. He commits his soul to God, his body to the dust; nothing doubting that he shall receive the same again, by the mighty power of God at the general resurrection. He gives to his wife Elizabeth, one-third of his property for use while she lives. To Jonathan his son 3 s. only, having given him his share of the property already. To his son Samuel he gives lands. To his daughters Mary Newell, Elizabeth Langdon and Ruth Lee, the sum of £40 in addition to former gifts; and to his daughter Elizabeth Langdon, his great brass kettle, toward her part. To his grandson Nathan Newell, one of his "Carlarshes." Hezekiah, his youngest son, he makes the executor of this, his last will and testament; and to him he bequeaths, to his heirs and assigns forever, the remainder of his estate, real and personal, and at the decease of his wife, all her life interest in his estate. The will was proved in 1723. A silver headed cane was given to his youngest son Hezekiah, who left it to his youngest son Samuel; then it was held in succession by Dea. Charles Lee, and his daughter Sarah Marsh Lee. After her death it was given to the youngest son of the next generation, Henry Carlton Lee, youngest son of James Wright Lee, of Cleveland, Ohio. It has "H. L." engraved upon the head.

Among the items of his inventory were the following :

1 Hat, 10 s—Wearing Clothes £6-5 s, Stockings, 10 s—Shoes 6 s—5 Pillow Beers £1-2 s—1 Streaked feather Bed, Bolster and Pillows, £6—1 Great Bedstead and cord, 6 s—A pair of curtains and Vallance, 19 s—One Trundle Bed and Cord, 3 s—1 Coloured Streaked feather Bed £1-16 s—1 Red Streaked Blankett, 3 s—Wooden Plates and Trenchers, 2 s—4 Pewter Platters, £1-10 s—2 Pewter plates, 14 s and 5 Pewter Plates, 15 s—2 Pewter Basons, 5 s—6 Pewter Porringers, 6 s—A Pewter Tankard, 2 quart cupp, a pint cupp and a two handled cupp, a small cupp, and Pewter bottle, all £4-4 s—A tin pann, a Sauss pann, Tunnell and candlestick, all 2 s-6 d—A cream pott, 1 s—A stone Jugg, 2s-6d—Some more earthern ware at 2 s—A great Brass Kittle, £2-15 s—Tongs and Peel, 10 s—3 Powder horns, 2 s—4 Pounds of Led or Bullitts, 2 s—2 pairs bullitt moulds, 2 s—A gimblett, 6 d—2 new Baggs, 10 s—6 old Baggs, 10 s.

FOURTH GENERATION.

Kensington.

* 9. JONATHAN³, son of John², 2, was a resident of Kensington (Christian Lane), a Deacon of the Congregational Church, and by trade a blacksmith. In 1714 he was chosen "lister" and rate-maker of the parish. In 1742 he was one of the petitioners from the south part of the parish for relief for "poor Kensington." His house was standing in 1872. He married June 4, 1713, Mary Root. He died January 16, 1758, and was buried in Christian Lane Cemetery, beside Rev. Dr. Burnham. His will is dated May 19, 1755, and was presented to Probate Court by John Lee, Executor, March 20, 1758. His wife's will is dated August 31, 1764, her son John, Executor. She gives "to my daughter, Lucee Lee, well beloved, all my estate wheresoever to be found, and to her heirs forever, she to pay to my son John, one hundred and eight pounds (lawful money) worth of my estate, as proved by men under oath; and the like sum and the like pay to my daughters now surviving, and to each of their heirs forever." She commends her soul to God, "through Jesus Christ, religiously," and her body to the dust. She died September 14, 1764. Children:

WILL OF HEZEKIAH LEE, OF HARWINTON, CONN.,
AUGUST 24, 1762.

IN THE NAME OF GOD. AMEN.

The last Will and Testament of HEZEKIAH LEE, of Harwinton, Litchfield County, Colony of Connecticut, in New England.

I, HEZEKIAH LEE, being under indisposition of body, but in sound mind and memory, and sensible of my own mortality, do make this, my last Will and Testament, that is to say :

Imprimis. I do give my soul to God, who gave it, and my body to the earth, to be decently buried by Christian friends, not doubting of the resurrection of it at the last day.

And as touching such worldly estate as God has blessed me with, I dispose of the same in manner following :

First. I do give to my well-beloved wife, Sarah Lee, one-third part of my moveable estate, to be hers and at her disposal forever. I give her also the benefit and improvement of one-third part of my land in Harwinton, with the use also of one-third part of the buildings thereon during her natural life.

Secondly. I give to my son Hezekiah all my lands lying in the township of New Hartford, to be his and his heirs forever. I give him also one-fourth part of my books, my great Bible excepted—my wife being to have one-fourth part in her thirds of the moveables.

Thirdly. Having given already to my daughter Sarah, who is now deceased, all that portion that I designed to give her, which I suppose to have amounted to four hundred pounds, old tenor, I therefore proceed and say : I give to my daughter Mary Williams, thirty pounds in bills of public credit in Connecticut, besides what I have already given her ; also one fourth part of my books, my Bible excepted.

Fourthly, I give to my son Samuel, the remainder of my land in Harwinton, and the buildings also ; and the whole thereof after my wife's decease, to be his and his heirs forever. I give him also my great Bible and all the remaining part of my moveables.

And now having lands in Goshen with buildings thereon, not yet disposed of, my will is that the executors of this, my Will, do sell the same and therewith pay my lawful debts ; and if there be money left of the sale after my debts are paid, my will is, that it be laid out to purchase land in Harwinton, for my son Samuel, so as to make him have one hundred acres in Harwinton, if sufficient to purchase so much : and if there should afterwards be any money left, to be in the hands of the executors to dispose of as they shall think fit.

Having, also, lands in Farmington, not disposed of in this, my Will, I give it into the hands and power of the executors to dispose of as they shall think may be best.

Moreover, I do constitute and appoint my well-beloved wife Sarah, and my son Samuel, executors of this, my last Will and Testament, hereby revoking all and other Wills and Testaments, declaring them null and void, and pronounce this to be my last Will and Testament, made and dated in Harwinton, the fourth day of July, A. D. 1762.

HEZEKIAH LEE, [SEAL.]

Signed, sealed, pronounced and declared to be the last Will and Testament of Hezekiah Lee, in presence of

ANDREW BARTHOLOMEW.

She united with the Congregational Church, at Windham, May 21, 1775. Her mother was Sarah Hart, a great-granddaughter of Stephen, of Farmington. Dr. Lee was a man of attractive social qualities, skillful in his profession, and had an extensive practice. He possessed great muscular strength and agility—it has been said he once lifted a new cart, with nine of the heaviest men of the town in it, by placing himself under the axle—he would hop forty feet at three bounds and throw a stone a good distance with the precision of the ancient slingers. He entered with great zeal into the national struggle for independence; was appointed one of the examining committee on the qualifications of applicants for the "Post of Surgeon" in the army, and was himself in the service as surgeon on the Oliver Cromwell. While in the army he became intimately acquainted with Major General Charles Lee, the English officer, who served under Washington and had his head-quarters for a time at Hartford. His youngest son, Charles, he named for General Lee. He died at Windham, Dec. 7, 1805. Children:

Capt. Lathrop was descended in a direct line from Rev. John Lathrop, pastor of the first Independent Church in England, who came to New England in 1634; was the first minister of the church at Scituate, Mass, and later at Barnstable. The grandmother of Capt. John, was Mercy, daughter of Samuel Baker, of Barnstable, whose mother was Fear Robinson of Leyden. The mother of Capt. Lathrop was Sybil Backus, daughter of Rev. Samuel Whiting, the first minister of the Congregational Church, at Windham, a son of Rev. John Whiting of Hartford. Mrs. Whiting was the daughter of Rev. Wm. Adams of Dedham, Mass.; her mother was Alice, daughter of Deputy Governor William Bradford, son of Governor Bradford of the May Flower; so it can be truly said of him and his descendants that they have a good share of the best Puritan blood in New England.

Windham.

72. DR. SAMUEL ⁵, eldest son of Dr. Samuel Lee⁴, 30, of Windham, was a physician and surgeon, practicing with, and succeeding his father. He was the patentee of the "Genuine Lee's Windham Bilious Pills, or Family Physic," an invention of his father's. He obtained a patent signed by Geo. Washington. This was the first medicine of the kind patented in this country, and to this day is extensively known and appreciated as one of the best compounds in use for bilious affections. Dr. Lee, like his father, was a generous, self-sacrificing man, honored in his profession; securing the lasting good-will and friendship of all his acquaintance. He married March, 1794, Lucy, dau. of Dr. Thomas Gray of Windham. He died Dec. 23, 1814. Windham, Willimantic, Norwich.

79. CHARLES⁵, youngest son of Dr. Samuel⁴, 30, was one of the first to institute genealogical research in our family, and a sketch of the life and character of him, to whom we are so largely indebted for this Memorial, will not be out of place.

"His father died when he was fourteen years of age. After spending a year or two at the 'Westfield Academy' in Massachusetts, residing with his uncle, Dr. Joshua Sumner, he was placed in the store of Col. Tinker at Vernon, a leading business man in the eastern part of the State. He remained there, gaining a thorough knowledge of mercantile life, until he went into business for himself as a merchant in his native town. In 1822 he commenced the manufacture of cotton yarn, in a mill built by himself on the Willimantic River, in what is now, 1878, the large and flourishing borough of Willimantic. He was the pioneer of manufacturing, and the founder of that pleasant village.

"Rev. Dennis Platt, of South Norwalk, in his 'Reminiscences of Deacon Lee,' says: 'When in the summer of 1827, I went to Willimantic, with a commission from the 'Home Missionary Society of Connecticut' to labor in that village, I found Deacon Lee earnestly engaged in his business of manufacturing, and leading all the public improvements then going on. How he managed to superintend his large business, and yet preserve that settled calmness which was his prominent characteristic, was to me a matter of special wonder. When the labors of the day were ended, he threw off all care, and was as genial in his family, and as sociable with his neighbors, and as ready for the evening meeting—in which he always took part—as if he had nothing to trouble him; indeed, so perfect was his self-command, that he could sleep at night, after a day's harassing business, as most men do who have nothing to think of but their daily tasks. He had a sound mind in a sound, healthy body, and was admirably fitted for the position he occupied as leading manufacturer and prominent member of society. At this time he was an active member and also Deacon of the Congregational church at Windham; his services there were much needed and highly appreciated; he had his horses and carriage and could take his family the three-and-a-half miles with little inconvenience; but he saw the wants of the people around him, and felt the necessity of religious ordinances at Willimantic, not only for his own people, but also for those belonging to the other manufactories that had sprung up around him. Without a moment's hesitation, he threw his whole energies into the work, and never faltered or grew discouraged until the thing was accomplished. There was at that time no 'meeting house' in the place; no organized church of any denomination, not even a Sabbath-School, but there were two School-houses open to religious services.

"Arrangements were made for using these on alternate Sabbaths; a congregation was soon gathered, and after a few months a Congregational church was organized, of which Deacon Lee was the first deacon.

"Then it was proposed to build a house of worship. Deacon Lee gave the land, adding a generous subscription, and by his persevering, earnest efforts, the work was accomplished. The result of these two years of labor, and of self-sacrifice, was a church of fifty members, a flourishing Sabbath-School, and a large congregation. Deacon Lee has gone to his rest. If he looks back from the 'blessed shore' to review the history of his labors, he must see that his two years of labor in founding the church at Willimantic were the most productive of his life."

The prostration in the manufacturing business, consequent upon the financial crisis of 1829, led him to abandon the business in which he was engaged at Willimantic, and remove to Norwich in the spring of 1831. He was first, book-keeper for the firm of Gilman & Ripley, Druggists, and later, secretary of the "Chelsea Manufacturing Co.," whose paper works were at Greenville, continuing in that office until about three years before his death, when the corporation ceased to exist. In 1842 the firm of Lee & Osgood, Druggists, was formed, of which he was senior partner.

While in this business they manufactured the famous Windham Pills, of which Dr. Samuel was the inventor. This cut of the label used for the boxes of pills may be of interest.

“As a business man Deacon Lee was upright, straightforward, and honest; very methodical and precise, with a clear head, and most excellent judgment.” An infirmity in his hearing debarred him from taking part in public gatherings, but he was very warmly interested in all that pertained to the welfare of the nation or the general good of society; exercising in his earnest, quiet way, an influence that was felt by all around him. As a friend and neighbor he was warm-hearted and sincere; his genial manners, and unobtrusive kindness of heart, made those his strongest friends who knew him best. As a Christian, he was revered and honored in all the churches with which he was connected.

At an early age he was “hopefully converted to God,” and united with the church in Vernon, commencing at once to labor for his Master, and ceasing not from such labors until he “entered into rest,” his Christian character growing brighter and brighter as he neared the “other shore.” His deafness prevented him from hearing the voices of his Pastor and brethren in the church, but his seat was never vacant in the “house of God,” or in the prayer meeting, except by reason of sickness or absence from home; he was in all respects a worthy descendant of good Deacon Hart, and John Lee.

Deacon Lee married Oct. 28, 1817, Bethia Fitch, dau. of Zenas Howes, born Feb. 3, 1792, died Jan. 17, 1828. He married second, Dec. 15, 1828, Harriet, dau. of Alexander Gordon, Canterbury (Westminster Society), Conn., born Nov. 2, 1802, died Dec. 9, 1883. Deacon Lee died Oct. 25, 1865. Children, all by first marriage:

151. I. SARAH MARSH, born Sept. 28, 1819, d. Feb. 13, 1892.
152. II. EDWARD MATHER, “ Apr. 8, 1821, d. Sept. 18, 1823.
153. III. HENRIETTA LOUISA, “ Sept. 26, 1824, d. Oct. 3, 1840.

To Sarah Marsh Lee, we as a family, are more deeply indebted than to any other individual, and not only is it fitting that some record of her life should be given in these pages as a mark of respect and appreciation of her generous labors, but also to gratify the interest of so many who have known her—as the author of our Lee Book—by correspondence—and, a favored few, by affectionate personal intercourse.

Her early life was that of a New England child, trained with almost Puritanic strictness. Her love of fun and frolic was great, and strengthened in childhood by her healthy and active temperament, but her innate sense of propriety kept her within the bounds of decorum.

She attended the academy in Norwich, and later, the one in Westfield, but her health, unbroken until then, was injured by over-study, and she was obliged henceforth to depend on the desultory but effective methods of general reading.

When about forty years old her hearing became defective, and increasingly fettered her social activities, and limited her pleasures. For several years before her death she did not attend church, as she could not hear any of the services, even by the use of the apparatus specially arranged for her when the church was built. She heard no sound save by using an ear trumpet, and then often with great weariness to herself, but she was so animated and sympathetic in all that interested her friends that they, unchecked by any sign from her, often talked with her till she was wearied to illness. This infirmity led her to have a large correspondence in which she took much pleasure, and by which she greatly helped her friends in their daily life, and especially in the crisis of joy or sorrow. She accepted her deafness and all its consequent trials with Christian philosophy.

Much that has been said of the character of her father was true of Miss Lee. She also, was “upright, straightforward and honest, with a clear head, and most excellent judgment” and her companionship with him had given her a breadth of mental vision, which she perhaps, could have attained in no other way. There seemed to be no weak link in the chain of her endowments for good. Truthful and just in thought and word, she was yet charitable toward the erring. Generous, not only to the large circle of her friends, but to all whose need was known to her; interested in all that was helpful to the church or the community, and aiding to the full extent of her power, she quietly did an amount of good, known only to her God. The objects dearest to her heart were those in which her parents had been specially interested: the American Missionary Association; Seamen's Friend Society; Home Missionary Society; but every appeal, by the charities of her church, of the city, or by the needs of destitution in any place, met a ready response limited only by her ability. "Of her liberality too much cannot be said." In this connection it may be proper to say, that the expense of publishing our first "Lee Book" was largely met by Miss Lee, as the receipts from the sale of copies fell far short of the cost of publication.

As a Sabbath-School teacher she was enthusiastic. For some years she had a class of German young people whom she taught in their own language. When she was very young, and before she united with the church, she taught a class of young boys with marked success, and they visited her to the latest years of her life. For many years, beginning when she was a young lady, she was a tract distributor in a part of the town where the population was such that two ladies always went together, as it was unsafe for one to go alone.

Miss Lee was finely educated, and all her life kept in line with the progress of thought on all vital questions, especially in the department of missions, at home and abroad.

In practical life she was efficient, self-reliant, accurate, and remarkably persistent. With these characteristics of strength, were mingled a ready sympathy for others, a warm and demonstrative affection, and a yearning for love and appreciation, almost pathetic in one so strong and well fitted to stand alone.

Her closing years were spent in her beautiful home in Norwich. Tenderly cared for by one who was the son of her father's adoption, honored and beloved by all who knew her, she quietly awaited the summons which called her to the land where she should hear the voices of those, so many, who would give her a joyous welcome.

Graduated at Dartmouth College, 1874; was admitted to the Bar, August, 1875, at Indianola, Iowa, and in 1877 became one of the firm of Maxwell, Lee & Witter of Des Moines, Iowa. Married Sept. 15, 1880, Clara Harriet, dau. of William F. and Lavinia (Ford) Clarke of Boone, Iowa, born Sept. 15, 1856. On account of failing health, he left his profession in 1881, and sought strength and relief in change of climate, but God had work for him in another world. He died March 10, 1884, at Boone, Iowa. His remains now rest in the family lot at New Ipswich, N. H. Earnest and successful in his profession, his future was one of brilliant promise. In all the relations of life he was a peace-maker; his integrity was unquestioned, and his highest ambition that the world should be the richer because he had lived in it. Because he has died the world is the poorer, and the loss to his home circle is irreparable.

In 1872, with his father, Mr. Lee went to Connecticut, that together they might visit the scenes of the boyhood of the elder man. They spent several hours in the cemetery at Farmington, searching more especially for the grave of John Lee the emigrant. At length wearied and perhaps discouraged, the father went to the home of a friend for an hour's rest. During his absence the son, unwilling to abandon the search, while strolling around the yard, by accident hit a small stone with his foot, and trying to turn it aside, he found it firmly fixed in the ground. This excited his curiosity, and with a picket found near by, he dug the stone from the ground, and after clearing away the earth, made out the inscription, now so familiar to us all, but which then had been hidden for generations. When the father returned, and a comparison of dates proved that here was indeed that for which they had sought, their delight and enthusiasm can well be imagined. This was July 13, 1872.

At once it was thought desirable to mark the spot by some more lasting monument; and Rev. Mr. Lee suggested that the expense be met by many small contributions, but on conferring with Mr. W. H. Lee of New York city, he expressed a wish to, himself, erect a suitable monument, and the beautiful one which now marks the resting place of our honored ancestor, was placed there by him.

160. V. JOSEPH WENTWORTH, born Jan. 20, 1855, died Sept. 5, 1855.

Rev. Samuel Lee was born in Kensington, a parish of Berlin, March 18, 1803, and in less than two weeks afterward his father died, leaving him to the sole charge of his mother. Seven years later she married Nathan Boardman, and removed to Westfield, taking with her the two children. When a lad of fourteen, he was for some months very ill from inflammation of the hip joint, and not only was obliged to use crutches for years, but, as a consequence, was always lame, though later he recovered much of his former agility. This illness determined the whole course of his life. While on what was supposed to be his death-bed, his pastor visited him, and prayed that he might recover and become a minister of God. Never before had he thought of the possibility of such a life. Never after could he feel that he might devote his life to any other calling. In the face of poverty and disease, he fitted for college; a part of the time the pupil of Rev. S. G. Goodrich, (Peter Parley,) earning money by "teaching for seven dollars a month, boarding 'round, and going on crutches." He graduated at Yale College in 1827, and from New Haven Theological Seminary in 1830. November 4, 1830, he was ordained the pastor of the Congregational church in Sherborn, Mass., which had just separated from the parent Unitarian church. At the ordination, Dr. Taylor of New Haven preached the sermon, Dr. Lyman Beecher gave the charge, and Dr. Pond of Bangor addressed the people. Here he remained five years, "until all his congregation were converted." The church in New Ipswich, N. H., then the second largest in the State, called him to be their pastor, though they had never heard him preach, and he was installed there May 5, 1836, and dismissed November 4, 1860, on account of feeble health. He never took another pastorate, though, after some years given to recuperation, he was able to follow the studies in which his soul delighted, and he published two books: "Eschatology," endorsed as a book of reference by President Porter of Yale College; "The Bible Regained," (dedicated to his daughter), and numerous articles for the theological periodicals. During the later years of his life he preached in neighboring pulpits, as he had opportunity. August 18, 1878, though not in usual health, he preached at the Baptist church in New Ipswich, from the text: "And Abraham died, an old man, and full." The effort was too much for his strength. He went home and to his bed, from which he was never again to rise. In a few days paralysis rendered the left side helpless, and for three years it was his mission to show the graces of patience and submission, and to be ministered unto as a child. August 27, 1881, the end came, and he joined the large company of those dear to him by the ties of family and religious kinship who had preceded him to the heavenly world.

Mr. Lee's activities were not confined to his parish. Early in his ministry he attended "protracted meetings," and continued the work for many years. His labors were abundantly blessed. At Rindge, N. H., more than fifty people ascribed their conversion to a single sermon. “ ‘Behold the Lamb of God’ he said in accents so tender and impressive that burdened souls, hearing only these words, saw, as in a vision, Christ to be their Saviour.” Earnest in every good work, he was active in all measures that looked toward progress for good. He was prominent in State Christian charities; temperance and anti-slavery reforms had his aid.

He helped the cause of Education in every way in his power; as one of those who originated Teachers’ Institutes, the forerunner of Normal Schools; as Superintendent of Public Schools; in Appleton Academy as “trustee, instructor, lecturer and counsellor, and friend of the student;” in the State Legislature, and in helpful intercourse with the young. He was especially happy in his guidance of young men, and the Church owes some of its bright lights to his influence.

Mr. Lee had a character of rare strength; determined, persistent, self-reliant, of positive judgments, methodical, and of great executive ability, yet his strength was saved from harshness by “a nature most kind and sympathetic, abounding in all gentle courtesies and charities,” and “singularly attractive social qualities.” As a writer, he had fertility of thought and fluency of expression; was “a trained logician, acute metaphysician, and apt in illustration.” His sermons, though preached from very brief notes, were “felicitous in analysis and arrangement,” and he had “a fervor and spirituality in devotion never to be forgotten.”

The Hollis Association of ministers, of which Mr. Lee was for many years a member, in resolutions passed after his death, accord to him the possession of “superior intellectual powers, a noble, generous, cordial nature, a firm belief in the essential doctrines of Revelation, and unusual power as a preacher.”

Socially he was a staunch friend, helpful in all emergencies, chivalric, a stimulating companion, helpful and appreciative critic, and wise counsellor.

The fullest and ripest wealth of his nature in all its best manifestations, was shown in his home in a degree appreciated only by those who there knew him.

When comparatively a young man, Mr. Lee became interested in learning everything possible about his ancestors. About 1852 he learned that Dea. Charles Lee was engaged in the same pursuit, and they became mutually helpful; after Dea. Lee’s death his daughter Sarah Marsh, and Mr. Lee continued their researches. About 1870 he opened a correspondence with Mr.

William Henry Lee of New York City, and they found to their mutual pleasure that they were relatives; and for years they carried on a voluminous correspondence. The discovery of the headstone of John ¹ seemed to give them something tangible as a rallying point, and the enthusiasm of both gentlemen was aroused. After an exchange of many letters, the millionaire furnished the monument, and the clergyman selected the Biblical texts and arranged the inscriptions.

William Henry said to the daughter of Rev. Samuel, "I owe a great deal to your father. He was the one who first aroused my interest in genealogy."

In 1874, Mr. Lee furnished for the New England Historical and Genealogical Register an article containing the record of the first four generations of our family (aided in this, as in all his literary pursuits, by his daughter), which involved a great deal of labor, as the older the manuscript, generally the more illegible it is found to be.

In the delirium preceding the paralysis which closed his life, Mr. Lee was greatly troubled, lest some important genealogical records had been lost, and was reassured only by having them brought to him, and the partial reading of the Lee Book of 1878 was among his last conscious pleasures.

Miss Lee was a rare character.

Her early life was spent in a New England home with its almost Spartan simplicity. Her education from books was gained first in the district school, and later in the State Normal School, from which she graduated in 1860, and soon after was sent by the State Superintendent of Public Instruction to Oswego, to learn the Pestalozzian methods, then being introduced there. She entered with enthusiasm into the method of teaching, being convinced, "that there is a natural and beautiful way of teaching everything." In 1862 she was sent by the State Superintendent to open a Training School for Teachers in Davenport, Iowa. She afterwards taught in other Normal Schools, and lectured before Institutes and Sabbath School Conventions. With Dwight L. Moody she spent a summer in Illinois, exemplifying the Pestalozzian system to bodies of Sabbath-School teachers.

Miss Lee had always wished to study medicine, and though for years prevented from carrying out her wish, perseverance conquered, and in 1874 she graduated from the medical department of the University of Michigan. The following year she became connected with the State Normal School at Oswego, N.Y., as teacher of Physiology, and she also had a general charge of the health of the school, and retained that position during the remainder of her life, except two years spent in Europe. During the last years of her teaching she had charge of classes in "the closely related subjects of Zoology, Physiology, Physical Culture and the Methods in these branches." In gymnastics she was an enthusiastic follower of Delsarte, and in addition to teaching in classes, she lectured extensively—at Cornell, before the Saver College of Languages, Boston School of Oratory, and at many other places, seeking to introduce this method. She was the author of one or more school books.

We are allowed to quote from an autobiography, which though written in the third person, is an unmistakable reflection of the character of the writer.

"While the school life was so barren, the other life was fruitful. The girl early made intimate acquaintance with the domestic animals; learned their individual dispositions, * * * broke steers and colts; taught her beloved dog, Dime, to draw her on a sled; knew every sheep in her father's flock by its countenance, and converted them into a pet flock, which crowded about her as she entered the pasture. She drove the oxen while her father plowed, and when particularly fine geological specimens were turned up by the steel nose, her father would 'breathe' the oxen while he named the stones, and pointed out their peculiarities; flowers and their parts were taught her by her father, and on their long rides, beauties of earth and sky, of meadow and mountain, were made subjects of conversation. * * * She became a girl who gloried in her strength, who would not be bound by any garment; who always 'swelled up' when 'Miss Liddy' was fitting her dresses; who when she studied physiology, promptly adopted all hygienic modes of living, was 'as strong as an ox,' and rejoiced in the fact that she could work all day just as well as a boy. In all this, the gentle and refined father saw education, and cause for congratulation," * * * With the poorest tools, this child tried her hand at making all sorts of things, from a raft to a hen-house. She became useful and trusted on the farm; important interests were committed to her. * * * Any one with half an educational eye can see that in this free, out-door life of the child, were splendid materials for school work. * * * but there was no teacher big, wise, and brave enough to use these materials. * * * No one knew how to get the engine, which was under a full head of steam, upon a track. * * * Since reaching maturity, Dr. Lee has worked not so much to give information, as to influence life. She often remembers the Granby girl she knew years ago, and hopes that some other girl may have her home and school life wedded in healthful union through her direct or indirect influence."

Mrs. Mary S. Barnes, now Prof. of History at Palo-Alto, California, says of her: "The record of her life is on the face of it, that of an ardent, free and active soul, concerned with nature and life. Such she was; and because she was such, she was often regarded as peculiar and aggressive; but her peculiarities were always on the side of sense, and her aggressions sprung from a genuine wish to befriend and improve. What always struck me as most peculiar in her character was its constant progress; there was not a bit of conservatism in her nature; and age could not touch her. She abandoned the old for the new without a moment's hesitation if the new was better; her entrance into medicine, her return to teaching, her devotion in her later years to Delsartism are illustrative. Yet her life was a unit, in its tastes, ambitions, and spirit."

After the death of Dr. Lee, the Local Board of the Oswego State Normal School, held a special meeting to take suitable action with reference to the sad event, and adopted a memorial to be entered upon their minutes, from which we quote the closing sentence, "Her lovely Christian character and life, her labors for temperance, her sympathy with, and ready aid in, every movement tending toward improved social conditions, endeared her to the community in which she lived, and make the sense of loss by her death extend much beyond the school which for nearly twenty years had been graced and elevated by her presence, example and noble and successful labors."

While a young man, Mr. Lee was employed by his aunt, Mrs. Emma Willard, in the office of the Troy Female Seminary, and by improving every opportunity obtained a good education. For many years he was a prominent merchant in Troy, N. Y., and Cincinnati. In 1861 he bought a farm in Marysville, Ohio, and there spent the remainder of his life.

He was always and everywhere a Christian gentleman, public-spirited, and a power for good; the object of his life was to make the world better. He had a wide range of reading, and was of scholarly tastes with strong metaphysical tendencies. One who as a young man, was a clerk in his store said of him: "For half a century I have known him, and during that time I cannot recall a word or act of his that was unchristian or unmanly."

"During his long and useful career, Mr. Lee was prominently connected with the Presbyterian and Congregational churches, holding the position of Elder and Deacon in each, being elected to the latter position in the local Congregational church in 1864, and holding that place till his death."

The later years of his life were made happy by the society of his children and grandchildren. As the infirmities of age increased, he loosed his hold on the interests of this life and fastened it on those of a higher one. For years, his many hours of wakefulness were cheered by thoughts of that heavenly world, in whose twilight he waited for many months. Gradually the light grew brighter, and December 29, 1896, he entered that city which eye hath not seen.

Mrs. Lee was finely educated, and had great practical ability, united with rare loveliness of spirit and manner.

| 253. | I. | BENJAMIN LATHROP, | born March 6, 1832 ; d. Aug. 10, 1868.
Enlisted in Tenth Regt., Co. G., Conn.
Vol., chosen Corporal on enlistment, Oct.
2, 1861, and promoted to a Captaincy,
Oct. 25, 1862 ; mustered out on expiration of term of service, Oct. 25, 1864. |
|------|----|-------------------|--|

The following testimony is by Rev. H. C. Trumbull, Chaplain of the Tenth :

"Captain Greaves will be remembered by his comrades as a brave soldier, possessing fine qualities of mind, and many attractive traits of personal character. The fact that he was in command of the company in the ranks of which he went out from Stamford, when hardly a year had passed, and that too in a regiment comprising such material as the Tenth, with its bright record for discipline, hard fighting and thorough efficiency, evidenced his superiority in much that went to make a first-class soldier."

General J. L. Otis gives this estimate of his military character: "His conduct in action was always commendable. I always considered coolness and self-possession in action the most valuable characteristics an officer could possess, and Captain Greaves had these in a remarkable degree."

The officers of the Tenth thus testify to the military character of Captain Greaves: "Never flinching in the hour of danger, never failing in the performance of any task assigned him, he won the confidence of his commanders, and the respect of those whom he commanded.

"His record of patriotic services is one in which those who love him may have just pride, and his early death is sincerely lamented by many who knew his capabilities of usefulness."

340. I. HENRIETTA ISADORE, born Mar. 13, 1867.*
 341. II. MARY GERTRUDE, " Sept. 5, 1869.

Mr. Lee enlisted July 29, 1862, in Co. E, 16th Reg't, Conn. Vols., and was in actual service for the first time at the battle of Antietam. "His company never stacked arms when he was not with them. Once he was the highest officer in his Company on the field. April 20, 1864, he was captured at Plymouth, N. C., and taken to Andersonville, remaining there eight months, and at Florence and Richmond three months longer. During his imprisonment, starvation and disease made him delirious, and when reason returned he found that the left side of his body had been frozen. He was an invalid all the remainder of his life.

The crowning act of his whole life is well described in the Hartford Post by a comrade and fellow sufferer. After stating that a petition to the National Government at Washington had been drawn up, asking that the regular troops might be exchanged, but not recognizing the claims of the negro soldiers who were imprisoned with them, he writes :

“In the 16th Connecticut was a light-haired, fair-faced, non-commissioned officer from the town of Granby, by the name of Richard H. Lee. He was the orderly sergeant of his company, and the idol of his associates. Scarcely past twenty years of age, he was a moral hero, having in him the stuff of which martyrs must have been made. As soon as it became known generally that the petition was in circulation, and that the members of the 16th Reg't would be asked to sign it, Sergeant Lee delivered a spirited address against the measure, on the ground that it was unjust to the negro soldiers in the camp, and in complete violation of the policy and purposes of the government at Washington. It was a fearless stand against the selfishness of men who thought only of escape from the frightful ravages of death, visible by every hut and tent and pathway in that cruelest of prison yards. To the honor of the 16th Reg't, half of whose numbers lie in the Andersonville cemetery, not one man of the command attached his name to that petition.”

March 9, 1865, he was exchanged from the rebel prison, and discharged from the service June 15, 1865.

All honor to those brave heroes, those uncrowned martyrs ! In the excitement and enthusiasm of the battle-field, many men have been brave, but these men were starving, sick, neglected and cruelly treated in every way ; and they knew that they might be taken away from all this to comfort and safety, merely by the sacrifice of what, to many, would seem a claim of little importance.

Honor to them that they never faltered, and greater honor to the youth, who, by his moral courage and enthusiasm, led them to feel that they could not forsake those who, from ignorance and weakness, were defenceless and helpless !

Truly, there was no braver deed in that whole war, and well may we be proud of this hero, who belonged to our blood and our lineage.

172. MARTHA OLIVIA ⁷, dau. of George ⁶, 86, married Oct. 1850, Rev. Alfred Lawrence Loveland. Children:

LOVELAND.

- 343. II. LOTTIE LEE, " Sept. 15, 1858; d. 1864.
- 344. III. MARIUS LEE, " Oct. 9, 1859.
- 345. IV. BABY LEE, " Jan. 3, 1869; d. March. 18, 1869.

Mr. Loveland was born at Glastonbury in 1825. After receiving a liberal education, he entered the ministry of the Universalist church and began preaching at Granby before he was twenty-one years old. After years of labor in this profession, his health failed, and he turned his attention to the raising of small fruits, with such benefit to himself physically, that he again entered the active labors of the ministry and continued in it until his death at Granby, Sept. 22, 1884.

"He was a man of rare attainments, and fine literary ability. While performing manual labor, his great brain was working out some unsolved problem. He had a character of inflexible uprightness of purpose. The heroic deeds, the kindly acts, the throbs of the heart given to the cause of truth and the good of humanity, will be cherished by many a loving and loyal heart."

The following just and appreciative notice of Mrs. Sluyter has been written for us by her life-long friend and co-worker, Mrs. Nathaniel Shipman :

To those who are most familiar with Mrs. Sluyter and her work in Hartford, her career is a wonderful unfolding of the Providential care which orders all our lives, and illustrates, in a most striking and beautiful manner, Dr. Horace Bushnell's famous sermon on "Every Man's Life a Plan of God." From her girlhood, she was led through many and devious ways, through sometimes storm and stress, to the Damascus Gate of her life, where the Heavenly Light flooded and startled her soul, and where she first consecrated herself to missionary service. We know how, "in obedience to the heavenly vision," she labored successfully among the poor of Binghamton, and now, after twenty-four years of untiring devotion in the city of Hartford, her watching friends and co-workers can heartily echo the words: "What hath God Wrought."

She is by instinct a missionary, by grace a spiritual guide, and by experience and training, a wise, far-seeing and inspiring leader in humanitarian work. She was among the first to apply the principles of the "New Charity" to such service, and demonstrated its wisdom so early as to fairly entitle her to the name of "Pioneer." To use her own words, "To promote self-help and right living by direct personal contact, and every industrial, social, and religious assistance available, is the ultimate end of the New Charity."

This has been the underlying principle of her method as Superintendent of the Union for Home Work in Hartford, for which the whole city will always hold her in grateful and honored and loving memory.—M. C. S.

"Prof. King graduated from Oberlin College in 1879, and from its Theological department in 1882. After two years spent in post-graduate studies at Harvard University, where he took the degree of A. M., he became Associate Professor of Mathematics at Oberlin, and in 1892 was appointed to the full Professorship of Philosophy. He spent the years '93-94 in the study of Philosophy and Theology at Berlin, Germany. In addition to his regular college duties he conducts a Bible class of three or four hundred students, which has grown from a training class of ten or twelve, and also, at least five other classes in different cities, comprising about seven hundred members. He preaches occasionally, and has held various positions of responsibility in connection with the Faculty and College. He has done some writing for publication along educational and philosophical lines, which has had influential results, and has frequently spoken upon these subjects at educational associations. His active interest in whatever pertains to the welfare of the College has given him a high place in the estimation of the students and Faculty."—F. T. L.

TO THE READER.

NOTE.—It is not the design of this work to carry out the female branches of the family farther than the second or third generations, unless records are voluntarily furnished, as the several lines become difficult to trace, after the family name has been changed, through several generations.

The following records of the Mary Lee (Upson) family are furnished by descendants of her three sons, being mainly a synopsis of their individual descent through the several generations, and which are gladly given place in these pages.

The names of soldiers of the French and Revolutionary wars of this branch, found on the "Roll of Honor," though not mentioned in the text, were obtained from public records, and are deemed reliable, but by no means complete.

DESCENDANTS OF MARY LEE UPSON,

ELDEST DAUGHTER OF

JOHN ¹ OF FARMINGTON.

CONTRIBUTED BY LT. COL. HOLDRIDGE O. COLLINS,

LOS ANGELES, CAL.

3. MARY LEE, the second child of John Lee and Mary Hart, his wife, daughter of Deacon Stephen Hart, was born at Farmington, Conn., on August 14, 1664, and on December 29, 1682, she was married to Sergeant Stephen Upson of Mattatuck, or Waterbury.

By this marriage, the patronymic ceased in her line, but her descendants have inherited those sterling qualities of integrity, patriotism and enterprise which were the predominant characteristics of her father, and which have placed them in the front rank of the best citizens of this country. Throughout the length and breadth of this land they have been distinguished in the mercantile world, in the professions, in the arts and sciences, and in the wars waged for the preservation of their Nation, equally proud, with those who bear the name, of the Lee blood of old John of Farmington, (No. 1.)

Of the youth and maidenhood of Mary Lee but little can be told. The distinguished position of her grandfather, Deacon Stephen Hart, and the wealth and tender solicitude of her father and mother saved her from the many trials and severe labors of the early settlers of her day, and, marrying at the early age of eighteen years she entered upon her new life surrounded with all the comforts and luxuries of those times which were found in the homes of the wealthier Colonists.

Her husband, Sergeant Stephen Upson, was born in Farmington about 1653. He was the son of Thomas Upson, who first appeared in the Connecticut Colony at Hartford prior to 1638. At Hartford on January 23, 1647, Thomas married Elizabeth Fuller. He was an original proprietor and settler of Farmington at which place he died on July 19, 1655.

Stephen Upson joined the Company at Mattatuck, or Waterbury, where on December 29, 1679, he signed the Articles of Association "on account of a new lot." "He was surveyor, school committee, grand juror, often townsman, and three times Deputy to the General Court;—in May 1710, October 1712 and October 1729. He became Sergeant in 1715, and in 1729 he had a seat with the Veterans in the new meeting house."

The married life of Mary Lee at Waterbury was a happy one. She died February 15, 1716, surrounded by her children and deeply mourned by her husband, who survived her until 1735. Children :

5. STEPHEN UPSON, was a man of position and influence in Waterbury. He was Captain of the Train Band, a member of many important Commissions and Conventions, and a Deputy to the General Court in October, 1743, May and October, 1763, October, 1765, and May, 1766.

His wife, Sarah Bronson, was born at Waterbury on November, 1691, and died in 1748. She was the daughter of Sergeant Isaac Bronson, (born November, 1645, baptized in Hartford, December 1, 1645, by Rev. Thomas Hooker, died 1719,) by his wife, Mary Root, daughter of John Root, Sr., of Farmington. Sergeant Isaac Bronson was one of the original thirty subscribers to the "Articles agreed upon," June 6, 1674, "for settling a plantation att Mattatuck," and one of the patentees named in the first patent. In October, 1689, when Samuel Hickox was made Sergeant, he was made Corporal of the Waterbury Train Band, and "about 1695 he became Sergeant, and ever afterwards was known as Sergeant Bronson."

He was one of the "Seven Pillars" of the Waterbury church upon its organization in 1691. "He was Deputy to the General Court in May, 1697, and October, 1701, and Townsman, School Committee, Town Surveyor, etc., at different times. He seems to have been one of the most respected of the early settlers."

He was the third son of John Bronson, one of the company of Rev. Thomas Hooker, and a soldier from Hartford in Captain Mason's command during the Pequot War of 1637. In 1640, John lived at his home lot in the old village of Hartford, given to him for his services in the Pequot War. In 1641 he moved to Tunxis, or Farmington, and on the organization of the Farmington church, on Oct. 13, 1652, he was one of the "Seven Pillars." In May, 1651, and at subsequent sessions, he was a Deputy from Farmington to the General Court. Children :

HICKOX.

4th Gen.

13. GIDEON HICKOX, who married Sarah Upson, No. 13, was born Sept. 6, 1705, and died April 18, 1798, at Naugatuck. He was the son of Samuel Hickox, Jr., the first settler of Naugatuck, by his wife Elizabeth Plumb, great-granddaughter of John Plumb, the immigrant from Essex County, Eng., who was a deputy from Wethersfield to the General Court, from March 8, 1636 to 1642, and "one of the men in Captain Mason's little army during the Pequot war in 1637."

Sergeant Samuel Hickox, the father of Samuel, was one of the original proprietors and subscribers to the Articles for settling the plantation of Mattatuck, and named in the Patent from Governor Saltonstall. In October, 1689, he was chosen Sergeant of the Waterbury Train Band when Isaac Bronson was made Corporal. He was the son of William Hickox, one of the original proprietors and settlers of Farmington.

Gideon Hickox was a zealous patriot during the war of the Revolution, being a member of the Waterbury Committee on Supplies, and enrolled in the local militia. Children :

BEEBE.

5th Gen.

23. IRA BEEBE, the husband of Jemima Hickox, No. 23, was descended from the families of Calkin, Hough, Borden, Lewis, Huntley and Beebe, who were among the first settlers of New London, Conn. His father, Jonathan Beebe, was a First. Lieut. of Connecticut troops during the French and Indian War, and during the Campaign of 1759 he so distinguished himself at Lake

George and Crown Point as to be mentioned in the Journals and despatches of his commanding officer Col. James Montessoro.

Ira Beebe was commissioned a First Lieutenant in Col. Jonathan Baldwin's Tenth Conn. Regt. in 1777, subsequently being promoted Captain in the Twenty-seventh Reg't Conn. Militia. He served along the Hudson River, and participated in the battle of Long Island, retaining his command until the close of the war of the Revolution. Children :

WOOSTER.

6th Gen.

31. WALTER WOOSTER, the husband of Ursula Beebe, No. 31, derived his descent from ancestors whose names are inseparably associated with the founding and making of New Haven Colony. His great-grandfather, Edward Wooster, was the first settler of Derby, and his father, Timothy Wooster, Jr., was first cousin of Gen. David Wooster. His maternal great-grandfather, Rev. John Bowers, graduated from Harvard College in 1649, and, marrying Bridget, the daughter of Anthony Thompson, one of the signers of the Compact at Quinnipiac with Rev. John Davenport and Governor Eaton, finally settled in Derby as its first minister.

During the war of the Revolution, Walter Wooster was Sergeant of Captain Eli Leavenworth's Company of the Sixth "Connecticut Line," commanded by Col. Return Jonathan Meigs. He enlisted March 2, 1777, for three years, during which time he served continually with his regiment along the Hudson River, at Peekskill and around King's Bridge, where he was seriously wounded on one expedition. He was with Washington at White Plains and in the storming of Stony Point.

Upon the discovery of Arnold's treason he was ordered to West Point where he remained until discharged. After his return home, he was appointed a member of the recruiting committee at Derby, March 9, 1780, and he was zealous in his patriotic services until the end of the war. The records of the Pension Office at Washington state that after his marriage to Ursula Beebe he was on the "Alarm List," and frequently absent from home on military duty, his wife being obliged for her safety to resort to the houses of friends. He died at Waterbury July 21, 1829, and his widow received a pension from the United States until her death in 1846. Children :

COLLINS.

7th Gen.

37. AHIRA COLLINS, Jr., husband of Jemina Wooster, No. 37, inherited the blood of Deacon Edward Collins of the early days of Cambridge, Mass. Acquiring a superior intellectual culture, in his early days he taught school. He possessed a considerable estate at Straitsville, near Naugatuck, where he established an iron foundry, machine shops and an extensive plant for the manufacture of agricultural implements. He survived his wife Jemima but a little more than two years, being drowned on November 1, 1863, in Long Island Sound, while on a yachting excursion. Children :

44. OZRO COLLINS, No. 44, succeeded his father Ahira to the manufacturing interests at Straitsville, which he conducted for several years, but disposing of them, he moved with his family to the Connecticut Reserve of Ohio, finally settling at Toledo. His wife, Ann Van Etten, was descended from the earliest Dutch and French Huguenot settlers of New York, many of whom were eminent for their high military and civil positions. She was a woman remarkable for the vigor of her mental forces, and she has left a lasting memory of her literary attainments, in the place in which were passed the closing years of her too short life. Condensed Biographical Sketch of COLONEL COLLINS, from a Work Published by the Knickerbocker Publishing Co., New York, 1896.

HOLDRIDGE OZRO COLLINS, was born in Cayuga Co., N. Y., Dec. 10, 1844, son of Ozro Collins of Naugatuck, Conn., and wife, Ann Van Etten of Owasco, N.Y. Through her, he is of Huguenot extraction. He was graduated from St. Louis University in 1865, and Harvard in 1867, with the degree of A. M. and L. L. B. In 1869 he located in Chicago, and was admitted to the bar soon after, taking an active part in the organization of the Chicago Bar Association, of which he was chosen secretary two terms; was also a member of the board of managers and committee of admissions from 1881-90.

He was instrumental in organizing the first Regiment of Infantry, Illinois National Guards, and was one of the first six captains elected, and, subsequently, promoted to Lieutenant Colonel of the Regiment, in which he served five years, and held an important command during the railroad riots in the city in 1877.

In 1884 he published a history of the Illinois National Guards; is a member of the Veteran Corps of the First Regiment, I. N. G., and of the Harvard University club of Chicago.

In 1874 he married Mary Ballance, daughter of Charles Ballance, a veteran lawyer of Peoria, Ill., and Colonel of 77th Regiment, Ill. Vols., in the Confederate war; removed to Los Angeles, Cal., 1890, where he is engaged in the practice of his profession; is a member of the N. Y. Sons of the Revolution and of the Colonial Wars and the "Society of the War of 1812."

Upon the organization of the California Society of Sons of the Revolution he was elected President, which position he still holds, (1897.)

November 30, 1895, the "Society of Colonial Wars" for California was organized, and Colonel Collins was elected "Governor," and re-elected in November, 1896.

He has been a contributor to various periodicals, and is also author of a biographical memoir of his mother, Ann Van Etten Collins, which was reviewed by the New York Genealogical and Biographical Record, and also by American Ancestry, of Albany, N. Y.

The following synopsis of her line is furnished by MISS ALICE E. BRONSON, of Hartford, a descendant of Mary Lee and Stephen Upson, of the 8th generation, through Thomas, their second son.

UPSON. Waterbury, Southington. 3d Gen.

UPSON.

Waterbury. 3d Gen.

10. JOHN, youngest son of Mary (Lee) No. 3, and Sergt. Stephen Upson, born Dec. 3, 1702, married Elizabeth, dau. of Dea. Thomas Judd of Waterbury, (great-granddaughter of Deacon Thomas Judd of Farmington), July 1, 1725. They lived in Waterbury, and later, in the southwest part of Southington. In seating the congregation in 1786, he was given a front pew, with the dignitaries, and called "Mr. JohnUpson," a title of some distinction at that time.

His will was dated 1763, making his eldest son Daniel, executor, to whom he gave a "double portion," as was the custom at that time. He died Nov. 2, 1789, aged 87. His wife died Jan. 28, 1798, aged 96. Children :

The last two children probably died before the parents, as neither of them are named in the will of either parent.

UPSON

Wallingford, New Haven. 4th Gen.

77. DANIEL, eldest son of John, No. 10, and Elizabeth (Judd) Upson, born March 19, 1726, married Hannah Judd in 1753, born 1736. They moved from Waterbury to Wallingford about 1761, and after 1766 lived in New Haven. He was executor of his father's will. During the Revolutionary war he was a Tory. After the attack of the British on New Haven, he was summoned by the town authorities to appear and show why he did not assist in defending the town, but did not obey the summons. The paper is said to be still on file. His name is found on the muster roll of Capt. Eldad Lewis, for the campaign against the French in 1755, in the returns sworn to at Hartford Feb. 17, 1756, received £14-1-11. He died June 11, 1782, intestate, and his wife was appointed administratrix. She seems to have been a woman of great executive ability. She died Jan. 28, 1806. Children:

5th Gen.

86. I. JESSE, born Sept. 10, 1754.*
87. II. ELISHA, " 1757; d. Sept. 17, 1776.

There must have been other children, of whom no record is found. In the probate records, besides Mrs. Hannah Upson, there are named Jesse Upson, Hannah Upson and Elias M. Bontecon, evidently son of a deceased daughter.

UPSON.

New Haven, Wolcott. 5th Gen.

86. JESSE, son of Daniel, No. 77, and Hannah (Judd) Upson, born Sept. 10, 1754, married Elizabeth, dau. of Captain Thomas Smith of East Haven, Nov. 17, 1775, born May 21, 1754. She died May 20, 1821.

He was a soldier of the Revolution, in Captain David Smith's Co., under Colonel Elmore, in 1776, and marched to the relief of Fort Stanwix (now Rome, N. Y.) In 1777 he was Corporal in Captain Jesse Curtiss' Co., under Colonel Noadiah Hooper, and in service at Peekskill and along the Hudson. In 1779 he was present at the attack of the British on New Haven. While attempting to remove his family and household effects to a place of safety, his father, being a Tory, taunted him and refused to assist him. A summons was issued for him and others to appear and show why they did not assist in defending the town. His name is found on file with others whose excuses were accepted. There is a tradition that he was captured on that occasion, and carried to Halifax, where he suffered much from hunger, and was made to officiate as a barber. Some years after the war he removed to Wolcott, and his name appears on the church records in 1803-6, as one of the Prudential Committee. He died March 25, 1833, aged 79. Children:

PECK.

Plainville. 8th Gen.

122. SUSAN ALGAR, dau. of Russell Upson, No. 96, and his second wife, Susan (Curtiss) Peck, No. 281, of Thomas Lee branch, born October 25, 1854, lives at Plainville, (1897). She has taken extended courses in Natural Sciences, Modern and Classical Languages in Boston, and in Chemical and Botanical Laboratories of Cooper Union and Barnard College, New York, holds diplomas from Cooper Union Chemical Laboratory, and from Science Department, Teachers' College, New York, and has been engaged in teaching college preparatory studies, in New York, since 1888.

Being descended from Mary Lee Upson through her father, and from Thomas Lee through her mother, in her is united a greater complexity of relationship than usually falls to one individual.

Standing in both columns she is not only cousin to her own father and mother, but cousin to herself!

Here she sustains the same relationship through the Judd line as in the Upson-Lee family, and a similar complexity follows through the Peck family, which is not within the scope of this work.—See 281, Thomas branch.

DESCENDANTS OF STEPHEN,

SECOND SON OF

JOHN LEE.

THIRD GENERATION.

4. STEPHEN², son of John¹, the immigrant, was the first settler in that portion of the original tract of land, called in 1707, "Great Swamp;" in 1720, Kensington, and, in 1754, New Britain. He received a grant from the town in January, 1689 "of 5 roods of land on the westerly side of the highway, (provided, it doth not hinder former grants,) and the watering place; he building on it within four years, or else it is to return to the town again." In March following, application was made to "the Court" "to lay out Stephen Lee's lot, as near as they can, according to grant." His house, afterwards known as the "Hinsdale House," was for many years "one of the grandest houses in New Britain." It was taken down in 1834.

A church was organized in 1710, and in 1712 Rev. Mr. Burnham was settled over the Society. At the time of his settlement there were but fourteen families in the place, and the Church consisted of ten members. Stephen Lee was one of the "seven pillars of the Church;" his name stands next to that of the minister, and he sat "in the first 'pue' next the pulpit." He was chosen, December 18, 1693, one of a committee of three "to take care and have inspection over the youth in y^e meetinghouse on the Sabbaths and other days of publique exorcises." He was one of the most active men in securing the organization of the New Britain Society. He died the year before the act of incorporation was passed, but his widow, 85 years of age, was still living at the homestead, and she became a member of the First Church of New Britain when it was organized, having with her husband united with the Church in Farmington October 5, 1709.

He was Captain of the Farmington Train Band, and bore that title from middle age.

He married October 1, 1690, Elizabeth Royce of Wallingford, dau. of Isaac and Elizabeth (Lathrop), his wife. He died June 7, 1753, aged 87. A red sandstone in the old cemetery at "Great Swamp" (now Christian Lane) marks his last resting place. His widow died May 2, 1760, aged 91 years, and is buried in the new cemetery at New Britain. WILL OF CAPT. STEPHEN LEE.

He gives his wife, Elizabeth, "one-third of my movable estate, and one-half of my house; one-third of my barn and cow-house; and the service of my negro Richard, so long as she remains my widow and bears my name, during her life, after which, my youngest son, Josiah, shall have the liberty to purchase said negro, provided he shall pay to my executors so much as said boy shall be appraised by honest and judicious persons, mutually chosen by the parties.

Item: I give to my eldest son the north half of my lot on which my house stands.

Item: I give my second son, Josiah, above named, the south half of my house, and half of my home lot and half of all my lands.

Item: I give my daughter Hannah, so much in "Bills of Credit" as to be equal to seventy-four ounces of silver.

Item: I give to my grandson, Stephen Root, three pounds old tenor. I give my four surviving daughters, viz.: to Sarah, wife of John Lankton; to Martha, wife of Noah Hart; to Mary, wife of Benjamin Beckley; and to my youngest daughter, Hannah, the balance of my estate."

The Will was "exhibited by his executors, Elizabeth, his wife, and Isaac, his oldest son, in 1753, and proven."

DR. ISAAC LEE of Middletown, on the first of February 1755, deeded to Farmington "for a highway, three pieces of land; one piece butting east, with the highway that runs past the house where my son Stephen now dwells; south, on land conveyed to the Town by my brother, Josiah; north, on my own land, and from said highway one-half a mile and six rods long, and one rod wide." "This is half the lane past the burying ground." His brother, Josiah, deeded the other half for a double purpose; to lead to the meeting-house, and to the "burying-yard." The meeting-house was not built until 1756, though the land had been set apart for that purpose. "The oldest grave in the yard is 1756."

INTERIOR VIEW OF NEW BRITAIN CHURCH, BUILT 1756.

Dr. Isaac Lee and his wife Susannah, after their return from Middletown, sold for £61, 10s. 10d., and "for love, gave to their sons, Isaac and Stephen, the home they (Dr. Isaac and wife) now possess and live in, with the buildings ; also, all our real estate in Farmington, to be so divided as to make them equal, reserving to myself, during life, the equal one-half of the house and barn and the land between the meeting-house yard and the mowing pasture, with half of the orchard, and grass enough to keep a horse and cow."

7. ELIZABETH³, dau. of Stephen², 4, married Nov. 18, 1719, Thomas Root of Coventry, born July 29, 1692, died Dec. 1782. She died Nov. 30, 1726. Child:

36. I. ELIZABETH WARREN, born 1749.*

At the first annual meeting of the ecclesiastical society he was chosen "Treshurer for the year Insuing," and was prominent in the building of the first meeting-house. October, 1752, he was appointed Lieutenant of the 13th Company, or Train Band, 6th Regiment, promoted to be Captain, May, 1756, and was in the expedition to Lake George, October, 1756.

His father gave to him, "for parental love, and to his wife, Hannah Warren, half his dwelling house, to be the north half, and half of the barn, garden and orchard, with the use of the cellar." He says: "It is understood that my son, Josiah, is bound in the present expedition against our northern enemies, the French, if any accident befall him that he return no more, his wife is to have free liberty to use, occupy and enjoy the premises so long as she remains his widow." Signed, STEPHEN LEE.—Farmington Records of Lands, April 15, 1747.

Captain Lee's ratable estate in 1763 was valued at £121, and in 1776 he sold property to John Richards for £555. His house was the "largest and grandest" in the place, and was built previous to 1730.

JOSIAH LEE HOUSE, STANDING (1897.)

He was chosen, April 1, 1763, second Deacon of Dr. Smalley's Church, in place of Deacon Patterson, who "died at Havana, with one-third of his company, of yellow fever." About the commencement of the Revolutionary War, Deacon Lee moved to Lenox, Mass. In 1791, he and General Paterson, his son-in-law, moved to Binghamton, N. Y., where he died in 1797.

The name of Col. Lee, from early manhood, is prominent on the records of the Town, Church and State. No one in the town exercised more influence in shaping its civil and religious affairs, and for years they were so largely intrusted to his care that he was called "the Father of the Town." He was one of the first "School Visitors," and one of those who established a free public Library about 1775-80. He was the principal magistrate for thirty years, and administered with wisdom and impartiality. Controversies among the people were submitted to his judgment, and so great was the confidence in his intelligence, unswerving integrity and uprightness, that his decisions were universally accepted; in fact, had almost the force of law.

Col. Lee's influence was not confined to his native town, but was largely felt in the councils of the Colony and the State. With the exception of four years, he was a member of the Colonial Assembly from 1761 to 1775, was a representative in the General Assembly of the State from its first session in 1776, until 1791, with the exception of the years 1779-82. He was a member of the Assembly, which, headed by Gov. Jonathan Trumbull and other officers of the State, met in Hartford, October, 1776, and took the "Oath of Fidelity of Allegiance" to the new government of the United States, and upon the adoption of the Constitution, he was a delegate from the town of Berlin to the convention that met at Hartford, January 1788, for its ratification. During all this important epoch in our Colonial and State history, Col. Lee held relations of friendship and intimacy with the leading patriots of the day, and shared with them the labor and responsibility of moulding our civil institutions. Col. Lee was also identified with the military organizations of the Colony, receiving his commission as Captain in May, 1767, the record being: "This assembly do establish Mr. Isaac Lee, Jr. to be Captain of the 13th Co. of the Train Band, in the Sixth Regiment, in this Colony." In October, 1767, he was appointed Lieutenant-Colonel; and in March, 1775, Colonel of the Fifteenth Regiment. In 1776, at the age of 60, he resigned his commission, asking the Assembly not to reappoint him.

At the first meeting of the New Britain Ecclesiastical Society, "Isaac Lee was choyce of for Society Clark." He was for many years a Deacon in the Congregational church, and contributed largely to its prosperity, and "was one of the only two laymen of the church, who were ever heard to pray in public." In 1754, a portion of the town of Berlin became a separate society, and Col. Lee gave to it the name of New Britain, in honor of Great Britain, the home of his ancestors.

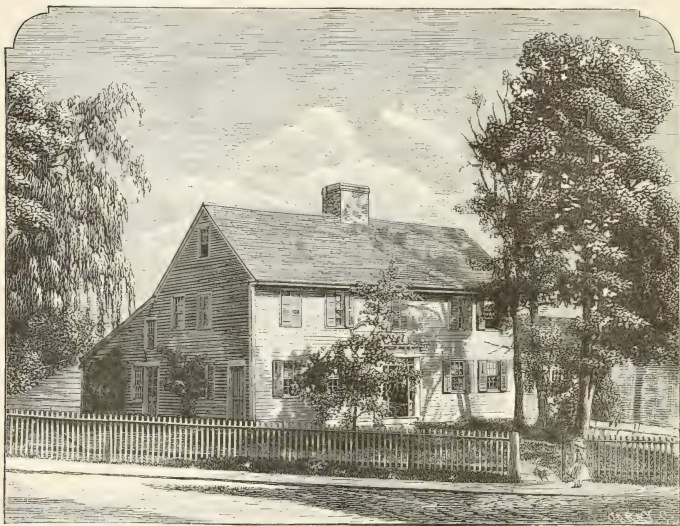

The manners of Col. Lee were courtly and dignified; his presence, tall and commanding; and his dress that of the dignitaries of Colonial times, viz.: a cocked hat, white wig, blue coat, with metal buttons, white cravat, black velvet breeches with silver knee-buckles, white silk stockings, and shoes with large silver buckles. "He was one of the two men in New Britain—Rev. Dr. Smalley being the other—who were treated with the utmost reverence. When he was approaching or passing, all hats were doffed, even by men laboring in the fields some distance from the road" and the children at play "made their manners."

In the early part of his life feats of strength, and performances showing great agility and powers of endurance were the pastimes and customs of the times. Young Lee was of herculean strength, and gained a wide reputation for his successes with the champions of the day. At Col. Lee's first marriage an attempt was made by a rejected suitor and his followers to "steal the bride" as was an old-time custom. The marriage ceremony was followed by a supper, and then by a dance in which the bride and bridegroom "led up the ball," followed often by the minister and all the guests. A party of young men intended to abduct the bride on her way to her new home, but Col. Lee was watchful, and had entered and bolted his doors, before they reached the house, but the riotous crew broke down the door, and attempted to overpower Col. Lee, while the leader should steal the bride. In the battle that followed, Col. Lee seriously wounded seven men. It is said that the custom was ever after abandoned throughout that region.

Mrs. Emma Willard made this event the subject of her celebrated poem "Stealing the Bride," which, only for its great length, we should have been glad to copy.

"He died in 1802, leaving a name of which his descendants may justly be proud, and a patrimony unusually large for that time."

General Paterson graduated at Yale in 1762, and commenced practice as a lawyer in New Britain, soon becoming distinguished in his profession. Early in 1774 he removed to Lenox, Mass., Dea. Lee going with him. From Lenox he was sent as representative to the first provincial Congress which met in Boston, Sept. 1774, and also to the Second Congress which met in 1775. While there he was a member of ten different Committees, some of them most important. In Dec. 1774, he began to prepare for the war which he foresaw was inevitable. In May, 1775, he entered the field with his regiment as its Colonel, and was stationed near Boston for its defence; then was ordered to New York, then to Canada, and afterwards joined the army of Washington crossing the Delaware with him and taking part in the battles of Trenton and Princeton. Feb. 21, 1777, he was appointed Brigadier-General, and later became Major-General. He remained in service until the close of the war, and was active in the organization of the order of the Cincinnati in 1783. About 1790, he removed to Lisle, Broome Co., N. Y., and from there was a member of U. S. Congress 1803-'05. He was over six feet in height, of nervous temperament; very active and powerful, and a noted pedestrian.

Eminent as a lawyer, respected and trusted as a citizen, he was probably one of the most distinguished of the early citizens of New Britain. He died at Lisle, July 19, 1808.—History of New Britain.

sequently studied medicine with Dr. Todd of Hartford; was "Assistant Physician" in the "Retreat for the Insane" there; afterwards, when 26 years old, became Superintendent and Physician of the "McLean Asylum," Charlestown, Mass. He was distinguished for the successful substitution of the mild for the severe treatment of the insane. He was taken sick while on a visit to his friend, Dr. Woodward of the "Massachusetts Hospital" at Worcester, and died Oct. 29, 1836, aged 28, and was buried at Mt. Auburn. His widow married Rev. Joseph S. Gallagher of Bloomfield, N. J.

The trustees of the McLean Asylum, in resolutions passed at a special meeting after his death, speak of "his remarkable devotion to the pursuit in which he had engaged, the elevation of his views, and the propriety of the means by which he sought to attain the most worthy objects."

We quote from the Hartford Courant of Nov. 1836. "Dr. Lee was the first to introduce religious exercises among the insane, and the experiment was attended with the happiest results. He was cut off in the midst of a bright career of usefulness, but not until he had matured the plan which has done so much for the sons and daughters of affliction."

Gen. Kirby Smith graduated at West Point in 1845, and in the Mexican war was twice brevetted for gallantry; was assistant Professor of Mathematics at West Point, 1849-'52; was engaged with the Mexican boundary survey, and was wounded in 1859. After the secession of Florida he resigned his commission in the U. S. army, and was appointed Lieut-Col. of Cavalry in the Confederate army. He was rapidly promoted, and in Feb. 1863, as Lieutenant-General was assigned to the command of the trans-Mississippi department, and commissioned to organize a government, which he did. He was the last commander in the Confederate army to surrender.

After the close of the war he was in succession, President of the Atlantic and Pacific Telegraph Co.; President of the Western Military Academy; Chancellor of the University of Nashville, and Professor of Mathematics in the University at Sewanee, Tenn., where he died, March 28, 1893.

A man of great force of character, executive ability, and rare honesty, he had also the gentler traits which are united to strength and bravery. Being severely wounded at the battle of Bull Run he was carried to Lynchburg, and was there in the care of Miss Selden, whose skill and devotion restored him to health. He became devotedly attached to her, and soon after his recovery they were married. Their life is said to have been exceptionally happy.

"Mr. Lee was one of the first to enter the manufacturing business in the town of New Britain. He was connected with various other institutions and business pursuits, and for a number of years was the leading man of the town. He was decidedly a public spirited man, and took a lively interest in the affairs of the town and State. He filled many important offices in the gift of his town, serving in the Legislature, and being the first Postmaster in the (then) town of Berlin, receiving his commission from President John Quincy Adams. He was an intense reader, and one who remembered everything he read; very few men of to-day possess a more general knowledge of every day life than did he. When quite young he was often consulted on legal matters, and rendered his friends many a valuable service by drawing up documents of a legal nature, free of charge. He was a very liberal man and contributed largely, in his time, to all the churches. Mr. Lee had taken much interest in the family history—was a vice-president of the 'Lee Association' at the first gathering in 1884, and was the oldest man present. He was buried at New Britain with Masonic honors, being one of the oldest Masons in the State."

While journeying in the Northwest in 1857, Mr. Lee chanced to be in St. Paul when Miss Abigail Gardner, one of the survivors of the Spirit Lake massacre, was returned from her captivity among the Indians, and he was present when she was formally delivered to the Governor of Minnesota by the friendly Indians who had rescued her. At the request of Gov. Medary, Mr. Lee escorted Miss Gardner to her friends at Fort Dodge, and afterwards interested himself in her behalf. During many years she wrote him from time to time, and always with expressions of deepest gratitude.

In accordance with the wishes of the family, the following notice of Mr. Lee has been prepared by Mr. Leonard Lee:

"Mr. Lee was a well known and successful business man of New York. He came of an historic Connecticut family, identified with the very beginning of the colony. His first business experience was in Troy, N. Y., as a clerk, and a few years later he entered a wholesale dry goods house in New York. In 1845, he founded the importing and jobbing firm of 'Lee & Case,' subsequently the house was changed to 'Wm. H. Lee & Co.,' and finally to 'Lee, Tweedy & Co.,' which remains undisturbed by his death, two of his sons being members of the firm. He was identified with the dry goods trade more than fifty years, and for at least half that time was among the most prominent merchants of the metropolis. He fairly won a large fortune by honorable business ability and enterprise, to which he added largely by judicious investments in real estate."—Obituary.

He was one of the charter members of the Union League Club, an active member of the Chamber of Commerce, and of the Sons of the Revolution. Not only was he a shrewd and successful merchant, but a patriotic citizen, and rendered efficient aid to the city authorities during the civil war by his influence, and in sustaining the enlistment of colored troops, when the prejudice of a certain element of the city was threatening violence, and this, too, in view of threatened detriment to his own business interests.

During his metropolitan residence of half a century, Mr. Lee was always noted for public spirit in patriotic movements and in projects for local improvements. His views on municipal questions were frequently expressed through the city press, and often over his own signature. He advocated with ability the adoption of many changes and improvements for the interest of the city, the wisdom of which was proved by after experience, and all tending to "make New York become the city of the future of this continent."

"There is not one among the business men of New York who has a better right than Mr. Wm. H. Lee to regard with satisfaction his career as a metropolitan merchant, nor is there one whose record as a promoter of charitable and literary enterprise can be quoted by his fellow citizens with greater pride than his."

"Notwithstanding his varied business engagements, he found time to interest himself in biographical and genealogical studies, in the course of which he prepared several papers and two admirable addresses, which were delivered before the Historical Society, on Elihu Burritt, a townsman, and Gen. Paterson, a Revolutionary hero, and a kinsman—papers which are highly prized as historic documents.

"The aid which he rendered Miss Sarah Marsh Lee in the preparation and publication of 'John Lee and his Descendants,' in 1878 was most efficient and highly valued. In 1876, at his own expense, he erected in the Farmington Cemetery an imposing and beautiful monument of Scotch Granite, to the memory of John Lee, the ancestor of our family, with which was incorporated the original headstone, and on which was inscribed the date of his death in 1690. He also made valuable contributions to the New Britain Institute of his native town, of which he was a member.

"Although deeply involved in business pursuits, Mr. Lee was fond of domestic life and travel, and was noted for hospitality to his friends—crossed the ocean several times for business or pleasure, and traveled extensively in Europe with his family.

"Hartford was for several years his summer residence, and having for sometime been in declining health, and having also retired from active business, he removed from his Fifth Avenue residence in New York, in 1893, to make Hartford his future home. His health continued to decline, until he passed away, April 9, 1895.

"His funeral was held in St. Thomas church, New York, of which he had been for many years a warden, and his remains were deposited in Greenwood Cemetery."

- 275. IV. MYRA, born Nov. 20, 1862 ; m. Kirke Hart Fields.

Mr. Howard came to this country with his father about 1830, settling in Ann Arbor, Mich. In 1847 he removed to Hartford and organized the Merchant's Insurance Co. "When the great St. Louis fire of 1849 fell heavily upon Insurance companies it was seriously proposed to let them die as failures. Mr. Howard resisted this idea, and at his own request he braved the cholera in St. Louis and proceeded to settle the losses. His appearance there with money inspired the people with great confidence in Hartford insurance."

He took an active part in politics from early manhood, and was called "the Father of the Republican party" in Hartford, and was the first Internal Revenue Collector in Connecticut, and devised the system for collections.

Mr. Howard's personal life was deserving the highest admiration. He was controlled by a genuine sense of honor. He was an attendant of the Asylum Hill Congregational church, and his life was an uninterrupted expression of Christian courtesy and principle. His example has always been on the side of right.

DESCENDANTS OF THOMAS,

Farmington. 2d Gen.

5. THOMAS, son of John¹, and Mary (Hart) Lee born at Farmington, August 1671, married, first, Lydia Benton, of Hartford. They had twin children who died in infancy and the mother died soon after—about 1700. He married second, Feb. 11, 1707, Mary Camp of Hartford. She died March 22, 1722; married third, Elizabeth Hubbard who died March 23, 1733; married fourth, Widow Martha Howard of Windsor. He “owned the covenant” July 11, 1708.

In 1697, it was voted that he and four others have “liberty to build them a seat over the short girt at y^e easterly end of y^e gallery, on the condition that they do not damnify the other seats in the meeting-house.”

He was a mason by trade, and a Sergeant in the Farmington Train Band, by which title he is alluded to in the public records. He was appointed Constable by the General Court, an office of note at that time, and considered as the “right arm of the law.” By the many transfers found on record, it is evident that he was an extensive land holder in Farmington, New Britain, Southington, Bristol and Avon. He died Sept. 26, 1740.

Administration was granted Dec. 2, 1740 on the “estate of Sergeant Thomas Lee” to his eldest son Jared, with his brother

Joseph as bondsman in the sum of £500. The value of his estate, as appraised by "Isaac Cowles, John Hart, and John Judd, under oath as the law directs," was £917-10-2. These figures did not include the various sums or items previously given to his children. His wardrobe was appraised at £24-00-2. Among the items were "Broadcloth coat, £7-10," "old broadcloth coat, £2-10." "Plain cloth coat 10s." "Loose coat £2." "Leather Breeches £1-05." "Hollon Shirt £1-07." "Two woollen shirts £2." "Black worsted stockings 12s." The family bedding amounted to £47-01. Included in the table ware, "13lbs good pewter £7-00, 7 pewter plates £1-06, 2, do. do. £1-05. 2 pewter porringers 4s." His whole real estate amounted to £558, in ten different parcels, among which were "one lot over against Waterbury." "11 acres at ye sawmill." His home lot was valued at £200. He had deeded 250 acres to his sons previous to his decease. "April 10, 1745, Jared Lee, admr. of the estate of Sergt. Thomas Lee exhibited his account: Paid indebtedness, £69-19-1; collected debts £35-02-6." Children:

6. LYDIA dau. of Thomas 5, and Mary (Camp) Lee, born June 22, 1708, baptized July 11, 1708, married Feb. 2, 1738, Samuel Norton. He died Aug. 31, 1745, at Cape Breton, on the expedition against Louisburg; married, second, Oct. 1747, Lieut. Ebenezer Orvis. He died June 1776, aged 71. She died Sept. 2, 1786, aged 78.

“Jan. 29, 1776, at a meeting of y^e committee of inspection, Lydia Orvis and others, were complained of for using India Tea, contrary to y^e Continental Association. At y^e same time Lieut. Ebenezer Orvis in a contemptuous manner, intruded upon y^e committee, and, unimpeached, declared that he had drank India Tea contrary to y^e association, and that he did it with a view that he might have it to tell of.”

“March 11, 1776, y^e committee voted, That, Lieut. Ebenezer Orvis be advertised in y^e Gazette as an enemy to his country; also, voted, That, Mrs. Lydia Orvis (and others), be advertised as enemies to their country; but action was deferred till next meeting of y^e committee.”

“April 22, 1776, Lieut. Ebenezer Orvis * * * appeared before y^e committee, and presented a confession for publication wh. was satisfactory.”

 Dea. Seth Lee was one of the above committee.

Southington. 3d Gen.

8. CAPT. JARED, son of Thomas 5, and Mary (Camp) Lee, born at Farmington, Nov. 12, 1711,* married, first, Rhoda, dau. of Lieut. John and Rachel Judd and great-granddaughter of Dea. Thomas Judd, an early settler of Farmington. She died Feb. 12, 1771, by her clothes taking fire. "Dyed in the evening aboute 10 o'clock in y^e 63rd year of her age, which will be completed June y^e 10th day old style." A full account of the accident was published in the "Conn. Courant" Feb. 19, 1771, to be found at the Historical Society's rooms, Hartford. Married second, Elizabeth Hall, Sept. 14, 1775.

He went to Southington parish to reside about 1734, on land deeded to him by his father Thomas. It may interest some of his descendants to note the verbosity of language in ancient deeds, of which the following is an extract :

"Know all men by these presents, that I, Thomas Lee of Farmington in the Colony of Conn. in New England, for consideration of Sixty pounds in use as money, received to my full satisfaction of my son Jared Lee * * * together with my parental love and good affection which I have and do bear to him, my son, y^e s^d Jared Lee, do fully, freely, broadly and absolutely, give, grant, bargain, sell, assign, pass over and consign unto him, y^e s^d Jared Lee, his heirs and assigns forever, a certain quantity of land, lying and being situated within y^e bounds of y^e s^d township of Farmington, it being six-sevenths parts of y^e 43 lott in number for y^e division of land, lying southward from y^e reserved land in s^d Farmington, between y^e mountains, and said lott was layed on y^e right of my father John Lee, senior, formerly of Farmington, deceased, and lyeth in breadth to north and south 48 rods and one-half rod, the whole lott containing by estimation, 178 acres and six sevenths parts thereof which is by these presents granted containing one hundred and fifty-two and one-half acres, be the same more or less, the whole lott bounded as followeth viz.: East and west with highway, north on land laid out on y^e right of Left. John Judd, and south with land layed out on the right of Jonathan Smith, to have and to hold y^e above granted and bargained premises, one half by purchase, the other half by gift, as part of portion of me unto him y^e s^d Jared Lee, his heirs and assigns to his only and proper use, benefit and behoof forever * * * and do hereby covenant with y^e s^d Jared Lee his heirs and assigns in manner following: * *

[COVENANT.]

In witness, I, y^e s^d Thomas Lee, have hereunto set my hand and seal, this seventeenth day of September in y^e seventh year of y^e reign of our Sovereign Lord, George y^e second, of Great Britain y^e King, Anno Domini 1733.

Signed, sealed and delivered

JOHN HOOKER,
WILLIAM ORVIS.

THOMAS LEE,"

The land conveyed included a large portion of the present borough of Southington.

*The year of his birth has usually been published as 1712, but this is an error, as found by his son Seth Lee's records, and also by his tombstone.

He was "admitted to full communion" May 7, 1736, and his wife Rhoda to the same, June 12, 1737.

He appears to have assumed a prominent position at an early day. In 1743 he was commissioned as Ensign, and in 1748 as "Captain of 2nd Company;" chosen deacon of the church March 17, 1751, a position which he held till his death in 1780; was "prominent in all church affairs," and, though sometimes considered unyielding, and perhaps at times a little obstinate, he seemed to be usually found on the winning side in all controversies.

Nov. 12, 1752, on his forty-first birthday, he deeds to the society, "for forty pounds money, a parsell of land containinge one acre, to sit a meeting house upon;" in another deed of same date, "for twelve pounds old tenor money, a strip of land on which to build Sabbath Housen." The church was completed in 1757. The interior is well represented by a cut of the New Britain church. (See page 171.)

In 1751, he was appointed by the General Court, a Justice of the Peace for the parish of Southington, the first for the parish, an office which he held continuously till May 1, 1780. A portion of his dockets are still in existence, and in possession of a great grandson, Leonard Lee, of Kenosha, Wis., (1897). He was a Representative to the General Court 1754-60-61. At a meeting called in 1779, to take steps to organize the town of Southington, "Jared Lee, Esq., was made Moderator as a tribute of respect, being the most prominent man in the town."—Town Records.

Besides his official business, he was engaged in farming, merchandising and keeping a hotel.

He is represented as tall and dignified, dressed in colonial style, with three cornered hat, and presented a figure commanding respect, and whom the children regarded with awe. He filled so many positions of trust that the people called him "all Southington." It was also said that he was "a very homely and a very silent man." He died on Wednesday, Aug. 2, 1780.

"The offices which he sustained as a minister of justice, deacon, a representative of the town, a member of society, and head of a family, he filled with honor, and supported with the character of a Christian." (Monument, Oak Hill Cemetery.)

The greater portion of his estate, was disposed of by will, dated Feb. 28, 1780, of which the preliminary was as follows :

"In the name of God, Amen. I, Jared Lee, of Southington, in the County of Hartford, in the State of Connecticut, this 28th day of February, A.D., 1780, being weak in body, but of perfect mind and memory, thanks be to God, therefor, and calling to mind the mortality of my body, and knowing that it is appointed for all men once to die, do make and ordain this my last Will and Testament, that is to say, principally and first of all, I give and recommend my soul into the hands of God, who gave it, and for my body I recommend it to the earth, to be buried in a christian like and decent manner, at the discretion of my executors, nothing doubting, but at the general resurrection, I shall receive the same again, by the mighty power of God, and as touching such worldly estate wherewith it has pleased God to bless me, in this life, I give, bequeath and dispose of the same, in manner following:" He then directs payment of debts, funeral expenses, &c.

After providing for the various members of his family, he directs, "all the remainder of my estate to be equally divided among my sons." Amount of the "remainder" appearing on record, was £492-19-9. His sons, Seth and Timothy were executors. "Estate fully settled and recorded Feb. 19, 1792." Children :

was also a teacher of music. A hand-made singing book of his is still in existence, and in possession of a great-grandson, Hon. William Wallace Lee of Meriden, (1897,) on the cover of which is written in a bold and elegant hand: "Thomas Lee. His Singing Book. Anno Domini 1752." His descendants have inherited more than an average talent for vocal music. His name is found on the pay-rolls of the French war as Fourth Corporal, enlisted April 6, 1758, served 8 weeks, 5 days, paid £15-10-9½, Capt. Jonathan Lattimore's Co., Col. Eleazer Fitch's Regiment. He was an ardent patriot during the Revolutionary War. Being too old to join the army himself, he sent two sons, and melted the leaden weights of his clock to furnish bullets. He died on Jan. 11, 1806. His wife died several years previous. Children :

Farmington, Canaan; Burford Gore, Ont. 3d Gen.

15. DR. EBENEZER, son of Thomas 5, and Elizabeth (Hubbard) Lee, third wife of his father, born at Farmington Oct. 29, 1727, married June 20, 1750, Abigail Bull, niece and adopted dau. of Dr. Jonathan Bull of Hartford. She was the fourth generation from Capt. Thomas Bull, who came to New England in 1635, and soon after came to Hartford. His lot was in the south part of the town plot. Capt. Thomas 2, Martin 3, Abigail 4.

He studied medicine with Dr. Bull, and was a successful physician at Farmington,—“a man firm in his convictions of duty.”

There is a prevalent opinion among some of his descendants that he was born at Canaan, but this is evidently an error. First, his parents never lived at Canaan, but lived and died at Farmington. Second, when left an orphan at the age of 13, his elder brother Joseph, was appointed his guardian, “Dec. 10, 1741,” with Jared as bondsman in £200, and all described as of Farmington, in the probate records, to be seen in Hartford. Third, two infants of his, which died in 1753 and 1756, were buried in Farmington. Fourth, land records describe him, in various transactions, as of Farmington as late as April 12, 1772, and local histories mention him as a successful physician, as late as 1777. Fifth, Canaan was not settled till 1754, the first white man there being Isaac Lawrence. Sixth, his name first appears on the Canaan land records in 1777. He sold his homestead in 1781, and moved away.

At the outbreak of the Revolutionary war, Dr. Lee remained firm in his loyalty to the crown, conscientiously believing that the colonies had no just cause for declaring themselves independent of the mother country, but declined to take any action against his countrymen.

After the close of the war, he removed to Canada. His son, William Hooker, removed with the family, and from him are descended most of the Canadian Lees of this branch. Ebenezer, Jr., joined the Continental Army. Dr. Lee died suddenly from rheumatism, with which he had long been afflicted, May 9, 1811, aged 84. At the time of his death he and his son, William Hooker, were living on adjoining farms, in a locality then known as Burford Gore, about eight miles south from Brantford, Ontario. His wife died January 11, 1812, aged 84. Their graves may be seen in Oakland, a rural cemetery in the vicinity, indicated by "two twin oaks," (1896). Children :

FIFTH GENERATION.

Farmington; Ludlow, Vt. 4th Gen.

21. DEACON SETH, son of Jared 8, and Rhoda (Judd) Lee, born March 31, 1736, married Sept. 3, 1767, Sarah dau. of Rev. Jonathan Ingersoll, of Ridgefield, Conn., born Oct. 28, 1741. She died Sunday, July 15, 1770, buried in the family lot, Farmington; married, second, Sept. 9, 1771, Joanna, dau. of Daniel Johnson, Esq., of Wallingford, Conn., born April 4, 1743. She died at Lewis, N. Y., Sept. 3, 1818, aged 75. On her tombstone is the following:

"All you that read with little care,
And go away and leave me here;
Don't you forget that you must die,
And be entombed as well as I."

He graduated at Yale College, 1769. His diploma, written in Latin, is still in existence (1897), dated, "Die Septembris Duodecimo, MDCCCLIX," and signed "Thomas Clap, Pres't." It is in possession of Miss Ella E. Lee, a great-granddaughter, living at Lewis, Essex County, N. Y. He served as tutor there four years. "One class gave him a gold ring as a token of respect," which is still in existence, (1897.) Another class gave him a "morning gown," of the richest goods of the day, besides other testimonials of respect. He afterwards studied theology with Rev. Dr. Bellamy, and was licensed to preach; "supplied" several pulpits, and received several "calls," but does not seem to have ever accepted a charge. He also studied medicine, and his name is found on the State records of the Revolutionary war, as having received pay for hospital services. "Seth Lee, Farmington, allowed £3-10-8½, July 26, 1775."

His father gave him a "five acre lot in Farmington 25 rods north of the meeting-house;" there he "kept tavern" and an apothecary's store. In a Hartford paper dated May 16, 1774, he advertises "a neat and general assortment of drugs and medicines." In 1788-90, he deeds to his brother Timothy and others, land in Southington, which he had inherited from his father's estate, and in 1795 advertises for sale, "A house lot about 20 rods north of the meeting-house in Farmington, containing near four acres of excellent land, with dwelling house and barn with other out-houses, and orchard of about 70 trees of the best fruit,—the house 46x20 and a kitchen 28x30 feet, with a cellar under the whole, well accommodated for tavern, merchant or tradesman." Jan. 18, 1796, he advertises an auction of various articles, and Feb. 26, 1796 deeds to John and Chauncey Deming, "four acres containing house and barn, located on west side of the street, extending from highway to Farmington River," and June 2 of the same year took his departure for Ludlow, Vt., where he located upon land of which he was the original owner, having obtained the grant from Benning Wentworth, the British Governor of New Hampshire.

Among other grants found on the records of Ludlow, Vt., under date of Sept. 16, 1761, and subject to certain conditions of settlement, are the following: Jared Lee, Esq., Seth Lee, Amos Lee, Timothy Lee, Joseph Lee, William Lee and others of Farmington, Conn.—tracts of 500 acres each.

First sale recorded,—Eber Gilbert of Hamden, New Haven Co., Conn., to Seth Lee, "One half of lot * * * on west side of s^d Lot, &c.," for £150, June 13, 1795. Joseph Crary surveys for "Dea. Seth Lee, 173 acres on his own original right," Nov. 6, 1790. Also surveyed by the same, Sept. 27, 1795, 130 acres "on his own original right." Various transfers both to, and from him are found on record.

He used here his influence and talents to establish a religious and moral state of society. He was interested in genealogy and for many years kept records, not only of the Lee family, but of the Hart and Judd families and also of the Ingersoll and Johnson families from which his first and second wives were descended. These records, commencing in 1761 and continued till his death, are still in existence in a dilapidated form in the possession of the heirs of William H. Lee of New York, and have furnished data which could not have been otherwise obtained. He died at Ludlow, Vt., Feb. 17, 1803. Children:

22. AMOS, son of Jared 8, and Rhoda (Judd) Lee, born July 30, 1738, married May 25, 1765, Anna, dau. of Dea. John Camp, of Wethersfield, born Dec. 11, 1742. She died Dec. 11, 1815. The records name her "Hannah," but "mis-baptized and called Anna." He was a miller and farmer, and later in life, a weaver. Soon after the Revolutionary war, he sold his farm and mill, receiving therefor Continental currency, which afterwards proved worthless. May 4, 1781, he deeds to Timothy, his brother, land inherited from his father's estate, in Southington, and names himself as of Simsbury. During the French war, he served on one expedition to Canada, enlisting April 23, 1759—Capt. Joel Clark, 2d Conn. Reg't, and was drafted into the Revolutionary army on three different occasions, but of the nature of his military operations we have no records.

In 1791, he removed with his family to Whitesboro, Oneida County, N. Y., and subsequently to Sangerfield, in the same county, then an almost unbroken wilderness of heavy timber. He died at Canistota, Oneida County, N. Y., March 5, 1828, aged 90 years. Children :

Southington. 4th Gen.

23. TIMOTHY, son of Jared 8, and Rhoda (Judd) Lee, born Nov. 26, 1740, married, first, April 23, 1772, Lucy Camp, dau. of Dea. John Camp, of Wethersfield, and sister to Anna, wife of his brother Amos, born March 27, 1749. She died July 13, 1793, from tetanus, the effect of stepping upon a nail, which penetrated her foot, during the building of a new house—the Dr.

Hart house, of Southington. He married, second, Dec. 21, 1794, Esther Stanley, widow of Judah Stanley, a soldier of the Revolution. She died July 22, 1822.

He remained in his father's service ten years after becoming 21, having the principal charge of his father's business. He was frequently elected to positions of honor and trust, and like his grandfather and great-grandfather, held the office of constable, which was still an office of importance.

At the time of the Lexington alarm he was one of the "minute men" who marched for Boston on short notice, and remained during the summer. He was again in service in and about New York in the fall of 1776, and was absent when his daughter Lucy was born, Sept. 18. After his father's death he succeeded to the homestead and to his father's business of farming, merchandizing and hotel keeping. Himself and both wives were members of the Congregational Church. He died Oct. 1, 1813, and was buried in Oak Hill Cemetery. His will was dated March 20, 1807, with a codicil June 11, 1810. After having disposed of £1000 to his daughters and in various other bequests, he divides the remainder of his estate among his sons. Inventory amounted to $22,762.43½ in which was included 356 acres of land in and near Southington. Children :

24. COL. NOAH, born Oct. 15, 1745,* married 1770, Dorcas, dau. of James and Abigail (Gridley) Bird. He enlisted as a soldier April 2, 1761, for the campaign of that year in the French war—Capt. Samuel Elmore's Co., 9th Conn. Reg't—Col. Nathan

*Traditions among some of the descendants of Col. Noah do not fully harmonize with other traditions, but it is hoped that future discoveries among old records may reveal more concerning his early life. In his military career there is no discrepancy.

Whittlesey of Farmington in command. His services were rendered about Crown Point and northern New York; mustered out Nov. 29, 1761; service, thirty-three weeks and six days; paid, £16-11-5. He enlisted again March 15, 1762, under the same officers for the ill-fated Havana expedition, in which most of the regiment died of yellow fever. Mustered out Dec. 4, 1762, service, thirty-seven weeks and six days; paid, £18-18-6¾.

In the spring of 1766 he made an extensive purchase of land at Castleton, Vt. Arriving there in June of that year he made some preliminary improvements, and spent the following winter in a log hut constructed with his own hands, with no company but the red men.

On the breaking out of the Revolutionary War he took an active part in the military operations at, and about Ticonderoga, in conjunction with Col. Ethan Allen, raising a company of "Green Mountain Boys" at his own expense; which was afterwards refunded to him in continental currency, worth two and a half cents on the dollar. He soon after enlisted into the Continental army, serving much of his time under Washington—was commissioned Captain, June 9, 1777. He continued in the army till the close of the war in 1783, participating in the battles of Brandywine, Trenton, Germantown and Monmouth, besides many others; was also at the siege of Yorktown, and surrender of Lord Cornwallis, and after the close of the war was promoted Colonel of Militia in Vermont. He became a member of the Cincinnati Society of Connecticut. For other events of his life see "Lee Family Gathering," by Hon. Wm. W. Lee, Meriden, Conn., pp. 55 and 56. He became one of the prominent citizens of Castleton, and through his efforts and liberality was founded the academy of that place. The Masonic lodge honored him by adopting his name. His wife died March 5, 1830. He died May 5, 1840. Their marble monuments may be seen in the Castleton cemetery. Children:

She united with the church at Farmington, June, 1796, died May 6, 1798. Her headstone may be seen on the Lee family burial lot in the old cemetery. He married, second, Aug. 11, 1799, Fanny Curtiss of Northington, (now Avon,) born Dec. 29, 1773. He was a tin worker, and also a teacher of vocal music; moved to Sheffield, Mass., in 1822, and engaged in farming; died Feb. 27, 1833, aged 74. His wife died Dec. 6, 1851, aged 78. His son Thomas says of him: "He was one of a company who marched from Farmington to capture Burgoyne in the Revolutionary War. They arrived at the seat of war the day after the surrender. Some of the brass cannon which were captured were sent to Farmington for safe keeping, that town being thoroughly loyal, and he was one of the guard placed over them. He was also in service under General Putnam at Horse Neck, now Greenwich, and was sent home sick." He applied for a pension under the act of 1832, but died before his application was acted upon. 42. DAVID, son of Thomas 12, the twin, and Isabel (Sedge-wick) Lee, born Dec. 16, 1763, married 1789, Elizabeth, dau. of Andrew (a soldier of the Revolution), and Mabel (Fox) Hayes, of Turkey Hills, now Granby, where he then resided. She died May 27, 1815, aged 45. He was a soldier of the Revolution, in the 2d Reg't, of the Conn. line, in the Continental army, and in service in the Northern department of New York, stood guard over Maj. Andre, when a prisoner, was also in service in New Jersey. A letter of his, written from the army, is still in possession of a grandson, Wm. Wallace Lee, of Meriden, Conn, (1897). A part of it reads as follows :

“HACKENSACK, Aug. 24, 1780.

In Col. Butler's Regiment.

* * * * As for sending anyone to take my place, I do not want to have you, * * * * . This day I received your letters. I would have you send me some shoes, and some breeches, and one shirt before winter.”

In 1801, he removed to Pleasant Valley District, Barkhamsted, where, for 40 years he kept the toll-gate, on the Farmington River Turnpike. He was a blacksmith by trade. His health was greatly impaired while in the army, which he never fully recovered—was a pensioner later in life. His second wife was widow Fanny (Chidsey) Kilbourn. She died March 13, 1861, aged 72. 47. EBENEZER, JR., son of Dr. Ebenezer 15, and Abigail (Bull) Lee, born Jan. 7, 1757, married, first, May 14, 1786, Martha Parsons, of Scotch descent, born April 23, 1758. She died Dec. 17, 1828. He married, second, Anna Hyde, Sept. 18, 1836. He was a soldier of the Revolutionary War—was first in Capt. Noadiah Hooker's Co., of Farmington, and served some time in 1775-6, in and around Boston—was wounded in the hand at the battle of Bunker Hill. He afterwards enlisted for the war, and served to the close, and held the rank of Sergeant, a large share of his service being spent in the vicinity of New York, Long Island and New Jersey. He received a pension under the act of 1818.

Some years after the war, he removed to Penn., and from there to Granby, Oswego County, N. Y. A descendant says of him :

"A man of medium size, high, broad forehead, prominent over the eyes, rather large nose, clear, bright blue eyes, very straight and light of step, had a wonderful sense of order, and was a Yankee in the best sense of the word—joined the Methodist Church, at Fulton, N. Y., not many years before he died, and believed in universal salvation. In his older years, he retained a very youthful appearance, his hair being but slightly frosted. He carried a cane under his arm." He died Oct. 29, 1837, aged 80 years. Children :

49. DR. WILLIAM HOOKER, son of Dr. Ebenezer 15, and Abigail (Bull) Lee, born in Connecticut, Feb. 10, 1761; married in 1787, Phebe Davis, born in Reading, Conn. "She was the dau. of Mr. — Davis, who at the Anglo-American Revolution took up arms in favor of England,—was captured and imprisoned three years, and then escaped to Canada." William Hooker was a much esteemed physician. After the Revolutionary War, he resided, as will be seen by the birth of his children, in various places,—in Vermont, New York, and Pennsylvania, and ultimately removed to Canada about 1796, and settled in Niagara District, practicing at Chippewa.

He bought two adjoining farms in Oakland township, a few miles south from Brantford, Ont., July 8, 1809. This purchase was the third transfer from the Crown in 1802, and described as "Lot 8—4th concession." One farm was occupied by himself and the other by his parents. After the death of his father they were sold to Jacob Keifer, Feb. 7, 1812. He then removed to Southwold, London District—now County of Elgin—where were residing American relatives. "Dr. Lee visited his native State, Connecticut, in 1828. He rode from Southwold, Ont. on horse-back, and spent the winter among relatives and friends. On his return in March, 1829, when only four miles from home, his horse slipped and fell upon him, causing such injuries that he lived but eight days."

The records of Litchfield County, Conn., show that he and his brother, Ebenezer, Jr., from N. Y., joined in a deed conveying land during that winter, which is supposed to have been a part of the parental estate which had, for many years, remained unsold. He died March 30, 1829, aged 68. His wife afterwards lived in London, Ont., where she died Dec. 15, 1853, aged 82, and was buried in the Church of England cemetery. Children :

Ephraim Pratt, "a soldier of Revolutionary fame, who distinguished himself at Bunker Hill." She was born at Gardner, Mass., Nov. 1, 1796. "Timothy went with his father's family, to Ludlow, Vt., in 1796, where he remained till 1807, when, at the age of 18, he went to the State of New York, on the west border of Lake Champlain, in the town of Lewis, Essex Co., where he commenced farming. The country was new and heavily timbered, and it was no easy task to reduce the forest and bring it to a state of cultivation, and nothing but indomitable perseverance and energy could have wrought the change, which, in time, appeared in that homestead." He was a captain in the militia, in the war of 1812-15—was at work in the harvest field at the time of the battle of Plattsburg; at the sound of cannon, he dropped his cradle and rushed to the battle—was also in various other service. He afterwards drew a pension for his services. He died Dec. 25, 1870, aged 81 years. His wife also died same day. (?) Children :

her family to do the same. For many years, she was an active and efficient member of the Presbyterian church. She died at Manlius, Nov. 4, 1861, aged 74.

At the age of 13, he tolled the bell in his native town of Southington, on the occasion of the death of Washington. He was a carpenter by trade—traveled over many of the Southern States, in 1812-14. In 1826, he moved with his family to Manlius, Onondaga Co., N. Y., and engaged extensively in farming the following year, which he continued till 1857, when he retired. He was a man of extensive reading, and often elected to positions of public trust. During several of his later years, he found a home with his youngest son, Francis, at Clinton, Iowa, and though living to a great age, he maintained his vigor, both physical and mental, to a remarkable degree. He died April 1, 1877, aged 91 years, and was buried at Manlius, N. Y. "As the sun disappeared beyond the hills, his spirit left us—he sank to his rest as peacefully as the infant sinks to sleep in its mother's arms," so read the message. It is a coincidence that he took possession of his farm, at Manlius, N. Y., April 1, 1827—sold and gave possession, April 1, 1857, and died April 1, 1877. He was one of ten brothers and sisters, all of whom except himself, lived, died and were buried in Southington. He was the last survivor of the family and the eldest at his decease, except one sister, who died at the age of 92. Children :

147. DR. HIRAM DAVIS, son of Dr. William Hooker 49, and Phebe (Davis) Lee, born Nov. 20, 1791, near Albany, N. Y., married 1818, Anne Terry, (dau. of Parshall Terry and Rhoda Skinner, "a United Empire loyalist of Erie District, and member of the first Parliament of Canada;," "was a Lieutenant in the Butler Rangers in the Revolutionary War, and fought on the King's side from 1776 to 1781, when they were disbanded.")

Dr. Lee was a physician of high standing. While a medical student, he acted as surgeon to the British troops in the Anglo-American War of 1812-15, at Chippewa and Lundy's Lane; afterwards, practiced medicine at Southwold, Chippewa, Niagara and London. "At the latter place, he was the Government medical officer. He died Oct. 29, 1847, during an epidemic of typhus fever, owing to his indefatigable exertions to attend his patients most carefully. He was a man of talent, and esteemed for his unblemished and upright character.

"As a mark of respect, the shops in London were closed during his funeral. A long and steady practice in this part of the upper Provinces gave him an acquaintance with all classes, in whose homes he was a welcome visitor. His offerings of service were free to many of his poorer patients. Compassion was a prominent trait in his character."—Extract from the "Church Newspaper," October, 1847, London, Ont.

"In another column will be found the obituary of an able and intrepid physican, Dr. Lee, whose self-sacrifice on the altar of duty, well deserves to be classed in the ranks of martyrdom. The bereavement which society at large suffers, from the loss of such a man as Dr. Lee, is one of the most afflicting features of this fearful disease, which has been brought into the province by the late unhealthy immigration."

Anne Ferry, the widow of Dr. Lee, after his death, lived at Byron. "She was a pious and charitable lady, and the chief contributor towards the building of an Episcopal Church, in that village. At the suggestion of Bishop Cronyn, it was called St. Anne, out of respect to Mrs. Lee." She died at Laporte, Ind., while on a visit to her daughter, Mrs. Daly, Dec. 21, 1874, and was buried there. 148. JOHN, son of Dr. William Hooker 49, and Phebe (Davis) Lee, born at DeWain's Bush, N. Y., Aug. 25, 1793, married Mary Caughell, of Yarmouth, Ont., in 1817. He went to Canada with his parents when a child. During the Canadian Rebellion, in 1836-7, "he was arrayed against the government on the rebel side, which was under the leadership of Wm. Lyon McKenzie, and against his brothers, who were Tory sympathizers"—was arrested and imprisoned with others at London, Ont., some of whom were convicted of treason and executed. He was never brought to trial, but was liberated and restored to citizenship.

"It is a matter of record, that questions tending towards relief, which were agitated at that time, were, later, incorporated into the demands made by the people for reforms in governmental affairs, and that the liberal form of government, now enjoyed throughout the Dominion is, in a measure, largely due to their efforts." He died at Westminster, Ont., Sept. 25, 1857. His wife died Jan. 2, 1868. Children:

156. ABIGAIL, dau. of Dr. William Hooker 49, and Phebe (Davis) Lee, born at Thorold, Ont., March 12, 1805, married, Lawrence Lawrason, about 1832. "A merchant, Justice of the Peace, and member of Parliament; later, held the office of Stipendiary Police Justice for London," died there 1881. She died there Sept. 22, 1894, aged 89 years, being the last grandchild of Dr. Ebenezer Lee.

"Mrs. Lawrason, widow of the late Lawrence Lawrason, P. M., died at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. Ridout, 474 Princess Avenue, on Saturday, 22d inst. She was the daughter of Dr. William Hooker Lee, a United Empire Loyalist, born in Conn. He first saw the light of day in 1761. After passing his examination, came to Chippewa with his father, where he practiced his profession, and later moved to Southwold. Mrs. Lawrason removed to London, three years after her father's death, and was married to her late husband. At that time, the present site of London, was occupied by only three or four families. She had suffered the many trials to which pioneers were subjected, and saw the little hamlet grow in size and population. The advancement of the place was ever the great object of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrason's life, and through their efforts the city rapidly grew. Mrs. Lawrason was an active worker in St. Paul's Cathedral, and was one of the principal contributors to the cost of erecting the little frame building, which was first used as a place of worship by the Anglicans of London. The structure was destroyed by fire, and Mr. and Mrs. Lawrason were the first to move for the erection of a new building.

"The funeral services were held at St. Paul's Cathedral, and were attended by most of the principal citizens. The officiating clergymen were, Bishop Baldwin, Arch-deacon Marsh, and the Very Rev. Dean Innes."—Extract from Obituary. Children :

He engaged in farming, and also studied law, and was admitted to practice in all courts of law and equity in the State of New York. In Feb. 1872, he removed to Spring Hill, Kansas, where he again engaged in farming, and the practice of law; was elected to positions of trust, and was held in high esteem. He was possessed of a literary and scientific mind, and was interested in educational subjects, was the inventor of an astronomical instrument to facilitate the taking of latitude and also for the use of engineers in leveling. He had secured a patent, but did not live to perfect it quite to his satisfaction and introduce it into practical use. He was also much interested in family genealogy, and rendered efficient aid in furnishing records for the first work by Miss Sarah M. Lee in 1878. The manuscript records of his grandfather, Dea. Seth, which had disappeared soon after his death, in 1803, were discovered by the subject of this sketch, in a mutilated form and preserved with the greatest care, and later placed in charge of William H. Lee, of New York, (see page 194) who caused a fac-simile copy to be made by an expert, which, with the original, is still in possession of his family, at Hartford (1897.) He died at Spring Hill, Kansas, April 30, 1890. No children.

nected on the maternal side with Dr. Kittredge, of New Hampshire." He was a farmer and resided at Lewis, where he "was Deacon of the Congregational Church, removed to Essex where he became one of the Elders of the Presbyterian Church, as no Congregational Church existed there. The descendants of Seth Lee are largely adherents to the Congregational faith, large numbers being members of that church, of which he was a Minister and Deacon."

He removed to California and engaged in market gardening, at San Jose. Died at Oakland, May 20, 1892. His widow still resides there, (1896.) No children.

285. LEONARD, son of Orren 76, and Ruth (Johnson) Lee, born March 5, 1820, married April 11, 1844, Sophia Alatheia, dau. of Lucius and Sophia (Jerome) Cook, born at Manlius, N. Y., July 22, 1821—seventh generation from Maj. Aaron Cook, of Northampton, Mass., and lineal descendant of Capt. Aaron, Jr., of Hadley, Mass., and Sarah Westwood, only child of William Westwood, guardian of John Lee, the emigrant, 1634. Her maternal ancestor, Timothy Jerome, emigrated from the Isle of Wight, and settled in Meriden, (then Wallingford,) about 1717, and was of Huguenot extraction.

She died Sept. 4, 1890. Rev. H. C. Hitchcock, D. D., for many years her pastor, remarks: "Mrs. Lee was in many respects a remarkable woman, inheriting some of the best blood of the old Huguenot stock on one side, and of the Puritan race on the other. The very ground work of her life was religion."

In May, 1844, they removed to Kenosha (then Southport) Wis., locating on the open prairie, where he improved an extensive farm, which they occupied till 1867, then removed to the city and engaged in manufacturing interests. He was the proprietor of the Kenosha Flax Mills, which he established—burned in 1872—and was subsequently vice-president and manager of the Philips Furniture Manufacturing Company. Was a Sergeant in the Ordnance Department in the War—Co. "C," 39th Regt., Wis. In 1871, he made an extended tour over Europe, Egypt and Palestine. Children:

EGGLESTON—FLOREZ.

420. JAMES WATSON, son of James and Elizabeth 135 (Lee) Eggleston, and grandson of David Lee 42, born Jan. 9, 1817, left home in Barkhamsted at the age of 16, and shipped from Boston as a sailor; visited Europe, Japan, China, Sandwich Islands, and various other countries, and arrived at Valparaiso. Chili was then at war with Peru; and he, being fond of adventure, enlisted in the Chilian Navy; was captured and taken to Callao, Peru, as a prisoner of war. Gaining his liberty, he engaged in business, obtained a competency, and married a Peruvian lady, adopting a Spanish name—Don Santiago Florez. He visited the United States in 1851, in the capacity of interpreter for Peruvian officials. By a revolution in the Peruvian Government several years later, his property was confiscated, and he was thrown into prison, where he remained three years. At his liberation he found himself destitute and broken in health, and died at Lima, Peru, in 1876. His wife was Josephina Galindo. Children:

At the breaking out of the Civil War, he was a plane-maker by occupation, and a citizen of Derby. In Sept. 1861, he enlisted in Co. F, 7th Reg't, Conn. Vols. He asked for no commission, but served two years as a sergeant, was promoted to Second Lieutenant for gallant conduct. He was engaged in battles at James Island, Pocatigo, Morris Island, Bermuda Hundred and others, and was killed by a shot through the body at Deep Bottom, Aug. 16, 1864; was left on the field and buried by the Confederates. His commanding officer, Gen. Hawley, remarked of him, that "he was without a fault, either as a citizen or a soldier."

His remains were afterwards removed, with others, to the Fort Harrison National Cemetery, near Richmond, where they repose with a large number of unknown Union soldiers. Children:

dent of Meriden since 1862. The "Illustrated Biography," 1891, says of him: He represented Meriden in the General Assembly of 1885 and 1886, and was assigned to important committees each year.

He introduced a resolution, which was carried without a dissenting voice, to publish such military records as were in the State Archives, from the early Wars down to the close of the Mexican War—records of the Confederate War having been previously published. The result was the publication of a large quarto volume which was ordered to be supplied to every Town Clerk's Office, and all Public Libraries in the State.

He served four years on the Board of Aldermen of Meriden, and held other positions of note. He was a delegate to the first Republican Convention held in the State in 1856—was a Free-soiler in 1848—voted for Lincoln in 1860 and 1864, and has never missed an opportunity to cast a vote for equal rights, temperance and good morals.

"He is one of the most widely known Secret Society representatives in the State; was a member of the Sons of Temperance at 18 years of age, and eventually held every office in the Order, and for 35 years was connected with the National Organization; was Grand Master of the Grand Lodge of Odd Fellows in 1877 and 1878. His Masonic career was commenced in 1852; was Knighted in St. Elmo Commandery in Meriden in 1874; Grand Master of the State in 1874 and 1875. Prior to that, he held the office of Grand High Priest of the Grand Chapter in the State (1872-3), and for 12 years was President of the Masonic Veteran Association.

"During the war, he was a Lieutenant in the State Militia and enlisted for service in the army, but was rejected for physical disability. At the Barkhamsted Centennial Celebration, 1879, he delivered the historical address, and was compiler of the published proceedings. He is descended from two grandfathers, and two great-grandfathers of Revolutionary service, and is one of the charter members of the 'Sons of the American Revolution,' and was a delegate to the National body which met at Hartford, in 1891." He is also Secretary of the "Lee Association" (1897), which was organized in 1884, and compiler of the published proceedings of the first general family meeting of the descendants of John Lee. He has been deeply interested in collecting statistics of the descendants, freely expending both time and money in his efforts, and has succeeded in searching out families, of which all trace has been lost for nearly a century. At the breaking out of the war he was living at Hartford; enlisted in the 11th Reg't, Conn. Vols., and was commissioned Captain of Co. D, which had been recruited largely by his efforts. He followed the fortunes of his regiment, and was killed in his first engagement at Newburn, N. C., March 14, 1862. He fell almost at the first fire from the Confederate battery, being disemboweled by a cannon shot, which killed himself and five men of his company. His remains were sent home and a large concourse of citizens at his funeral attested their high esteem of his personal worth in his native town; buried at Pleasant Valley. The G. A. R. Post at New Hartford, was named in his honor. He died unmarried.

He was a graduate of Oberlin College, Ohio, 1872, and of Yale Theological Seminary, Conn., 1875; was pastor of the Congregational Church, at Owosso, Mich., five years; traveled in Europe, Egypt and Palestine in 1878. He resigned his pastorate and went out as a missionary to Marash, Turkey, in Asia, 1880, and traveled extensively in Asia Minor and Syria; has occupied various chairs in the Theological Seminary of the A. B. C. F. M., at Marash, and is at present (1897) President of the Institution. His wife Mary was a graduate of Olivet College, Mich., and for two years Principal of the Ladies' Department. In missionary work she was an efficient assistant. She died March 5, 1885, at Marash, deeply lamented by the entire community, both Christian and Moslem.

After the death of his wife, he spent two and a half years in this country, devoting most of his time to special theological studies, chiefly at Union Theological Seminary, New York. He married, second, at Constantinople, Aug. 29, 1889, Clara Elizabeth, dau. of Rev. Cyrus Hamlin, D.D., and Harriet Martha (Lovell) Ham-

662. REV. FRANK THEODOSIUS, son of Leonard 285, and Sophia Alatheia (Cook) Lee, born March 23, 1847, married Sept. 20, 1881, Nellie J., dau. of William J. and Frances (Caul) Canfield, of Evanston, Ill., born in Litchfield Co., Conn., Aug. 11, 1859. Her American ancestor, Thomas Canfield, came from England to New Haven in 1639. The family traces its lineage back to 1350, and is of Huguenot extraction. On her mother's side her ancestor, Richard Warren, is traced to the pilgrims of the May Flower, 1620. He was a graduate of Oberlin College, Ohio, 1874, and of Yale Theological Seminary, 1877. Soon after his graduation, he accepted a position on the editorial staff of the Congregationalist, of Boston, which he retained one year, then resigning to accept a call to a pastorate at Sparta, Wis., where he remained four years, meeting with unusual success. While in Boston he was called to supply Wellesley College as chaplain. In 1880, he made the tour of Europe, extending his travels to Egypt and Palestine. Resigning his pastorate at Sparta in 1882, he accepted a call to Salt Lake City, Utah. Returning to Wisconsin after an absence of two years, he was called to the Congregational Church at Whitewater. Four years were spent there, during which time the large membership was nearly doubled. Impaired health caused him to tender his resignation. One year was spent in a post-graduate course at Union Theological Seminary, New York, after which he was called to supply Lincoln Park Church, Chicago, one year, during the absence of the pastor, and in November, 1891, responded to a call from Muscatine, Iowa. During his pastorate there he was largely influential in the erection of a large and elegant church edifice. On account of large executive ability, he is often called to fill important positions, preside at public meetings, etc. He was chosen president of the family re-union at Farmington, August, 1896, and delivered an address entitled, "Characteristic Traits of the Lee Family." He was chosen in 1896 president of the Chicago Congregational Association of Churches, Chicago Congregational Ministerial Union, and also president of Macatawa Park (Mich.) Summer Assembly. Is now (1897) pastor of Douglas Park Congregational Church, Chicago. Child:

663. HERBERT MORRIS, son of Leonard 285, and Sophia Alatheia (Cook) Lee, born Sept. 9, 1849, married May 21, 1872, Agnes S., dau. of Frederic W., and Sarah (Naramore) Lyman, of Kenosha, Wis., born March 14, 1847.

(John Lyman, progenitor of this branch of the Lyman family, (son of Richard the emigrant, born, 1580), was born in Essex Co., England, in 1623, came to Charlestown, Mass., with the family, in 1631; came through the wilderness to Hartford, Oct., 1635; died at Northampton, Mass., Aug. 20, 1690. It is a singular coincidence that John Lee 1, and John Lyman were both born in the same county in England, within a few miles of each other, both came to America as lads, and were nearly of the same age, first resided in adjoining towns near Boston, both came to Hartford the same season (1635), both families were attendants of Rev. Thomas Hooker's church, and both died in the same month of the same year, Aug., 1690).

He received a liberal business education, and for a number of years was in the employment of the United States Express Co.; resigning his situation, he removed to Kansas City, Mo., 1870, where he became a successful lumber merchant, "Lee and Lyman" (1896). He is also interested in orange culture in Florida. For ten years he officiated as a deacon of the First Congregational Church of Kansas City. Children:

664. HATTIE ALATHEA, only dau. of Leonard 285, and Sophia Alatheia (Cook) Lee, was born Oct. 15, 1851; educated at Oberlin College, Ohio, and excelled in music and painting.

"Her mind was well stored with the fruits of her studies, nor did she consider her education complete at her graduation; hours were devoted to improvement, which others of a less studious nature would have spent in pleasure or frivolities; gifted with rare mental qualities, a taste for art and a fondness for study, to her latest year, bodily weakness even, did not withdraw her from a systematic course of reading, or from persevering efforts with pencil and brush. Her place in Sabbath school, prayer meeting, or choir, was seldom vacant, 'till declining health warned her to desist. She sought to recover health in a southern climate with little permanent benefit, but fell a victim to consumption, July 14, 1879."—Obituary.

MEMORANDA.

DESCENDANTS OF DAVID,

FOURTH SON OF

Lebanon, Coventry. 2d Gen.

6. DAVID, youngest son of John ¹, and Mary (Hart) Lee, was born at Farmington, in 1674. On the marriage of his mother to Jedediah Strong, Jan. 5, 1692, he, aged 18, and his youngest sister, Tabitha, aged 16, accompanied her to Northampton, Mass., which was his future home for many years. He was a weaver by trade; married Lydia Strong, dau. of his stepfather, Sept. 5, 1695, born Nov. 9, 1675. Her mother was Freedom Woodward, dau. of Henry, of Dorchester, Mass., and afterwards of Northampton, where he was one of the "Pillars of the Church."

David removed with his family to Coventry, Conn., in 1709, in company with others from Northampton, who were among the first settlers of the town, which, however, was not incorporated till 1711. His wife died July 16, 1718. He married for his second wife, May 27, 1719, Elizabeth ——— (name illegible on the records of Coventry). He removed to Lebanon about 1729, and was admitted to "full communion" in the Church, Feb. 28, 1731. "He was regarded as a man of eminent godliness."

Jan. 28, 1728-9, "in consideration of a deed of exchange for land in Coventry," John Lyman deeds to him by quit claim deed, "all my farm or lot of land, lying and being in Lebanon at a place called Lebanon Village * * * bounded north-easterly on y^e street that goeth through y^e village, northwesterly on land of Mr. Cushman, southwesterly on land of Ebenezer Gillett, and southeasterly by land of s^d Gillett and Isaac Bailey." No length of lines, nor number of acres is given.

Aug. 15, 1737, he deeds the same land with the same description to his son David, in exchange for land in Coventry. A thorough examination of records, both town and church, failed to furnish anything of importance concerning him. He died in 1759, aged 85 years. Children :

Willington. 3d Gen.

7. JEDEDIAH, eldest son of David 6, and Lydia (Strong) Lee, born Feb. 1, 1797, at Northampton, Mass., married Sept. 6, 1722, Lucee or Lucy ——— (family name illegible on the record). He was a farmer at Willington, where he died in 1748. His property was inventoried at £925-13. His wife and eldest son, Elias, were executors of his will, appointed April 11, 1748. "At a Court of Probate held in Hartford, Feb. 9, 1759, Elias Lee, of Willington, guardian to Oliver, Zebulon and Simon, sons of Jedediah, prayed for the distribution of the estate, according to will of deceased, viz.: To Josiah, Jedediah deceased, (or his legal representatives,) Oliver, Zebulon and Simon, children of deceased." He was appointed guardian of the minor children July 3, 1750. The date of Lucee's death has not been ascertained, but Elias, admr. of her estate, presented to court an inventory for £177-6-6, June 13, 1750.

May 29, 1751, presented his account—Inventory, £177- 6-6
Paid debts and charges, - - - 155-19-3

Paid each of 8 heirs £2-13-4.

Among the items of her inventory were the following, viz.: 5 stays £3, gauze veil £1, 2 woolen aprons 3s., camlet riding hood £5, saloon quilt petticoat £3, drugget petticoat £3, 1 fine shift £3, one thousand pins 12s., 16 skeins fine thread £2, 1 woolen gown 5s., 1 woosted gown 5s, velvet neck cloth £4-15, gauze neck cloth 30s., pillion cloth £2-10, 1 persion bunnet £1-15, 2 check aprons, 13s., 2 laced caps £2, 2 plain caps 29s., 1 pair thread gloves 18s., 1 pair cotton gloves 18s., 1 white handkerchief 15s., 1 hollen apron £2, "old close" 3s. Children :

4th Gen.

14. I. ELIAS, born July 26, 1723 ; he was one of the executors of his father's will, and after his mother's death, administrator of her estate ; was also guardian for the children of his deceased brother ; he was in the French War, in 1755, receiving £2-11-5½ for ten weeks' service ; was also in the Revolutionary Army, about Ticonderoga, in 1775-6, in 9th Co., 4th Reg't ; also in the regular army, 1777 to 1780 ; was at the battle of Germantown and other engagements ; his name appears on Farmington records after the war ; supposed that he went up into Massachusetts, since which time all trace has been lost ; nothing is known about his family.
15. II. LYDIA, born Nov. 10, 1726 ; m. a Fenton.
16. III. JERUSHA, " 1728 ; m. a Brown.
17. IV. ZEBULON, " Dec. 7, 1730 ; d. young.
18. V. JOSIAH, " 1735 ; m. Mary Christophers, Nov. 6, 1774.—New London Records.
 "Josiah and John Lee were taken prisoners on y^e schooner Rainbow, on the Grand Bank, April 1758."—N. E. Hist. and Gen. Register, Vol. 14, p. 273.
 We have no means of ascertaining the identity of this John Lee ; Josiah's name is found on the pay rolls of the French War ; received in 1756, £5-17-4, for twelve weeks and five days' service ; also, 1759, received £15-3-5½ for thirty-five weeks and five days' service, under Capt. Moses Hobby, on both expeditions.
19. VI. JEDEDIAH, born 1736 ; m. Hannah Fay, when quite young, and died before the distribution of his father's estate in 1759, leaving two heirs who received the portion which would have fallen to him. His name is found on the rolls of the army in the French War, 1757 ; the name of one of his sons, Jedediah 3d, is found in the revolutionary records ; was at the battle of White Plains, Oct. 28, 1776 ; discharged Dec. 25, 1776.

20. VII. OLIVER, born 1738; marched to the relief of Boston, at the time of the Lexington alarm, April, 1775, in Capt. Haden's Co. The names of his children, as copied from Stiles' History of Windsor:

5th Gen.

- | | | |
|----------------|-----------|-----------|
| 1. Abigail, | born Feb. | 23, 1771. |
| 2. Josiah, | " Dec. | 7, 1772. |
| 3. Lemuel, | " July | 23, 1774. |
| 4. Anna Sarah, | " May | 30, 1777. |
| 5. Oliver, | " April | 15, 1778. |

21. VIII. ZEBULON, " 1741; was in the ill-fated Havana expedition of the French War, in 1762, thirty-seven weeks and two days; received £18-12-10½.
22. IX. SIMON, " 1743; no trace of him.

Nothing is known of this family except what is here stated. Oliver's name is found on the records of East Windsor, with family, but nothing farther is known. A very aged man named Zebulon Lee, died at Granville, Washington Co., N. Y., "sometime in the 30's," supposed to be the person in question. Families by the name Lee are living in the vicinity, but none can connect with this Zebulon.

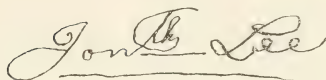

Vigorous efforts have been made to discover a connecting link, but without success; they, like several other families, have disappeared, leaving no trace behind.

Coventry, Berkshire Co., Mass. 3d Gen.

10. DAVID, son of David 6, and Lydia (Strong) Lee, born at Northampton, Mass., June 26, 1705, married Mary Tilden, "alias Powell," June 24, 1736. His grandfather, Jedediah Strong, died May 22, 1733, and he received, as an heir of his mother, who died in 1718, £9-9 as his full share of the estate, Sept. 27, 1733. He was appointed guardian of the "Tilden heirs," March 29, 1756, and also guardian for Phebe Luce, June 20, 1757. He removed to Plantation No. 4, Berkshire Co., Mass., before 1762. Child:

4th Gen.

23. I. DAVID, born at Coventry, Jan. 17, 1739.

Salisbury. 3d Gen.

13. REV. JONATHAN, youngest son of David 6, and Lydia (Strong) Lee, born in Coventry, July 4, 1718, married Sept. 3, 1744, Elizabeth, dau. of Rev. Joseph Metcalf, of Falmouth, Mass. When her widowed mother, with six daughters, removed to Lebanon, Conn., she became an inmate of the family of Rev. Thomas Clapp, of Windham, and went with him to New Haven when he was chosen president of Yale College, and there made the acquaintance of Mr. Lee, when a student. "She had no dowry but her personal charms and Christian graces, and a decent suit of clothes; without a table or chairs they kept house and lived happily in a blacksmith shop; but religion can soften every hardship and relieve the bitter cup." She died Feb. 22, 1762.

On the occasion of his marriage he delivered an address to his bride and parents of much eloquence and tenderness, which was published in the American Monthly Magazine, the official organ of the Daughters of the American Revolution, July, 1895, the copy being furnished by Miss Florence Lee, of Buffalo, N. Y., a descendant of the 5th generation from him.

"He graduated at Yale College in 1742, read Divinity with his pastor, Rev. Elisha Williams, and in 1744, settled as a minister at Salisbury, on a salary of £45, 'lawful money,' which was never increased. The town was then new; the inhabitants few in number and weak in strength." There were but 18 English families in the place, and his church, when organized, consisted of but 11 members. A part of his salary was paid in produce instead of "lawful money." They were too poor to keep a horse, and he drew his wood home on a hand sled, and frequently carried his bushel of wheat to Lamb's mill on his back.

When he and his wife arrived in Salisbury in 1744, their house was unfinished, and they took up their abode in one end of a blacksmith shop, with stools for chairs, and a table constructed of slabs. Their house, when completed, was a log structure 24x30 feet, and was used, temporarily, as a place of worship. In this log house he was ordained Nov. 23, 1744; a new edifice for worship was raised March 28 and 29, 1749; the "raising" occupied two days. It had been voted by the society "that 16 gallons rhum be furnished, and 8 bushels rhy to be made into cake for the occasion." This building, modified for the purpose, is still doing service for a town hall, (1897).

In 1746, the Assembly "advised the committee to build a fort in the northwest part of Salisbury, including the house of Rev. Jonathan Lee," for protection against the Indians.

His name is found on State records as having been appointed chaplain March, 1756, for an expedition in the French war, operating about Crown Point. The homestead remained in the family three or four generations, when it passed into other hands. One of his descendants laments the disappearance of valuable papers at that time, which would have afforded light on many subjects which are obscure at the present day. The house was still standing a few years since.

The following incidents, selected from the Connecticut Courant of the last century, may interest his descendants: Among others who escaped from jail in Litchfield County, Jan. 25, 1772, was one "John Brown, who was committed for breaking open the house of Rev. Mr. Lee, of Salisbury; a short thick fellow, 5 ft. 4 in. high, 22 years of age, has been twice cropt and branded." Ten dollars reward was offered for his return by Lynde Lord, Sheriff, Litchfield, Jan. 26, 1772. (Connecticut Courant, Jan. 28, 1772). Hartford, Feb. 25, 1772.—"At the Supreme Court held at Litchfield, the 11th inst., came on the trial of the notorious John Brown, for the third offence of burglary, (Rev. Mr. Lee's house), when, after a lengthy hearing, both on the part of the crown and the prisoner, the case was committed to the jury, who, after consultation of three days, returned with a verdict of guilty, whereupon a sentence of death was passed upon him, which is to be executed the first of July, next." (Connecticut Courant, Feb. 25, 1772).

"TWENTY DOLLARS REWARD.—Broke out of Litchfield jail on the night after the 3d of Mar., 1772, the notorious burglar, John Brown, lately condemned, and received sentence of death; has been twice cropt and branded. The above reward will be paid, &c., by Lynde Lord, Sheriff." (Connecticut Courant, March 5, 1772).

"Hartford, June 9, 1772.—A petition was presented to the Assembly, and the execution of John Brown was put off till Dec. 2nd, next."

"Broke out of jail on the night after the 14th inst., the burglarious John Brown, under sentence of death for house breaking. He has been cropt and branded * * * * * Whoever shall return him shall receive TEN DOLLARS REWARD."

LYNDE LORD, Sheriff.

Litchfield, 15th June, 1772.

John is again advertised for breaking jail, March 24, 1773; £3 reward offered by Lynde Lord, Sheriff. It is evident from this that he was not executed Dec. 2, 1772.

Simsbury, June 6, 1775.—He is again advertised for breaking out of Newgate prison. "Three pounds in paper bills of the Colony" offered for his return.

Aug. 28, 1775.—John Brown is again advertised for breaking out of Newgate prison, and is again described as having been "branded and both ears crop'd." John then disappears from the columns of the Courant.

Mr. Lee married for his second wife, Nov. 1762, Widow Love Brinkerhoff, of Fishkill, N. Y. (dau. of Rev. John Graham, of Edinburgh, Scotland, who first settled at Exeter, N. H., as a physician; afterwards became a preacher; was the first minister at Stafford, Conn.; removed from there to Woodbury, and was installed June 17, 1773, as the first minister of the Second Congregational Church.) Rev. Mr. Lee died Oct. 8, 1788, aged 70 years, after having been forty-four years in the ministry, at Salisbury, “leaving six sons and four daughters, all of whom followed his bier to the grave.” His headstone is still standing (1896), on which he is represented in wig and gown, in preaching attitude in his pulpit. In bringing up his boys, he gave every other one an education, and every other one a farm. The former were Jonathan, Elisha and Chauncey; the latter were Samuel, Milo and Robert.

It is on record that he purchased 500 acres of land for £2,500 old tenor, equivalent to about £500, “lawful money.” It is probable that the farms for the sons were carved out of this tract. He is named in Yale records as one of the wealthy ministers of New-England. His second wife died at the home of her son, Rev. Chauncey, at Colebrook, Dec. 22, 1820, at the age of 88 years.

It will be observed that all the descendants of David 1st, of whom we have any knowledge at the present time, are through Rev. Jonathan, his youngest son.

FIFTH GENERATION.

Coventry; Becket, Mass.; Manchester, Vt. 4th Gen.

23. DAVID, son of David 10, and Mary (Tilden) Lee, and third generation in succession bearing the name, born at Coventry, Jan. 17, 1739, married Tabitha —— (name illegible on the records). His name is found on record as having enlisted in an expedition against the French, March 28, 1758; served thirty-seven weeks and two days; received £16-15-7. It is highly probable that he moved to Mass. with his father's family, before 1762. He resided at Becket and was a school teacher there, about 1770; was in the Revolutionary Army, his name being found in the Berkshire Co. records. His name is also found on the town records from 1765 to 1777, serving as Selectman; was on various committees, and holding other town offices. His name disappears after 1777, but it is found that he moved to Manchester, Vt., and was a judge of court in Bennington Co., and resigned in 1783 (Vt. Hist. Records). Some of his descendants were there as late as 1815-20, since which time all trace has been lost. It is the old story, "Moved West," leaving no trace. Children :

Thomas Allen, of Pittsfield, Mass., born Jan. 17, 1743, son of Joseph Allen, of Northampton, Mass. "Rev. Thomas Allen, of Pittsfield, and Miss Elizabeth Lee, of Salisbury, intend marriage. Jan. 30, 1768," (Pittsfield Records). The marriage for some reason was postponed till Feb. 18, and is so recorded:

"SALISBURY, Feb. 19, 1768, yesterday P. M., the REV. MR. THOMAS ALLEN, of Pittsfield, in the Province of Massachusetts Bay, was married to MISS ELIZABETH LEE, the amiable Daughter of REV. MR. JONATHAN LEE, of this town, a young lady well accomplished to fill the Station of Honor and Usefulness, and render the Married State agreeable and happy.

O QUAM TE MEMOREM, VIRGO: NAM QUE HAUD TIBI, VULTUS MORTALIS, NEC VOX HOMINEM SONAT."—Virgil.*

—(Conn. Courant, March 7, 1768.)

Mr. Allen, "was a man of great energy and industry in his ministry at Pittsfield for forty-six years. He was a man of very positive ideas and principles; very zealous in the Revolutionary War, a leader in party politics of the Jeffersonian school." He was at the battle of Bennington, Aug. 16, 1777, and gives an interesting account of it in the Conn. Courant, of August 25th.

* "O maiden! what shall I call thee?
For thy countenance is not that of a mortal, Nor thy voice that of a human being."

A portion of his journal kept while at Ticonderoga, from June to — 1777, was published in the same paper. He died Feb. 11, 1810. She died March 31, 1830, aged 83. Children :

26. CAPT. SAMUEL, son of Rev. Jonathan 13, and his first wife, Elizabeth, (Metcalf) Lee, born Sept. 27, 1749, married Hannah, dau. of Capt. Samuel Moore, of Salisbury, Oct. 27, 1774. She died July 23, 1790. He married, second, Elizabeth Brown, Jan. 24, 1792. She was the dau. of Capt. Jacob Brown, of Sandisfield, Mass., who, with his brother, Col. John Brown, of Pittsfield, in the winter of 1775-6, went with Gen. Benedict Arnold to the siege of Quebec, and died in that city of small pox, March 14, 1776. She died Dec. 24, 1857.

He was a farmer by occupation, living three miles north of the village. During the Revolutionary War, he was an active patriot. In the Colonial Records of May, 1777, is found: "This assembly do establish Samuel Lee to be Quartermaster of a troop of horse, in the 5th Reg't of Light Horse in this State"; May, 1778. "Samuel Lee of Salisbury is made Lieut. of 2d Troop, 5th Reg't, of Horse" (Col. Rec. Vol. 1, p. 272). The public records are incomplete, and the exact nature of his active service cannot now be ascertained. The records show, however, that his troop was often called into service for State defence, and his name appears among the commissioned officers. Service also, appears to have been rendered along the Hudson, and down as far as New York. His commission as Captain, dated Oct. 30, 1783, was signed by Gov. Jonathan Trumbull, and is in the possession of a grandson, Rev. Hamilton Lee, of Martinez, California (1896), who has also a letter written by him to his wife, when in the army, dated Fishkill, N. Y., Nov. 18, 1776, and other papers of interest. His cavalry pistols are in possession of other grandsons, Samuel B., Jr., and John W. N. Lee, of Duplex, Tenn., and his sword is said to be in possession of some of the family. In 1774, Capt. Lee was appointed one of a committee to carry into effect certain resolutions passed by the Continental Congress; in 1781, he was one of a committee to encourage enlistments. After the war he served many years as Justice of the Peace, and in other public offices, and was a Representative eleven times, from 1788 to 1809. In 1803, was one of a committee to manage the public library, and was prominent in all public affairs. He died Sept. 3, 1829, aged 80. Children :

31. DEA. MILO, son of Rev. Jonathan 13, and Elizabeth (Metcalf) Lee, born June 27, 1760, married Ruth, dau. of Hezekiah Camp, of Salisbury, Nov. 23, 1782. She was born Dec. 20, 1760. He was a farmer in his native town, and was a Captain of Militia. In 1799, he was one of a committee to "see that the new church was built according to contract." In 1805, he was chosen deacon of the church of which his father had been pastor 44 years. He died April 29, 1829, and was the first person buried in the new cemetery. His wife died Nov. 6, 1833. There is strong presumptive evidence that he did service in the Revolutionary War, but positive proof is wanting. Children :

32. REV. CHAUNCEY, D. D., son of Rev. Jonathan 13, and his second wife, Love (Graham) Lee, born Nov. 9, 1763, at Salisbury, married, first, Abigail, dau. of Capt. Joshua Stanton, of Burlington, Vt. She died in 1805. He married, second, in Feb. 1807, Mrs. Olive Spencer, widow of Alexander Spencer, of Amenia; N. Y., born Aug. 9, 1774, and dau. of Jared Harrison, of Salisbury. He was a graduate of Yale College in 1784; studied law at Litchfield, and practiced for a time in his native town, but after entering upon a religious life, gave up the legal profession, studied theology with Rev. Dr. West, of Stockbridge, Mass., and was licensed to preach June 3, 1789. In the same year the church at Salisbury made application for him to preach as a candidate for the place left vacant by the death of his father the previous year, but failed to secure his services. A new church edifice was dedicated at Salisbury some years later, at which he preached the dedication sermon. Columbia College of N. Y., bestowed upon him the degree of D. D. in 1823. He was settled at Sunderland, Vt., in 1790, where he remained seven years; then spent three years at Lansingburg and Hudson, N. Y., as a teacher and occasional preacher; was installed at Colebrook, Conn., in Jan., 1800, and remained till Feb., 1827.

His second wife died Jan. 5, 1818. He married for his third wife, Oct. 15, 1818, Mrs. Rebecca Haines, widow of a Virginia gentleman, and dau. of Col. Samuel Green, of New London; "a lady of cultivated manners and refined taste."

From Colebrook he went to Marlboro', where he was the settled pastor from Nov., 1828, to Jan., 1837. For the last few years of his life, he resided with his dau., Mrs. Beebe, at Hartwick, N. Y., where he died Dec. 5, 1842, aged 79. "He was a ready writer, a sound reasoner, and an earnest speaker; a thorough scholar, dignified in his manners, and eminent for his social qualities." He was the author of "Revival Sermons," "Triumphs of Virtue," being a metrical paraphrase of the Book of Job, 1807; was also a composer of music, and in 1797, while a teacher, published an arithmetic; "Election Sermon," 1813; "Letter from Aristarcus to Philemon," 1833.

It is related that another pastor who was settled in another part of the town (of Sunderland, Vt.,) on the same day, brought suit against Rev. Chauncey, to recover the possession of land set apart "for the first settled minister of the town," on the ground that his settlement was two minutes first! and gained the suit. The result of the suit, however, does not seem to have been confirmed, as the land in dispute subsequently came into possession of a gr-dau., and by her was sold to another party a few years since. 64. SAMUEL BROWN, son of Capt. Samuel 26, and Elizabeth (Brown) Lee, born at Salisbury, Nov. 15, 1798, married Susan Amanda, dau. of John Napier, at Spring Hill, Tenn., Nov. 2; 1837. In 1816, then 18 years of age, he left his native town and went to Tennessee, and engaged as a clerk, and two years later bought out the dry goods business of his employer, at Spring Hill; was successful in his enterprise, and subsequently engaged in both wholesale and retail business at Memphis ; engaged also in iron manufacture, and received a grant of a large tract of land from the State, in Williamson Co., to which he eventually retired and improved a plantation of nearly 1000 acres. He took rank as one of the leading planters of the county, and was cultivating this plantation at the outbreak of the Civil War, his interests being identified with his adopted State. Two sons joined the Confederate Army. His loss during the war was severe. His plantation was laid waste, his stock driven off, 40 negroes disappeared, and his elegant residence was turned into a military hospital. He died just at the close of the war, June 8, 1865, at Nashville. His wife died at Spring Hill, Tenn, Aug. 15, 1850. Children :

65. DR. CHARLES ALFRED, son of Capt. Samuel 26, and Elizabeth (Brown) Lee, born March 3, 1801, at Salisbury, married Hester Ann, dau. of John A. Middleberger, June 17, 1828. She died Aug. 31, 1876.

He graduated at Williams College in 1822, received the degree of M. D., from Berkshire Medical College, Mass. in 1825, in which he was subsequently a Professor ; moved to New York in 1827, where he practiced his profession eighteen years. He soon commenced his contributions to the literature of his profession which were continued till within a few days of his death. For many years he was editor of the N. Y. "Journal of Medicine." In 1846, he published two works on Geology, which were printed by the Harpers in their school series ; a work on Physiology, in 1847, was for many years a standard work in schools and academies ; in 1858, he published an edition of Copeland's Medical Dictionary with original notes ; also a work on Food and Diet.—Medical Jurisprudence, besides many addresses and contributions to the press.

Dr. Lee held many positions of trust and honor ; from 1840 to 1848, was Professor of Materia Medica, in the University of the City of New York ; 1845 to 1849, was Professor of the same and General Pathology in Geneva (N. Y.) Medical College ; held a professorship in the University of Buffalo, 1848 to 1870, besides professorships in various other medical institutions in Maine, Vermont and Ohio—proffered others which he was obliged to decline.

In 1840, and again in 1862, he made extended tours of England and the continent, receiving marked attention from the medical fraternity. In these tours he devoted special attention to treatment of the insane, publishing the results of his investigation and advocating humane treatment.

Dr. Lee was also an ardent advocate of temperance, and in 1862, at Exeter Hall, London, addressed one of the largest temperance meetings ever held in England. His ruling characteristic was to promote the welfare of the human race ; was instrumental in establishing the Northern Dispensary, N. Y.

He maintained a strong religious faith, and for many years, and to the time of his death, was a Warden of St. Peter's Episcopal Church, of Peekskill, N. Y., which was his home after 1850. During his last illness, and up to his last moments of consciousness, his mind retained its clearness and he referred several times to having a "reasonable and holy hope." He died Feb. 14, 1872, at Peekskill, N. Y. Children :

G., 7th Reg't, Conn. Vols. The regiment left New Haven for the seat of war Sept. 18, and besides doing an immense amount of fatigue duty, took part in the following engagements up to the time of his capture: Fort Pulaski, Ga.; James Island, Pocataligo, Morris Island, Fort Wagner and Fort Wayne, S. C.; Olustee, Fla.; Chester Station and Bermuda Hundred, Va. From his diary:—"Thursday, June 2, 1864, Bermuda Hundred. This morning, just after daylight, the rebels advanced on our picket line, and took 90 of our regiment prisoners. I was captured with them in the same rifle pit with Maj. Sanford." He was taken to Andersonville, June 8, where he remained three months—with others, he was eventually shipped for some other point for greater safety. Watching his opportunity, he slipped from the train and made a dash for liberty,—gained the swamps of South Carolina through which, night after night, he wandered, conducted by sable-skinned guides, and at last reached a river which he followed until the sight of “Old Glory,” waving over Uncle Sam’s gunboats assured him of safety. He was discharged Sept., 1864, after three years’ service. After the war he resided several years in Chicago, and was connected with newspaper business. He died at Bellevue Hospital, New York, Nov. 13, 1885. His widow and family reside at Jericho, Vt., (1896.) Children :

Rev. Edward Strong, of Pittsfield, Mass., and Judge William Strong of Philadelphia, one of the Justices of the Supreme Court of the United States, belong to this branch of the Lees.

This branch will be found fully carried out in the Strong Genealogy.

The following records were furnished by Mrs. Harriet J. (Lee) Taylor of Glastonbury. She and her kindred believe themselves to be descendants of the Farmington family, but are unable to establish the connection. We give place to these records, hoping they may meet the eye of some one who will be able to assist them in tracing their line.

The cuts for the Lee "Coat of Arms" of two different families, came to hand while this work was going through the press, and are inserted as objects of curiosity.

As stated on a previous page, it is not known that any one American family is entitled to an exclusive use of either; we neither claim nor disclaim the right to either, (see page 21).

ROLL OF HONOR.

In preparing the following list of soldiers of the early wars of the country, we have included none except those of whose service there was documentary, or other indisputable evidence. That there were others whose names should be included, there is little doubt, but positive evidence is wanting.

The same remarks will apply to the soldiers of the later wars, for we are confident that a large number have not been reported. Relatives by marriage only, are not included.

No attempt has been made to trace those of the Mary Lee Upson or Tabitha Lee Strong branches in wars later than the Revolution, except to insert such names as have been furnished and well authenticated. In several cases, service in both French and Revolutionary wars was not positively ascertained till too late to insert in the text of this work.

The evidence of service of those in the Mary Lee Upson branch, whose names are not found in the text, was found in State records.

NOTE.

In concluding these pages, it seems but proper to add, that several deficiencies were discovered, which had been overlooked, and which, at a late hour, it was impracticable to supply, without great delay. Several subscribers had paid eight months in advance, and it seemed unjust that they should be subjected to delay. It has frequently been stated by genealogists that their work had been fifteen or twenty, or even thirty, years in preparation, but it seemed expedient in this case to furnish it to the present generation, and leave deficiencies to be supplied and additions collected for a supplement, at some future date, if deemed advisable. With that object in view, the kindred are invited to correspond freely with the compilers of their respective branches or the secretary, communicating any changes or discoveries.

THE COMPILERS.

MERIDEN, CONN., April, 1897.

It is but justice to acknowledge the services of Miss Sarah Fiske Lee of New Hampshire, who spent three months in Meriden, at her own expense, to assist in supervising the publication of this work.

LEE FAMILY RE-UNION,

1896.

In the summer of 1895 several of the officials of the "LEE ASSOCIATION," met at Meriden, Conn., to confer upon the project of holding a re-union during the following summer. The subject had been frequently mentioned in correspondence by kindred in different States, and a growing sentiment in its favor appeared to be generally prevalent. It seemed desirable to keep alive the association, and to cultivate a better acquaintance among the descendants of their common ancestor, John Lee.

It was decided to issue a circular to several of those deeply interested, soliciting their opinion on the subject, the result of which was to encourage the project.

On the first of March, 1896, a second circular was issued, inviting all the posterity of John Lee to meet in re-union at Farmington, Conn., on the 12th and 13th of August, 1896. As the kindred were scattered through many States, the question was asked, "why not hold the re-union in a more central location, in some western city?" The reply was, "that no place was so appropriate as the old home of our ancestor—that all who could, should avail themselves of the occasion to become familiar with the ancestral home—that it would afford them an opportunity to learn more of the early life of our ancestor than they would be likely to obtain from any other source, and that no other place would inspire any particular interest in regard to the object of our meeting, and that at the old homestead was the only proper place to rally. The journey from a distance would afford a delightful excursion to those who had never visited the home of their ancestors, and would prove a most interesting event of a lifetime," and large numbers in the Southern and Western States, and the Canadas, approved the selection of location.

As most of those from a distance would intend to visit Hartford, and hotel accommodations at Farmington were limited, it was decided to make our headquarters at the United States hotel in Hartford, and proceed to Farmington by trolley cars—a charming ride of nine miles—and return at night.

Farmington is a romantic old town, the population consisting largely of the descendants of those who were contemporaries of our ancestors in early life, who greeted us kindly, and generously granted the use of their beautiful town hall for our use.

The appointed time arrived. Large numbers from a distance and citizens of the city assembled in the parlors of the hotel at Hartford, on the evening of the 11th, and enjoyed a delightful and sociable interview. Many new acquaintances were formed, and many old acquaintances renewed among those who had not met since the gathering of 1884.

On the morning of the 12th, the crowd took its departure for Farmington by trolley line. It was a charming ride, and those who were absent may never know what they missed. At the end of the route, a few minutes' walk through the shady streets, for which the town is noted, brought them to the place of meeting—lingering by the way a few moments, as they passed the site of the ancient homestead, now occupied by the stately edifice of the Miss Porter School for Girls, to take in the scene and surroundings, and let their imagination carry them back two and a half centuries, to the time of their ancestor's domestic life.

No better place for meeting could have been selected than the Farmington town hall, a tasteful edifice of which the town may well feel proud. The auditorium, on the second floor, light and airy, seemed befitting the occasion. The large rostrum, or stage had been tastefully decorated with the stars and stripes, and the janitor was untiring in his attentions.

Many kindred living within a few miles, had driven in with their carriages, and were equally enthusiastic with their kindred from other States, whom they had never met. The intense heat which had prevailed for a week, detained many who had expressed their intention to be present, and numerous regrets were received from those who deemed it unwise to attempt a long journey under such circumstances. We must not omit to mention, however, the names of several who persevered under adverse conditions: Mrs. Francis Lee and daughter, Mrs. G. W. Allen, of Clinton, Iowa;—Mrs. Mary Lee Anderson, of Chicago, aged 77, who traveled alone—Mr. Squire Lee, aged 89, and granddaughter, Miss Jennie S. Lee, of Bristol, Indiana, and Miss Kittie L. Davidson, of Montgomery, Ala., who attended the gathering of 1884, as a little girl eight years of age, and others from Ontario, Ohio and Montreal.

A general feeling of sociability prevailed in the hall, in the midst of which the assemblage was called to order by Leonard Lee of Kenosha, Wis., one of the vice-presidents of the association, who addressed them in a few words of greeting.

FRIENDS AND KINDRED:—To say that I am happy to meet you, but feebly expresses my feelings on this occasion. I am more than happy, but as I look over this assemblage I miss many familiar faces which were to be seen in our midst at the gathering twelve years since. Of more than 30 whom I could name, who were prominent on that occasion, more than one-half have passed away, and among them our honored president, and others who expressed their anticipation of a happy meeting with us to-day, have been providentially detained.

It is becoming us, as descendants of one common ancestor, to meet and rally around the old homestead, and to familiarize ourselves with the surroundings of that old home—to join in social converse—to become better acquainted, and to brighten the links of that chain which should bind our interests as one common kindred. Let us then improve the present occasion to become more interested in each other, and to strengthen our desire to know more of those who have been, and gone, before us. There are many interesting episodes of our ancestors yet to be learned, if we will but awaken a proper desire to learn them.

Widely separated as we have been, and personally unknown to each other, it is not singular that we have felt an indifference, but may this occasion awaken an interest which shall go with us through life, and teach us to venerate the memory of our ancestors.

That man is not to be envied who says, "I care nothing for my ancestors"—he may feel assured that his posterity will care nothing for him. To die and be forgotten, is repugnant to the instincts of the human heart. Wealth or family pride may erect a proud monument, and inscribe thereon a few laudatory but unmerited, words of praise, the sentiment of which, to those who knew the subject in life, will appear as cold as the granite or marble on which they are engraved.

It was a custom of our fathers when assembled for deliberation to open their proceedings with prayer, and, in imitation of their example, Prof. King of Ohio will invoke the divine blessing.

Following the invocation, and "Praise God from whom all blessings flow," came an original hymn, written for the occasion, Mrs. Jeannette Lee Coe of Winsted, presiding at the piano.

1.

Our fathers' God, to Thee we raise
With voice united, grateful praise;
For all the blessings Thou hast given,
The joys of life, the hope of heaven.

To Thee our fathers' voice in prayer,
Rose sweetly on the morning air;
To Thee it rose at noontide sun—
At close of day when work was done.

So here to-day we raise our voice,
While in Thy bounty we rejoice;
With thanks for all Thou hast bestowed,
While traveling o'er life's weary road.

Be with us now in this glad hour;
Here may we feel and know Thy power,
Thy blessings share, Thy dealings see,
And find acceptance, Lord, with Thee.

So while we of our fathers learn,
May kindly thoughts within us burn,
And all we do, and all we say,
Make this for each a joyous day.

W. W. L.

The temporary chairman then appointed a committee to nominate permanent officers of the meeting, consisting of Wm. Wallace Lee of Meriden, H. H. Osgood of Norwich, Sarah F. Lee of New Hampshire, and Irving H. Lee of New York, who reported as follows :

For President, REV. FRANK T. LEE, of Chicago.

For Secretary, JOHN R. BRYNING, of Niagara Falls, Ontario.

For Register, MISS SUSAN A. PECK, Plainville, Conn.

For Assistant Register, WILBUR E. LEE, Cambridgeport, Mass.

The President was escorted to the chair by Wm. Wallace Lee, and introduced to the assemblage, and was received with applause.

The following hymn was then sung, accompanied by the piano, the whole audience joining :

INVITATION.

1.

Come ye of one common kindred,
In your veins the blood of Lee,
Gather at the ancient homestead
Dear to all in memory ;
Though you dwell in distant regions,
Or however far you roam.
Gather here with all the legions,
Visit once the ancestral home.

2.

Come from western lofty mountains,
From Pacific's golden shores ;
Come from eastern springing fountains,
Where Atlantic loudly roars ;
Come from northern hill and valley,
Come from southern land of pine ;
Ye of common kindred rally,
Rally at our fathers' shrine.

Where the Tunxis current flowing
And Pequabuck's waters meet,
In a vale with beauty glowing,
There we find our fathers' seat—
Where the light of morn is shining,
Through the trees so grand and old,
And the sun at his declining
Crowneth all their tops with gold.

Sing the song, and tell the story,
 Of our patriot sires of old ;
 Sing of all their deeds of glory,
 Though the tale has oft been told ;
 Sing, too, of the saintly mothers,
 With their voices sweet and low,
 Sing of loving sisters, brothers,
 In the days of long ago.

Come and help us swell the chorus
 In our song of jubilee ;
 Here, our country's banner o'er us
 Waves, the ensign of the free ;
 Come and join in our re-union,
 All ye kindred far or near,
 Share with us in fond communion—
 Each and all are welcome here.

—W W. L.

An address was then delivered by Hon. James L. Cowles, a native of Farmington, and a descendant of a contemporary of John Lee, who, in well chosen words, welcomed the returning pilgrims to the home of their ancestor, which was responded to by Wm. Wallace Lee, on behalf of the kindred.

Reports of the Secretary and Treasurer of the association were next in order, and were presented as follows :

TO THE LEE ASSOCIATION,

DESCENDANTS OF JOHN LEE, FARMINGTON.

In submitting a report of what has been done by me as secretary, it seems fitting to refer somewhat to matters existing before our first meeting, and the formation of this association.

To those who have the book, published 1885, this may seem unnecessary, but it must be remembered that there is quite a number, and in some cases, whole families, who have never seen the book, even if they know of its existence.

The preliminary work which became necessary to secure a gathering of our widely scattered family, was performed almost entirely by myself, but the project, when presented, evoked a general and very cordial response. Money was contributed by several of the friends with words of cheer and encouragement, sufficient to meet the necessary expenses, or nearly so. The deficiency was less than $5. Of course, no charge was made for service—only for money actually expended. At the first gathering, money enough was raised to meet all bills, of whatever nature, and there was left an even $100, which I deposited in the Meriden City Savings bank.

It will be remembered that, at the formation of our association, Rev. Mr. Loveland was elected treasurer. Within a few weeks thereafter, Sept. 22, he died at his home in Granby. Soon as practicable, I sent out a circular to the officers of the association, informing them of his death, at the same time asking them by vote to select some one to fill the vacancy. By a large majority I was chosen to fill the position and thus my report as secretary carries with it also my report as treasurer.

The desire was earnestly expressed by many who were present, that the proceedings should be published in book form, as soon as could be, and to keep alive the interest which was such a prominent feature of the first family gathering.

Various causes operated to prevent its early publication, as explained in the book, so that it is unnecessary to repeat them here.

Had I known in advance the amount of labor, time, patience, and the pecuniary difficulties that would follow, I should have shrunk from the task. But I was encouraged by our president, and some others to persevere, and the result, you know. Money in various ways was advanced by William H. Lee, Leonard Lee, Francis Lee and Henry Lee of Aledo, Ill., each of whom advanced $25.00 to $50.00 and upwards. I found it necessary to draw the $100 which I had deposited in bank to meet the bills, and also to advance much more than I could afford, but all bills were paid leaving our treasury without a cent.

Five hundred copies of the work were printed and bound. Being very desirous to place it within the reach of all, the price was made $1.00 per copy, postage extra. I deposited copies in several public libraries, gave away quite a number to parties, whom I thought worthy and unable to pay for them—sold a goodly number (in some cases have never received any pay)—and all told have disposed of 425 copies.

As before intimated, we have no money on hand. The lack of sufficient means has been a great hindrance, so that I have been unable to prosecute my investigations for the "lost tribes," as I had hoped to do. Something in that line has been accomplished which will be told later on.

The large number that was elected as officers of our Association, at our first meeting, was with the hope and expectation that the services of many might be secured and so arouse a good degree of enthusiasm in matters pertaining to our family. This idea, if not a flat failure, was successful only to a very limited degree.

From quite a number I have found it impossible to obtain a reply to the most courteous and friendly letter that I could indite. Some of the board of officers, we have since learned are not of our family of Lees. Fully one-fourth of them have died,—(their names will be mentioned in another paper)—so that it becomes necessary to reorganize, and I would recommend that the Board be composed only of those who have shown by their acts, that they care something about a matter in which a goodly number of our kindred take a deep interest.

It was earestly hoped, and with a good degree of confidence, expected, that we should be able to have a family gathering at Chicago, during the World's fair in that city, but financial disaster swept over the land and so completely prostrated business of all kinds that it was found after a great deal of correspondence, that the project could not be carried out, and the same causes have operated to postpone it until this time—and right here, justice demands the statement, that had it not been for Leonard Lee, it would not have been done now. I was so situated that I could not and would not have taken it up. He has done a greater part of the preliminary work, that was necessary for calling this meeting. With a persistency untiring, with an ardor that has never cooled, and a zeal that has not abated, he has pushed the matter, and that we have a meeting to-day, is owing mostly to his efforts, and to him belongs the credit.

The expenses attendant upon this meeting, postage, stationery, printing, correspondence, and miscellaneous matters, amount to about fifty (50) dollars, the largest part of which has been advanced by him, and we have received all told fifty (50) cents in stamps. It is obvious to any one that some means should be devised to meet these bills, and not leave a few to bear the entire burden, even if they are willing.

During the past two years, Leonard Lee and Sarah Fisk Lee have devoted a great deal of time, labor and patience to gathering and arranging the material for a new edition of the family history, that was issued by Sarah Marsh Lee in 1878.

This work is now well advanced, and, with a little detail work, can be ready for publication within a few weeks, provided the means can be raised, necessary for advance expenses. If the necessary funds can be secured or pledged, I think we should push the work earnestly to its completion, but for myself, much as I desire it, I am not willing, and will not, incur a debt to do it. I have had enough in that line of experience. If the work is to be published, to-day is the time to determine when, and how the money is to be raised.

That our present meeting may be in all respects a success, and be to each participant a source of pleasure through all the coming years, is the wish of your kinsman.

WM. WALLACE LEE.

Secretary and Treasurer.

REPORT ON CORRESPONDENCE.

In addition to what I have done as secretary and treasurer of the association, I have, for the past 12 years, and even prior to that time, carried on correspondence with a vast number of Lees in various localities, and only in a small proportion of such correspondence, have I been able to connect them with our family. I have, on the whole, had rather meager results. One instance I may mention to show the result in many cases. I knew we had lost a Zebulon Lee. I found that name on an old pension roll, as once living in Ohio. I wrote 14 letters to various places, inclosing stamps, and after three months became satisfied that he was of another family—(Scotch).

Finding myself unable to make any headway in disposing of the mass of letters which I had accumulated—numbering over 1,500—four years ago, I requested Leonard Lee to come and stay with me, and assort, classify and arrange the material which I had in hand, and his services have been of great value, and, I may here add, this work was the commencement of a new edition of our family genealogy, which will be mentioned hereafter.

I have now out fully one hundred letters, to which I have never received any answer. It does not require great ability to answer a civil question, and say either yes or no, but some are so uncivil that they will not do that.

There are a large number of the descendants of Hezekiah Lee, the soldier, living in eastern New York and in Vermont, along the borders of Lake Champlain. Since the death of Ashbill Lee at Willsboro', in Essex county, New York, in 1887, I have written ten or twelve letters to as many different parties, but have never received any response, except from Mrs. Phelps, a daughter of Ashbill Lee. Mainly at my request, Leonard Lee made a visit there last year, at his own expense, to collect their family records, and succeeded in collecting one hundred names, which could have been obtained in no other way, and also to endeavor to arouse some interest in what was being done, but to all the circulars, letters and appeals this year there has been no response.

Hezekiah Lee, the soldier, had three sons, viz.: William, Daniel and Hezekiah third, whose posterity has nearly all been located. William had six sons. First, William, Jr., we may call him, who is said by some to have been murdered—by others, to have been drowned in Lake Ontario. All trace of his posterity is lost, if he had any. Second, Ashbill, had five sons. Most of his descendants have been found. Third, Benjamin, a soldier of 1812, killed by a falling bridge about 1826. Some of his posterity are living in Kent, Conn. Fourth, Asahel, who went to Port Hope, Ontario. Fifth, Samuel, a soldier of 1812—died in Vermont. Sixth, James, a soldier of 1812—said by some to have settled at or near DeKalb, St. Lawrence Co., N. Y. I have written many letters but have never been able to obtain the slightest clue.

Daniel, second son of Hezekiah the soldier, was killed in battle at Chippewa in 1814—had two sons, William and Daniel, Jr. The only trace I have found of either was that about 1831 this William was engaged in steam-boating on Lake Champlain. On page 108 of the book of 1885, is a list of those of whom at that time we had no further knowledge. Seth Lee, in his manuscript, says that Ashbel Lee, son of Stephen Jr., died in 1793—all I have been able to learn about that family.

Moses Lee, eldest son of Dr. Ebenezer, who grew to manhood, settled at or near Mt. Vernon, Ohio. I have learned that he made return of property and paid taxes there in 1822, and that is all.

Riverius, second son, is said to have settled in Ohio, and died, leaving no posterity. After a long search, the posterity of Simeon Lee, the youngest son of Dr. Ebenezer, has been found, and his descendants traced more thoroughly than in almost any other Lee family, by Maj. Edwin Lee Heath, (one of them,) of Brantford, Ontario, numbering nearly or quite three hundred.

Charles, son of William, the soldier, of Bristol, died in North Carolina, leaving no posterity.

David, third son of the David branch, has been traced to Manchester, Vt., where he was a judge in 1782, and some of the family were living there between 1812 and 1820, and then all trace is lost. The only thing I could get was, "All moved to the west." Concerning any of the others named on that page, I have not been able to obtain the least information.

It seems almost incredible that the six sons of the first Jedediah—Elias, Josiah, Jedediah, Jr., Oliver, Zebulon and Simon—should have all died leaving no descendants, but thus far I have been able to find no one who knows any such names in his ancestral line.

That I have had so little success is no fault of mine. What I have gathered is the result of much time, patience, pen-pushing and burning of the "midnight oil." One great cause of perplexity and confusion is in the fact that the same names are repeated and duplicated over, and over, and over again, in other families, as well as ours. Among the descendants of John Lee, Jr., are six generations of Johns, and five generations of Hezekiahs. In the Stephen branch are six generations of Isaacs, in the Thomas branch are five generations of Thomas, and in the David branch are five generations of Davids. There are six different Samuel Lees, if not more, who served in the war of the Revolution in Connecticut, three Williams, two Jonathans, two Thomases and two Timothy's—all told, about sixty Lees, of whom more than one-third were of our family.

There were five separate Lee families in Connecticut between 1635 and 1712 of no degree of kin, so far as can be learned. I have corresponded with representatives of all of them. I think there are, at least, ten distinct families of Lees in New England who ante-date the Revolution, aside from several families of English, Scotch and Irish since that date.

I yet have strong faith that, if we had the means to pay for the labor, most of our lost families could be traced, but I am not able to do it. (The necessity of daily toil is upon me, so that it is out of my power.) I have done my best under the circumstances. This work should be pushed now; the farther we recede from the early days, the more difficult the task. Many of those who in the early part of this work rendered assistance and information of great value have finished their life work.

It may seem invidious to particularize, but justice requires that I make special mention of Leonard Lee, Sarah F. Lee and Major Edwin Lee Heath, who have always been ready and have rendered valuable service. To several of the kindred, who have by help, advice and counsel rendered me service, I tender my sincere thanks. This long correspondence with friends and kindred whom I have never met, and probably never shall, has cheered me in many weary hours, and I flatter myself that I have added somewhat to the pleasure of others. Some younger man, with a more ready pen, must take up the work. When one carries nearly 70 years and more than 200 avoirdupois, he cannot by any play of fancy or stretch of imagination, convince himself that he is a young man. "Old men for counsel, young men for war" is an old maxim and it applies here as well as in other fields of labor. Although Farmington is the home of our Lees, but a few remain in Connecticut. All told, there are not so many men in Connecticut bearing the Lee name belonging to our family as served in the army of the Revolution, from this town, still there are enough younger men than myself to take hold of this work and carry it along. Most of the gray heads at our former meeting twelve years ago are seen of men no more. Should there be another meeting 12 years hence, most of us who are gray, will have joined the silent majority, but I firmly hope that those who care to preserve the memory of our ancestors, will keep alive this Association, and that as often as circumstances will permit they will assemble as we have to-day - will keep bright the chain that binds us in ties of kindred and prove themselves worthy descendants of Stephen Hart, whose blood we inherit as well as of John Lee, original proprietors of Farmington, Conn.

WM. WALLACE LEE,

Secretary.

Brief comments followed the reading of these reports, but action pertaining to them was deferred to a later hour.

On motion of Leonard Lee, and seconded by Major E. L. Heath of Ontario, a committee on reorganization was appointed to report at some later hour, consisting of Leonard Lee, Major E. L. Heath and Wm. Wallace Lee.

In response to a call from the President, Miss Ella E. Lee of Lewis, N. Y., was escorted to the rostrum by Leonard Lee and introduced as the great-granddaughter of Deacon Seth Lee of Farmington, who removed to Ludlow, Vt., just 100 years ago, and died there in 1803. She then read a paper of which the following is an abstract. It was read in a clear and distinct voice, and was listened to with great interest, and at the close received many flattering comments.

MR. PRESIDENT, KINDRED, FRIENDS:

Some writers, in presenting an article to the public, write a preface to their work. Cicero acknowledges he kept in his desk a collection of prefaces, which he could, at any time, attach to anything he wanted to publish for himself or others; so to you, dear kindred, I give as a preface to my humble paper; my ancestral links in the "Lee chain," and the reason I am before you.

It may be a stale subject, to some of you, to talk about our early ancestors, but to others, it will be like the "Old, Old Story," ever new.

Our common ancestor, John Lee, came to this country, from England, in 1634. He married Mary, daughter of Stephen Hart, in 1658, and four sons and two daughters were given to them. John, Mary, Stephen, Thomas David and Tabitha.

Thomas married Mary Camp of Hartford, Conn., September 11, 1707. Nine children were given to them to bless their union. Lydia, Mary, Jared, Joseph, Mary, John, Thomas, James and Ebenezer.

Jared married Rhoda Judd of Farmington, Conn., January 5th, 1735. Six children were given them. Seth, Amos, Timothy, Noah, Rhoda and Louis.

Seth was born, March 31, 1736, at Farmington, Conn. He graduated at Yale college in 1759 and was tutor there four years. One class gave him, "as a token of their respect, a gold ring," and I am happy to say, I am the owner of that much prized ring given to my great-grandfather.

The ring has the letters, "S. L." upon it. I came into possession of this ring through Miss Sylvia Lee, aged 78 years, (who expected to be present, until last Sunday, but was detained by sickness) a granddaughter of Deacon Seth and daughter of Seth Jr. Aside from other testimonials of their love and respect he received a "morning gown" made of the finest material of the day. I am sorry to say, that this gown, to my knowledge, is not to be found, but the ring, some books, a punch bowl, also other relics of his are here on exhibition, together with some things that belonged to his wife.

He studied theology; was a licensed preacher; received a number of "calls" but never accepted a charge. Some of his sermons were burned about twenty-two years ago, when his son Timothy's house was destroyed by fire in Lewis, N. Y.

He began a diary in 1766 from which many facts are taken to aid in the revised Genealogy.

He married Sarah Ingersoll of Ridgefield, Conn., for his first wife. They had one child, Sarah Ingersoll. For his second wife, he married Joanna Johnson of Wallingford, Conn., September 9, 1771. Nine children were given to them - all born at Farmington. Charles Johnson, Anna, Samuel, Noah, Abigail, Seth, Rhoda, George W. and Timothy Pitkin.

Deacon Seth kept a "tavern" and an apothecary store here, but in June 1796, he, with his family, moved to Ludlow, Vt., where he and his wife used their influence and talents to establish a moral and religious state of society.

Among the twenty-four original members of the Congregational church organized there 1806, is found the name of Joanna Lee.

Deacon Seth Lee died at Ludlow, and the following inscription is found upon the table-stone, 5½ by 3 feet square and four inches thick, which rests upon boulders, about six inches from the ground, that marks his last resting place

"Here lieth interred the body of Deacon Seth Lee, A. M., a gentleman of good understanding, solid learning and calm temper, a faithful friend, and exemplary christian, liv'd, belov'd and died lamented, on the 17th of February, 1803 in the 67th year of his age."

"THE MEMORY OF THE JUST IS BLESSED."

There has been some talk of moving the stone bearing this inscription, together with the ashes of our ancestor, to the cemetery in Lewis, N. Y., and placing them beside his wife, Joanna, whose plain marble slab bears the following:

"In memory of Joanna, wife of Deacon Seth Lee, died September 8, 1818, in her 76th year."

"All you that read with little care,
And go away, and leave me here,
Don't you forget, than you must die,
And be entombed, as well as I."

Noah, the fourth child by Joanna, married Clarissa Nicholson, of New Hartford, Conn., May 1, 1806. Their children were Clarissa, Sarah Ann, Julia Bertha, Ralza Morse, and Chauncey. Only one of this family is living, Mrs. Julia Bertha Wescott of New Lisbon, Wisconsin, aged 81 years, and Squier Lee of Bristol, Indiana, a husband of Clarissa, in his 89th year, who is of Scotch descent, and is present.

Noah, with some of his brothers, came to the State of New York, early in the 19th century, and not far from the beautiful Lake Champlain, in the town of Lewis, Essex Co., cleared the ground and built their "log-cabins;" then returned for their wives. All the children of my father's family, were born in the log-house, but my father, who had the honor of being "the baby," in the new house, which still stands in a good state of preservation, but repaired by my father in 1859, also additional repairs by my brother, who, with his wife, now occupy the old homestead.

Noah, with a number of his brothers served in the war of 1812. He was "justice of the peace" for nearly thirty years, and was a shoe-maker by trade.

My father, Chauncey, was born August 25th, 1820, married Amanda M. Wells of Oak Center, Wisconsin, January 10, 1860, both deceased. They had three children, Irvin Elmer, Clara, deceased, and myself. Thus the links in my chain are: Chauncey, Noah, Seth, Jared, Thomas, John 1st.

In the winter of 1893, we received a letter from Leonard Lee, addressed to my father, who died November 5, 1891, asking about the decendants of Deacon Seth Lee. I answered the letter, giving all the data I could get at that time. In the summer of 1895 our kinsman, and one of the moving spirits of this gathering, Leonard Lee, came up into the Adirondack Mountains of New York and visited our home. He then urged me to prepare a paper for this gathering, and suggested for my text, "The Importance of Keeping Genealogical Records."

Like many another of the weaker sex, I pleaded my inability to prepare an article suitable to present to such a learned assemblage as this, but as usual, the stronger sex prevailed; and I am here and will endeavor to fulfil my promise to the best of my ability, trusting that you, in your kindness of heart, which is ever a characteristic of our race, will not harshly criticise the numerous errors made by a "country-school ma'am."

How many of us, present, really know our fathers and our mothers? Some of you may think, "why! know my parents, certainly I do," or did, as the case may be, but I fear there are but few of us who really know them as we ought. Are we not oftener strangers, except in name? We have too little in common. Perhaps diversity of employment may be one reason, but would it not be well and serviceable to search the family tree, even to its roots and the nature of its soil, that we may ascertain what forces, spiritual, moral or physical, and what habits, pursuits and beliefs had to do with the origin, and shaping of our bodies and our minds?

Certainly a parent should familiarize himself with the personal traits and peculiarities of his child, and ought not the child to study closely the temperaments and habits of his parents? Yes! his ancestors?

For my part I do not care to undertake to prove the "Darwinian theory," or on the other hand, trace my ancestral line back to the garden of Eden, but I do think we ought to know more of our ancestors, than most of us do, for the reality of heredity is beyond question, though, perhaps, there is no other law, apparently, subject to as many exceptions and variations. Ambitions and aptitudes, talents and traits, virtues and vices often continue in the line of descent from remotest times, as well as from voice and carriage, but if we are conversant with the personal traits of our ancestors, some of us may be able to counteract and reverse the disagreeable traits of our ancestors, by the use of a strong will and the power of God. We have many such examples as Henry Wilson, once vice-president of the United States, George Stephenson and others.

What is the extent of a parent's influence? If we look into the prisons, the reformatories, or upon the gallows, we see the result of the influence of one kind, but can we as easily measure the result of a good influence? We see some of it when we look at our orphan homes, schools, colleges, and churches. Surely, something is due to a pious ancestry, for "The hand that rocks the cradle, is the hand that rules the world."

In the second beautiful letter Paul wrote to Timothy, his young co-laborer in the Lord's vineyard, we find he calls Timothy's attention to his worthy ancestors—his grand-mother Lois and his mother Eunice, and urges him to remember their religious teachings. Let us try and make religion an heirloom from generation to generation. Oh! for even one generation of holy men and women. Can you picture the result?

Good or bad influence may skip one of two generations, but it may appear in the third or fourth, just as the "Ten Commandments," speaking of the visitation of God on the families, says nothing about the second generation, but speaks only of the third and fourth, "Visiting the iniquity of the fathers upon the children, unto the third and fourth generation of them that hate me, and showing mercy unto thousands of them that love me and keep my commandments."

Do we know the extent of the influence of our good Mrs. Pickett, in our line of John 2nd, who was ever a friend and benefactor of the feeble and unfortunate? or the interest created in our genealogical records, by our faithful Sarah Marsh Lee? or the result of such lives as our Rev. Samuel and Dr. Thomas Goodrich Lee? Their influence will be felt in the 20th century.

While we look at our Marthas and our Marys, or at our Johns and our Lukes, let us not forget the material that characterized our "mighty men of valor,"—our Joshuas and our Davids, for we can justly be proud of our representatives on the battle fields in every war since John Lee made America his home.

We had our Captain Stephen Lee, who died in 1753, and our Colonel Isaac Lee, who died in 1802, both took a prominent part in church, local and military affairs of their day, and among the names of many others, the name of Captain Noah Lee, who was afterwards Colonel, stands out prominently in our military records, of the latter part of the 18th century. I have visited the historical grounds at Crown Point and Ticonderoga—where our Captain Noah held command—and in a feeble voice, I demanded the surrender of the now fast decaying forts. The spoils I brought away with me were some rocks from those historical places.

War is not romance, but a stern reality; and a man whose brave ancestors have carried the name he bears, far and wide and made it a synonym for courage and honor is rightly proud of his descent and gets from it a new impulse, to bear as brave a part in his own day. No man can be truly patriotic, who does not know something of the nation to which he belongs, and the country in which he lives. But how can he become acquainted with these? By studying the histories of the nation, or country, for history is but a systematic account of facts and events, and the work of noble men and women.

Some may find such a study dry and uninteresting. To those, I say, they ought to belong to some of the nations of antiquity, where it was the custom to repeat to each succeeding generation the noble deeds of their ancestors, thus making history, only a great oral tradition and turning it from the dead records, which some considered it to be, into a bright and attractive romance. I feel very much in regard to this, like the gentleman, who dined at a country hotel, when asked which he would have, "apple or mince pie," replied: "a large piece of each, please."

Some seem to forget that a family history, or genealogy, bears the same relation to the family, as a State history, does to a State.

Some may "scout" the idea of keeping a family record, or history, but those who do, we can generally place as properly belonging to a jealous and querulous race, who find no pleasure in other people, and not even in themselves.

There are multitudes, who scarcely know the meaning of the word genealogy, and the extent the work is being carried on.

One may gain a faint idea of the work by visiting the Genealogical rooms at Hartford, which contain over six hundred volumes, or the Genealogical rooms in New York, which contain over nine hundred volumes, or the New England Historic Genealogical rooms at Boston, Mass., which possess a library of 20,770 volumes and 60,000 pamphlets.

I had the pleasure of spending a little time in the rooms at Boston during the summer of '95, and it was there I first realized the extent of this important work.

A new interest has been created in this line, within the past few years, by the organization of such societies as "The Sons of the Revolution," "The Daughters of the Revolution," "Children of the American Revolution," "Colonial Dames," etc., and many who might be eligible to become members of these societies will be unable to give satisfactory evidence as to their eligibility, as no genealogical records of their ancestors have been kept, and the testimony of these worthy people cannot be obtained from the country they now inhabit.

Some know, comparatively, nothing of their ancestors, only, perhaps, a few names with birth and death found in some old family Bible. I know of an earnest worker in the Y. M. C. A., who has tried to trace his line back and find to what great family he belongs, but has been unable, because his parents, who have passed away, did not realize the importance of informing their son, as he once asked his father what he was, and his father burst into immoderate laughter, which continued for some time, then, recovering himself, replied: "Well, you know that on your mother's side you are of German descent. My father was an Englishman, my mother an Irish woman, so that you are one-half German, one-fourth English and one-fourth Irish; or, in other words, you are a mongrel," followed by another prolonged fit of laughter.

And, too, there are many, who have not considered the time, labor and money expended in the revision of our Genealogy, by our faithful workers, Wm. Wallace and Leonard Lee, and others, as many of their letters, asking for information have remained unanswered, for months. Yes! some never answered, and yet when these people come to examine our new book, they will feel almost indignant to find an incomplete record, or no record of their family there. Who will be to blame?

We are all familiar, with the reply Michael Angelo gave to a friend who called on him while finishing a statue; sometime afterward he called again; the sculptor was still at work; his friend, looking at the picture exclaimed: "You have been idle since I saw you last," "By no means," replied the sculptor; I have retouched this part and polished that; I have softened this feature and brought out this muscle; I have given more expression to this lip, and more energy to that limb,"—"Well, well," said his friend. "but they are trifles"—"It may be so," replied Angelo, "but recollect that trifles make perfection and perfection is no trifle," so with our Genealogy, they have retouched the lives of some; brought to our notice others of whom we knew little, and they have brought the records down to the present time, as complete as possible, and I think we ought to show our appreciation of their work.

We find by carefully examining our Bibles, that it was considered important to keep genealogical records; we find in the book of Genesis the records of the institution of the first family,—that of Adam and Eve,—also of their family. The books of Chronicles are largely given up to such records. The beautiful book of Ruth gives a connecting link in the life of Christ, and in the first chapter of Matthew we find the genealogy of Christ from Abraham to Joseph.

The Jews, in particular, regarded such records of extreme importance, and they are all placed in the Scriptures for our instruction.

Thus we have the early example of "keeping sacred the memory of our ancestors," and of keeping their genealogy for the interest of future generations.

An opinion prevails somewhat among our kindred, that there is somewhere a vast fortune that we are heirs to, if we can only trace our connection to certain families in England, but, I trust, dear friends, we all are joint heirs to "that inheritance, incorruptible, undefiled, and that fadeth not away, reserved in heaven for you," and that we may all meet on that "Beautiful shore."

The poet says :

"Two things there are we have no voice in choosing,
Our ancestors, nor our existence here ;
Fate's mandates here admit of no refusing,
From prince, or beggar, sinner, saint or seer."

At the noon hour the company adjourned to another room in which had been provided a sumptuous collation by Mrs. H. L. Crandall.

It was an hour of sociability and complimentary remarks on the several papers which had been read, and the pleasant aspect of the gathering, notwithstanding the extreme heat of the day. Coming from various parts of the country but few had ever before met. Little ceremony, however, was required to form an acquaintance, and a general feeling prevailed, that they were the scattered children of one family, who had returned to rally around the old hearthstone.

At 1:30 the assemblage was again called to order, the exercises commencing by singing the following:

COME YE ALL.

(Arranged for the Occasion.)

1.

Farmington, 'tis of thee,
Home of our ancestry,
Of thee we sing ;
Land where our fathers dwelt,
Altars at which they knelt,
Joys which their children felt,
In chorus ring.

To ancient Farmington, Come every scattered son
Of our John Lee ;
Come from the prairies wide,
Come from the mountain side,
And from Pacific's tide,
In jubilee.

3.

Come from the cottage home,
Come from the palace dome,
And kindred meet :
Let hillsides once again,
Echo a grand refrain—
Kindred prolong the strain,

From where the orange grows,
From where the zephyr blows,
Come swell the throng ;
Come from old England's shore,
The mother land of yore,
Come from the wide world o'er,
A thousand strong.

5.

Canadians from the north—
Confed'rates from the south,—
One common band ;
Your kindred here extend
A welcome to each friend,
And kindly greeting send To every land.

6.

No strife shall here be found,
 Our hearts with joy abound,
 Good will display,
 Reunion let it be Souls joined in harmony,
 And spirits all set free,
 To bless the day.

7.

Countless as grains of sand,
 Bleaching on ocean strand,
 Though numbers be ;
 Let joy triumphant spring,
 Let the wide welkin ring,
 Ev'ry Lee shout and sing,
 A jubilee.

The old familiar air was rendered with a hearty good will, following which, Miss Sarah Fiske Lee of New Hampshire, daughter of Rev. Samuel Lee, a well known clergyman and author, was escorted to the platform and introduced by Wm. Wallace Lee, in a few appropriate remarks. A historical paper, prepared with much care was read by her, which gave rise to many complimentary remarks, and awakened a deep interest in the project of a new family genealogy which it was intended soon to publish. An abstract only has been furnished by her, as follows :

"Pride of ancestry is a natural and ennobling sentiment," and we, as a people, are, in these later years, awaking to an appreciation of the grandeur and strength of the lives and characters of those who have lived here before us, and also of the debt we owe to them. "Our ancestors paid too great a price to be forgotten or ignored." Their "plain living and high thinking," and "their only luxury doing good" show their character, and it stands out in bold relief against the background of bigotry and intolerance, which attempted to follow them across the sea.

One of the favorite pursuits of the present day is that of genealogical research, and it is now most unfashionable not to know the name of one's great grandfather, at the very least, and, once in the outer circle of the whirlpool of such research, one is borne onward in ever narrowing and deepening circles toward the Maelstrom, from which there is no escape.

We have high authority for thinking that the record of our lineage is worthy our attention. The first book mentioned in the Bible is a genealogy, "The book of the generations of Adam," and six chapters of Genesis are devoted to a genealogical record. We all remember the long catalogue of names in the first chapters of Chronicles. Among the Hebrews, persons were specially appointed to draw up genealogical tables, and sometimes these were continued for many hundreds of years. The Greeks and ancient Romans gave great attention to keeping a record of their lines of descent, and, when speaking of any of their heroes, always gave the name of the father, and perhaps of the grandfather. Some of their military orders required a record of the ancestors of a candidate before being admitted to their ranks. This is true, though in a less degree, of early English history.

As a family we are specially fortunate. Before 1766, Seth Lee (born 1736) graduated as tutor at Yale College, wrote a family record beginning with a statement of all that was then known of John Lee the emigrant, (his great grandfather.) He carefully carried out the family record of each of the sons of John¹, and of subsequent generations as he was able, until his death in 1803. His grandfather's youngest brother David (son of John¹) lived until Seth was 23 years old, and doubtless related to him many traditions of his father, and his contemporaries. Traditions of those early days have a value not given to those of a later date. There was less to divert and absorb the attention. Amusements were largely social, and there was so little "news of the day" that people were driven to talking of the past and its events for entertainment, and the aged person of clear memory, and a good narrator, was held in high esteem. Families then were not scattered, and when they met in family conclave, the conversation could be more personal than in a more general circle. We may therefore fully rely upon the statements in the manuscript of Seth.

After his death in 1803, there was an interval of many years, during which our records depended upon family Bibles, and occasionally a manuscript record of a particular family for three or four generations, as did other clans less favored in this respect.

About 1845, Deacon Charles Lee of Norwich, Conn., began, for his own pleasure, to collect material for a genealogy, consulting records of church, town, state and probate, and traveling quite extensively. During these researches he ran across the path of Rev. Samuel Lee of New Ipswich, N. H., who was engaged in the same line of investigation, and they began a correspondence and a partnership of interest and research terminated only by the death of Deacon Lee in 1865. The work was continued, at intervals, by Rev. Mr. Lee and Miss Sarah Marsh, only daughter of Deacon Lee, who had been her father's sympathetic and intelligent helper in all his work.

In 1872, Mr. Lee, with his youngest son, George William, discovered the headstone of John¹, and the beautiful monument which now marks the resting place of our honored ancestor was placed there by William Henry Lee of New York city.

In 1874, Rev. Mr. Lee, with the help of his only daughter, Sarah Fiske, prepared an article, published in the Historical and Genealogical Register, giving a record, nearly complete, of the first four generations from John¹. Extra copies of this were printed for private circulation, and it is familiar to many of you. This was a fine nucleus for a larger genealogy, and aroused interest in the work in many of our clan. Miss Sarah Marsh was urged to complete the work, for which so much material had been collected. At first, she was reluctant to do so, but the persuasion and encouragement of many friends, and, most of all, her filial love led her to undertake this work, and she compiled, with almost infinite painstaking, the book which was published in 1878. It was as complete as material which could then be obtained would permit. Many branches were omitted, others given only in part, but everything possible to accuracy and unwearied industry was done. In accuracy, clearness and felicity of general arrangement, this book stands in the first rank among kindred works, and has been taken as a sample by later genealogical writers.

From this book was made out the list of names of Lees who were invited to the Family Reunion of 1884. That Reunion was to us an event of the greatest importance. Previously, we had almost entirely been to each other mythical beings, having indeed names and local habitations, but otherwise being only "airy nothings." Friendships were formed, and the tie of kinship there first recognized has strengthened, and the circle has widened. The result we see to-day in the meeting of the kindred, from the Atlantic to the Pacific, from Canada to our southern boundaries.

At the meeting in 1884, a permanent organization was effected, and William Wallace Lee was chosen Secretary. He at once began a search for those missing branches of our family tree, and his perseverance has been rewarded by the discovery of, not only families, but tribes of our Lees, who have been dispersed throughout the land. Years were spent in this labor and a mountain of names and dates accumulated. Mr. Lee, busied day by day in his chosen calling, could not arrange these letters and he called for help. Leonard Lee of Kenosha, Wis., was the first to answer the call. He found among these letters so much that was valuable in the way of records that, with Wallace, he decided that it was desirable to put it in print, that it might be saved for those to whom in the future it would be of priceless value. Not content with this, Mr. Leonard Lee took many journeys, on genealogical errands bent, visited families in their homes, copied records from family Bibles,—the truest records in the world, except possibly those found in cemeteries—collected data and traditions from aged persons, searched newspaper files of the last century, and in a different way, did quite as much work as had been done, in his way by Wallace Lee.

On reaching Meriden, Conn., Leonard Lee patiently reduced the chaotic mass of records and papers to a degree of order, and papers relating to the different branches were classified. At this stage of affairs, Miss Sarah Fiske, daughter of Rev. Samuel Lee, consented to take charge of the John branch, and later of the Stephen branch, also, in the latter, receiving most efficient aid from Mrs. Jeannette Lee Coe of Winsted, Conn. Letters of inquiry beyond computation have been written by these compilers. Names and dates have been sought by repeated questionings and—sometimes found, then arranged, doubted, contradicted and re-arranged, only finally to be “sifted as wheat.” Records have been searched, cemeteries visited, contemporary genealogies consulted, and now the book is nearly written and everything done that has come within the power or scope of the workers.

Would you like to know something of the work and what it would tell you? You will find it in the work about to be published.

As the remainder of this article consisted only of an outline of the Lee Genealogy, not then published, it is not given here.

It seemed becoming that some proper recognition should be observed of the kindred who were with us in 1884, and had since passed away. The President called upon Wm. Wallace Lee, who had kept a record of deaths, as far as he had been able to obtain them. Few of those present were aware of the mortality which had occurred among those who were with us in 1884, and his remarks were listened to with profound interest.

MORTUARY.

The grand procession that is moving onward to the unseen shore, is composed of the young, as well as the old, the robust as well as the feeble. It is doubtful if there was ever assembled a group of one hundred, composed of the same individuals, on two separate occasions. The prediction which was made at the close of our first gathering (found on page 70 of the book published in 1885) has been more than verified.

Of those who were present at our first meeting, I have a list of thirty who have died, and very likely the number would exceed that if I had full returns from all the families that were represented there. Of those from whom responses were received, with words of encouragement, and yet, from various causes were unable to attend, I have a list of thirty-four that have died, and I feel quite certain that the number would exceed that, if I had the names of all. In only a small number of cases has any one taken pains to inform me of any deaths among the kindred, so that I have been compelled to obtain what I have in a fragmentary way. All the information that I have gathered in this line will appear in the new edition of our family history when published. I feel it is meet and proper to mention the names of our officers, who have by words of encouragement and material assistance, helped to promote the work in which we have been engaged.

The death of Gad Henry Lee, the week following our meeting, was a shock to us all, soon followed by the death of Rev. A.

L. Loveland of Granby. Worthy tributes were furnished, which can be found in the book, pages 84, 85 and 86. I cannot give them in chronological order, but they include Sarah Marsh Lee of Norwich, Ct., Dr. Mary Victoria Lee of Oswego, N. Y., Willard O. Lee of Springfield, Mass., William Wallace Lee of Bristol, Ind. He removed to Snohomish, Wash., and died there. At the time of our meeting it was thought he was one of our family, but subsequent information did not confirm the opinion. Augustin N. Lee, Chicago; Francis Lee, Clinton, Iowa; Richard Henry Lee of Spring Hill, Kas., who enjoyed our meeting so much; Henry V. B. Lee, Long Island City, L. I.; Nathaniel Smith Lee, Oneida, N. Y., both of them soldiers; John R. Lee, Buffalo, N. Y., who took a very deep interest in family matters; Andrew Frink Lee, Buffalo. All who were at our first meeting remember his genial, hearty way. Thomas Lee, Westmoreland, N. Y., who rendered valuable information; Luther Clark Lee, Aurora, captain in an Illinois regiment, and Benjamin F. Lee, Oakland, Cal., brother of Richard Henry, Kansas. With very few exceptions, all of those here named were ready and willing to assist in all that I had attempted to do to promote the objects of our association.

On April 9, 1895, our President, William Henry Lee, died at his home (for later years) in Hartford. Perhaps it is because as a principal officer of our association, I was brought more closely in contact with him, that I have felt the loss so keenly, but his death is a loss which can but be severely felt by us all. I say frankly to you that, had it not been for his kind words of cheer and encouragement, coupled with material assistance, always so generously rendered, I should have been strongly tempted many times to lay aside the work I had undertaken and abandon it forever. But I came to feel that I had his confidence, and the more I knew him the more I admired him. I was many times invited to his home and shared his hospitality on several occasions. To him we are all indebted for the handsome stone that marks the burial place of our common ancestor, and also for the deep interest which he took in all pertaining to our common family history.

Were he living, I would not be permitted to say these words of eulogy. His modesty was so marked a trait of his character, he would not have allowed it. To whom shall we look to fill his place? I fear we shall find it a very difficult matter to carry on the work which he was so anxious to see completed, i. e., a more full and complete record of our common family. I earnestly hope some way can be devised. His worth as a man, as a citizen, loyal to his church and his convictions, we all know, and we may name our kinsman with a feeling of pride and tenderness combined.

This list which I have read, impresses us all with the fact that our ranks are being continually broken, and is even more forcibly brought to our attention when I say of all the gray-haired men who sat upon the platform at our first meeting, Deacon William Lee, of Marysville, O., alone survives. Looking out toward that unknown land to which we are all hastening with the faith our fathers held, we can say "it is well," for I have no doubt that all of us, no matter what our faith creed or sect, hope for something brighter and better beyond, but,

"We may not know its soft and balmy air,
How bright and fair its flowers.
We may not hear the songs that echo there,
Through those celestial bowers."

The mortuary exercises concluded by singing an appropriate selection, commencing: "Thou art gone to the grave, but we will not deplore thee," after which the assemblage adjourned to visit the old church and cemetery.

The old church, built in 1771, on the site of the edifice in which our ancestors worshipped, and in which many of the earlier generations were christened, was an object of great interest. Its quaint furnishings, though much modernized, and its broad galleries, still showed the antique style, and were particularly novel to those from the Western States. Seth Lee was for many years, deacon of this church, and in it his children were all baptized.

The ancient cemetery in which our ancestor, John Lee was buried in 1690—a few minutes walk south of the church, was next visited. On the height of ground the modern monument of John Lee—erected by the munificence of William H. Lee in 1876, is a conspicuous object. Standing by its side, in a substantial base, is the rude headstone of two hundred years ago. It was looked upon with veneration, and by most of those present, for the first time. A few yards distant, and apparently wrought by the same hand, may be seen the headstone of Stephen Hart, Jr.,—brother of Mary Hart Lee—who died in 1689.

When the company had assembled about the monument, the President, Rev. F. T. Lee, made a few remarks, speaking substantially as follows:

Few words are necessary at a time like this. The occasion itself speaks far more impressively than human language could do, and it is for us, simply to interpret and to apply its lessons. To me the hour seems sacred. Many and interesting are the associations which cluster about the name of our common ancestor. The details of his life which have come down to us are exceedingly meager, and imagination naturally seeks to supply what history fails to give. Since my attention has been turned to the subject of our ancestry, I have often wondered in regard to the early home and surroundings of the boy who came to this new and wilderness land over 260 years ago—the motives which prompted him, the object which he hoped to achieve. I have thought of the “breaking of the home ties,” which proved to be final so far as we know, there being nothing to show that he ever re-visited his native land, or that his parents came later to this country. I have followed him in imagination as he made the long and tedious voyage, devoid of the comforts of modern ocean travel; have tried to put myself in his place, and to imagine the sense of strangeness with which he must have regarded everything in the new land; the lonely hours he must have spent; the homesickness, perhaps, which he may have experienced; for a boy of only fourteen years must frequently have thoughts of the home and the parents he had left, and, however considerate his guardians may have been, must often have longed for the mother’s kindly sympathy and tender love.

I wonder, too, how deeply, as he grew to maturer years, he entered into the real spirit of the movement of his time, which prompted so many to come to this land, sacrificing much, enduring hardships, frequently suffering great loss. I wonder, also, if his thought was ever turned reflectively to the future,—of the nation then in the earliest beginnings; of its institutions then in their incipency; of his own posterity, destined to be so numerous and influential. Little, doubtless, did he dream of an occasion like this, generations later, when his descendants from all over this broad land, should come together to do honor to his memory. Most likely his thoughts were occupied chiefly, as ours are to-day, with the present, little realizing the great things which the future had in store for this country. If he did, if any of us indeed were to dwell upon what the years may bring, we should all, I apprehend, feel constrained to do as the lady who always, in her prayers, remembered, not only her children then living, but all her posterity as well.

I am impressed with one thought in particular as I stand here beside the grave of our ancestor, this afternoon. It is the significance, the worth, the dignity of the individual. John Lee, as a boy in the immigrating company, was little noticed or thought of, probably, save as simply a boy among other boys, and he himself, I presume, had no unusual consciousness of importance. And yet, see what results have flowed from his coming—the long line of descendants, the relations they have sustained to the development of this State and other States, the record they have made, of which we have been hearing to-day. He was a link in a chain, the beginning of a new line of succession, as it were. Great interests for the years to come centered in him.

So with us all, my friends, each one is a link. Important interests center in us for the future, if not for to-day. What we need is to realize this more than we sometimes do, and realizing it, to recognize that life is real and earnest, seek to act well our part in the living present, that those of the years to come, our descendants, may take pride in recalling us—rejoice to do us honor, and gather inspiration from our example and spirit, to greater fidelity and to nobler lives for themselves.

An appropriate selection was sung at the close, but the overpowering heat of the sun shortened the time which would have been most interestingly spent among the headstones of more than two centuries ago.

The day was now far spent, and those who had come by carriages returned to their home, while others enjoyed a refreshing ride by trolley, to Hartford, and spent another pleasant evening in the hotel parlors. Thus passed the first day.

SECOND DAY.—AUGUST 13.

Called to order at 10 o'clock and meeting opened by prayer by Prof. H. C. King, and singing of Coronation.

All seemed refreshed by a cooler breeze, and several new arrivals were noted.

A Roll of Honor was now read, comprising a list of soldiers furnished by the family, in the various wars of the country, commencing with Stephen Hart who, accompanied Captain John Mason in the Pequot war of 1637. Names were given of seventeen who served in the French war, 49 in the Revolutionary war, 19 in the War of 1812-15, two Canadians in the British army, and 94 in the War of 1861-65, and five Confederates. The list had been compiled by Leonard Lee, as the result of much research through the State archives, and from other sources of information, and still the roll is deemed incomplete, especially of those who served in the Civil war. The paper was read by William Wallace Lee, preceded by a few remarks, and followed by the singing of a selection, commencing, to the tune of Old Hundred.

A verbal report from the committee on re-organization was next listened to.

It was recommended that the officers of the “Lee Association” consist of five vice-presidents, one of whom should be chosen as president, besides one secretary and treasurer and one assistant secretary and treasurer.

The report was adopted, and choice made of the following officers :

VICE PRESIDENTS.

MISS SARAH F. LEE, of New Ipswich, N. H., of the “John” branch.
 JAMES T. LEE, of New Britain, Conn., of the “Stephen” branch.
 LEONARD LEE, of Kenosha, Wis., of the “Thomas” branch.
 GEORGE H. LEE, of Bridgeport, Conn., of the “David” branch.
 EDWIN LEE HEATH, of Brantford, Ont., of the “Canadians.”

SECRETARY AND TREASURER.

WILLIAM WALLACE LEE, Meriden, Conn.
 LEONARD LEE, Kenosha, Wis., Assistant.

JAMES T. LEE of New Britain, was chosen President, and accepted the office in a few becoming remarks.

A publishing committee was also appointed consisting of William Wallace Lee, Miss Sarah F. Lee and Leonard Lee, to which was added the President, James T. Lee.

A consideration of the reports of the Secretary and Treasurer, which were read in the morning, came next in order.

The subject of providing funds to defray the expense of publishing a new genealogy which was nearly ready for the press, was freely discussed. It was stated that it would be unbecoming to the Lee family to contract a debt for the purpose—that the compilers had already expended several hundred dollars on their own account, and that not less than $500 in hand, would warrant them to take any preliminary steps in that direction. This amount, with advance subscriptions for the work in prospect, would enable them to proceed.

The discussion was abruptly terminated by Mr. H. H. Osgood of Norwich, Conn., who generously pledged $100, which was received with applause. (Mr. Osgood is not of the Lee blood, but from childhood has been associated with the Lees, and made choice of a Lee girl for a wife.)

Mrs. Osgood promptly supplemented her husband's generous donation by the addition of $25 from her own resources; Wilbur E. Lee of Cambridge, Mass., added $25; Mrs. William H. Lee, Hartford, $50; and subsequently D. Bradley Lee of St. Louis, sent in his check for $75. Several subscriptions in advance were received, with the cash or pledged for 30 days—quite a number being for two copies or more: $350 being paid or pledged within a few minutes. This business was disposed of in less time than is required to write it, and farther business left in the hands of a committee.

Letters received from the kindred in various parts of the country were read, regretting their inability to be present, but expressing their sympathy in the re-union,

Then followed an address by Professor H. C. King of Oberlin College. Professor King is a graduate of Yale and is widely known. His address was a scholarly effort, and delivered without notes, in a style which commanded attention. His subject was,

THE IMPORTANCE OF THE STUDY OF FAMILY HISTORY.

You will see from the subject assigned me by the committee, that it falls to me really to tell you what you are here for. What reasons are there for the importance of the study of family history? Certain semi-serious considerations present themselves at once. In the first place, the student of family history is quite certain to gain a new sense of the meaning of genealogy. The papers already heard show how warm is the appreciation of the ardent genealogist for portions of the Bible not counted the juiciest. Even Genesis i and x, and 1st. Chronicles i to ix stir his enthusiasm. He is prepared to understand how much lies behind the mere record of names. Nor is our ardent genealogist far wrong. The books of Chronicles were meant to rouse the generation to whom they were addressed to renewed devotion to to the nation and its mission; and the recounting of the more notable of the names in each tribe was a most potent appeal. These names were a direct incitement to be worthy of their ancestors and to be true to their inheritance.

And then the study of your genealogy ministers to a proper self-esteem. When I was studying in Harvard University, there was a student known as Thomas Jefferson Coolidge, a direct descendant of Thomas Jefferson. I noticed that his name always appeared in full; and I suppose it would have been a near approach to deadly insult to refer to him at any time as plain "T. J. Coolidge." In my wanderings around Boston, I used to see on the door-plate of a physician, "Dr. Miles Standish." The wildest effort of my imagination has not enabled me to picture the doctor signing even the most hurried prescription simply "M. Standish." I imagine the past was an absolutely necessary part of self, of each of these men. They were more to themselves because of it. Nor is this all delusion. It is worth something to get your bearings in this old world of ours: to find out your definite connections in this universe of relations. You are not so mere an atom. One must be sorry for the man without a grandfather.

And it may well be that the study of family history has a moral value. Family pride may prove a real moral restraint. If the State counts the simply married man a distinctly safer citizen, and reckons every new tie a fresh pledge of good conduct, what shall be said of the assured moral steadiness of the man with his genealogy of eight generations and a family history of five hundred pages?

And if I am reminded here of Jeremy Taylor's humbling remark, that family pride is only being proud that your ancestors were better than you are, I have to reply that just here lies the solace for us Lees (and many another family besides), that we have not ancestors of exceptional distinction. Evidently they were true to their Connecticut tradition and training, and believed in local independence and individuality, and meant to give us, their descendants, a chance. Fortunately, therefore, we are without the one distinguished ancestor who would have doomed us all to being merely his distant imitators. We are rescued from the oblivion of Juniors, Seconds, Thirds, and allowed to be ourselves. And this leads me to add that I am thankful for another feature of the Lee genealogy: the originality of our beginnings in this country. The Lees emigrated from England as a boy. We thus escaped forever the "three brothers" who came over in the same boat. That fourteen year old boy, I take it, must have had sturdiness and independence. And this origin may have something to do with the reputed liveliness and originality of the Lees. This boy origin seems to me also, to come the nearest possible to solving the problem of how to get a simon-pure American ancestry, which should not be Indian. John Lee ought to have been a particularly good Democrat. At his age he must have had few monarchial prejudices to adjure; and from his first day's landing on these shores, he belonged to the community which was the very cradle of American Democracy. That origin seems to me, to be sufficiently American.

To speak a little more seriously of my subject, I mention as a further reason for the importance of the study of family history, the widening sense of kinship which is certain to result. The first motive to genealogical study seems often to be rather exclusive,—perhaps a desire to join the Sons of the Revolution. But in the end I believe its tendency to be altruistic. We are not merely “harking back to a physical fact,” but rather only using our common origin as an excuse for further mental acquaintance, based on a family psychological resemblance. A genealogical tree with its endless ramifications, is a kind of graphic illustration of the kinship of the race. Our hearts warm, as we study it, toward many who had seemed wholly strange. Our connections with the mother countries become real. As individuals and as patriots we are less narrow and selfish than we were.

Recognition of the importance of the study of family history, moreover, is quite in harmony with the modern method of beginning from the home in the teaching of history, and with the modern emphasis on biography. To feel a personal connection with even the merest bit of history adds reality to all history. No Lee, I am sure, can have followed, in imagination, John Lee in his connection with Thomas Hooker's Company, and later under the long ministry of Hooker's son at Farmington, and not found all the beginnings of American History more alive for him. The study of family history has thus one of the chief gains of travel.

And simply for the better understanding of ourselves, the study of family history is important. Many a puzzle in one's psychological make-up would be far easier of solution if we knew our ancestors better. It is of value to know the family characteristics, in their strength and their weakness. Nor is this a consideration of merely curious or prudential value. Every motive of love and respect urges that one know the entire lives of at least his father and mother well. I wish I might persuade every person to whom is still granted the presence of father or mother, to secure from them carefully written accounts of their lives. Those accounts would be priceless documents, and they would grow in preciousness with one's years.

A still deeper, and for me the chief reason, for the cultivation of family history lies in a national characteristic. We Americans need to cultivate the historical sense, personally, practically. No thoughtful American living for even a brief time among any European people can fail to be impressed, as by a novel sensation, with the evidence, everywhere present, of a sense of constant connection with the past. The German's “Es ist immer so” seems the one reason for every questioned institution. A nation has always, Lotze says, two duties, in seeming opposition: on the one hand, the duty of keeping faith with the past, of preserving some living community with those gone, the conservative tendency, the recognition of historical right; on the other hand, the duty of fidelity to the interests of the present, of revolt against the "dead hand:" the radical tendency, the recognition of abstract right. One need hardly go further than the opening sentences of the Declaration of Independence to see that the latter tendency is much stronger in Americans. Our history and our circumstances have increased this tendency. The so-called practical American mind tends in fact in these relations to become very theoretical. We are profoundly and unduly influenced by theories, by abstract considerations, and greatly lack what older countries have—the historical brake. And yet so called abstract justice may often be the rankest injustice; for it is likely to be mere arbitrary classing, with no recognition of individual differences, and doing away with all distinctions.

Its mood, as Professor James reminds us, is essentially that of the Shah of Persia, who declined when in England to take any interest in the Derby; for he said it was already known to him that one horse could run faster than another. Which horse was the faster was no matter. And yet it is the individual who is the reality, and not the class. The real is concrete always. One must, therefore, freely grant Professor James' contention that "the obstinate insisting that tweedle-dum is not tweedle-dee is the bone and marrow of life." So far, then, as the radical and abstract tendency is dominant in us, we need to cultivate the historical sense. We need to recognize that our roots are in the past, and to keep our faith with the past. Our country is too new, and our history too short to make very real any sense of obligation to the generations gone. There is little to remind us of them. We are always ready to begin anew. Few of us live even in the same town in which our fathers lived. Not a Lee, for example, remains here in Farmington, in this original home of our ancestors; and other families with a record as old, are similarly scattered. Almost the only ancient thing many of us have is our ancestry. It becomes us to make the most of that.

Closely connected with this need of the sense of community with the past is the need of the spiritual possession of our surroundings. Both enlarge self. The self needs to express itself in its surroundings. There is great loss here for our wandering population. Our whole people are too much like city renters, who have no real home, and have never put an atom of themselves into their places of abode. The mere conveniences of a flat can never make a home. This tramp life makes us vastly poorer, and lessens greatly the sense of responsibility, civic and moral. The mere renter, or the frequent mover, has not expressed himself in anything that abides. Therefore all ties set more lightly on him. The American, to be sure, often has a rarely high spiritual appreciation of the home; but he is greatly hampered by his surroundings in this regard. The literal possession of the paternal homestead is not possible to many of us; the spiritual possession of the family kinship is ; and this may do much to make up for that.

And after all, the only really sacred thing is a person. The Chinese reverence for ancestors has a much better philosophic basis than the more common reverence for places. The sacredness of all places and things is borrowed from persons. We do well to recall in filial affection the names and lives of those who have gone before us, from whom we have come. Every name in the most skeleton like genealogy still stands for a life history; and a little loving imagination re-clothes the barren name with the beauty and fragrance of a life passionately loved,—loved as we love life. They, too, lived and loved, hoped and aspired ; they, too were disappointed and defeated, and had their moments of achievement and conquest. And from the study of their lives we turn with chastened ambition and a more tender sympathy, to take up our allotted task, with its inherited limitations, glad of our living connection with the lives of years gone by.

And we may illustrate these general considerations from our own historical connections. Is it of no value to remind ourselves that we belong to the great Puritan stock of whom John Fiske can write : "Had it not been for the Puritans political liberty would probably have disappeared from the world"? So that "the moment of Cromwell's triumph was the most critical moment in history." Is it of no value to know that we belong to the great Puritan exodus to America, which Fiske thinks gave the final assurance that the English idea of nation making was to prevail over the Roman idea? so that the Puritan migration "marks most decisively the dawning of a new era," and the end of the Roman Empire. For this exodus was directly connected with the English struggle for liberty. In the twenty years between 1620 and 1640, 26,000 came to New England; but of that number scarcely 500 before 1629. The rest came between 1629 and 1640,—exactly the period when Charles the First was trying to rule England without a Parliament. Does it mean nothing to us that we belong to the Connecticut Secession; to the great Democratic towns of Dorchester, Newtown, and Watertown, with their dignified protest for the independence of the town, and with their unique "movements of organic communities?" Does it mean nothing that we belong to Connecticut, which Goldwin Smith rightly calls "the cradle of American Democracy;" to the State upon which Johnston tells us lay "for a time almost the entire burden of the Revolution;" the State that received and deserved the warmest praise given by Washington in that struggle, to any State; the State whose clear plan and one hundred and fifty years of experience of genuine Democracy made clearly dominant in the critical constitutional convention of the Union? Does it mean nothing that on both paternal and maternal sides, we belong to the Company of Thomas Hooker, the father of American Democracy, whose hand is clearly to be seen in the original Connecticut Constitution, according to John Fiske, "the first written constitution known to history that created a government;" a Constitution that applied politically the ecclesiastical principle of the Pilgrims before they themselves had done it?

On the coat of arms of the Lees—to which I know not if they have any valid title—appears the head of a reined-up horse. Whether there by right or not, it typifies not illy the reputed Lee characteristics,—vigorous, spirited, and with something more than a trace of wilfulness, yet commonly held in hand. For if we care to claim the device at all, the reining must come from within, not from without. We must not be wholly unworthy of Plato's noble figure of the soul as charioteer, having its steeds in hand. Certainly we must not fall below even pleasure-loving Aristippus: "I hold, I am not held."—I master my pleasures; my pleasures do not master me. If we are true to our inheritance, with breadth of view and self-control, in some high sense, we must be able to say with one of the world's greatest fighters, "All things are lawful, but I will not be brought under the power of any."

Following this address, Rev. Dr. Bacchus of Plainville, Conn., offered a few remarks on "Widening of Kinship."

The President then called on Wm. Wallace Lee to take the chair, who then introduced the reverend gentleman, as not only a genuine Lee, but, through his mother, a lineal descendant of William Westwood, the guardian of John Lee, when, as a strippling, he immigrated to the American shores. He was the only descendant of Westwood, known to be present. He then proceeded to deliver an address on "Characteristic Traits of the Lee Family," which as he stated in preliminary remarks, had cost him a vast amount of labor, from the fact that he had known few Lees outside of the paternal home circle, and therefore knew little of their characteristics, and had taken little interest in family history. Being strongly urged, however, he reluctantly attempted the task, and found that the more he investigated the subject, the more he became interested, and presumed the experience of others would be the same, by a similar investigation.

CHARACTERISTIC TRAITS OF THE LEE FAMILY.

Mr. President, Kindred, and Friends :—

The responsibility is laid upon me of introducing you to your ancestors. I am to indicate some of their characteristic traits, that you may know the sort of people with whom your names and history have been irrevocably linked, and thus be enabled intelligently to determine whether you care to continue the relationship for the future; especially that you may the better understand yourselves, the inherited tendencies of your own nature, and the more fully come into possession of the heritage which they, by their spirit and example, have left for their successors.

The task imposed has not been an easy one. From limited personal acquaintance among the generations preceding, it has involved almost endless investigation, the ransacking of old and musty records, delving into the mazes of genealogical research, and particularly a study of the living, in whom, according to the well known laws of heredity, the traits of those of other days are wont to reappear. For we are not simply ourselves, we are also the products of the years gone by; and just as the various strata in geology have their significance to the student, so hereditary traits, as they appear in the living, have their story to tell of those who have gone before. With all its difficulties, however, the study has been interesting, even fascinating. It has brought to me a new sense of how varied the forces from the generations past which are at work in the present. I have also been led almost to stand in awe of myself, as I have realized that all these ancestors are, in a sense, looking down upon me, are living in me, are speaking through me, and that their influence is going on increasingly beyond me. And when I reflect upon all that such a theme involves, its practical significance to those in whose veins there flows the blood of a common ancestry, and the many thoughts which press for utterance at such a time, I am constrained to sympathize with a certain Congressman, who, when making a plea for the location of the World's Fair at Chicago, said: "When I think of the greatness of the city and the limited time I have in which to speak of it, I feel like the boy who was set down in the midst of a sugar barrel and exclaimed: 'O for time, and a thousand tongues to do this thing justice.'"

PRELIMINARY.

Before coming to the subject proper, a few preliminary observations may help to throw light upon it.

The movement of emigration to New England, which was begun by the Pilgrim Fathers from religious considerations in 1620, was continued from similar motives by the Puritans during the years succeeding. The former settled at Plymouth, the latter at Boston and vicinity; many, however, pushing westward and establishing themselves in the wilderness of Connecticut. They were from a great and growing party in Old England, of all classes, men of intelligence, piety and culture, who were tired of religious intolerance and oppression, and came to this soil, not as needy adventurers, but seeking religious liberty, and for the sake of institutions which they wished to perpetuate, and which were rendered doubly dear by sufferings undergone in their behalf. To this end, they were willing, if necessary, to go to distant regions and to inhospitable shores. The Pilgrims were more radical and pronounced in their religious and political opinions, but the Puritans were not far behind them, especially after they had breathed the free air of the new world for a season, and together they laid the foundations of New England, giving to her and to the nation their noblest and best institutions.

JOHN LEE.

It was in the midst of such environments as these, such opinions, such influences in general, that our common ancestor was reared. Born in the year of the Pilgrim exodus, in Colchester, Essex county, England—a place which had long been noted as a hot-bed of the new ideas and spirit—John Lee, a boy of fourteen years, came to America, under the care of William Westwood, a man of prominence and member of the first “General Court,” landing at Boston in 1634.

The following year, he settled in Connecticut, making Hartford, then in its beginnings, his home until 1641. He then joined a second company, which settled in Farmington, nine miles distant, a first company having located there the year before. His name appears among those of the first proprietors of the town. Here, in this frontier settlement, he grew to manhood; was married at the age of thirty-eight to Mary, daughter of Stephen Hart, leader of the colony; reared his family of six children; passed through all the vicissitudes of those early and trying years; died at length in 1690, at the age of seventy, and was buried in the old Farmington cemetery, where, twenty years since, a handsome monument was erected to his memory, replacing the original stone, with its rudely chiseled inscription, and which now finds a place beside it.

THE EARLY TIMES.

We may imagine something of the simple life and industries of those sturdy pioneers. Their homes were near together in Farmington. Settlements in the region were few, and communication between them was rare. Wild beasts prowled in the forests adjacent, while the country about was occupied by various tribes of roving Indians, their huts dotting the land, and their canoes frequently appearing upon the rivers. The relations of the Indians to the whites were usually amicable, although occasionally they raided the settlements, murdering the people and plundering their homes. There was thus constant necessity of being upon guard against surprises, and houses were often fortified and stores of ammunition were provided. Even as late as 1691, a year after John Lee's death, it is upon record that a committee was chosen to designate certain houses for this purpose.

On the Sabbath day, the great central day of the week, the inhabitants went armed, to the church which had early been erected upon the same, or nearly the same, site as the present one, gathering from several miles around, the women carrying their infants, which they dared not leave behind, and a guard being stationed at the door while the services were in progress. A drum served as a bell to summon the people together. This drum, by the way, was still preserved in 1840, and is referred to in the address which was delivered at that time—by Noah Porter, Jr., afterwards President of Yale College—in celebrating the 200th anniversary of the settlement of the town.

Next to the church, in the estimation of the fathers, ranked the school, which was also provided at an early day. Reverence for religion and education, together with zeal in their promotion, has ever been a marked characteristic of the posterity of these hardy pioneers. Town meetings, too, were held,—another New England institution which has exerted a moulding influence upon the nation. Here public matters were freely discussed, and important questions were settled by the votes of the people.

Thus we gain a glimpse into the life and times of that community in the wilderness, among whom our ancestor lived, and in whose activities he participated. There is every reason to believe that he was an intelligent, substantial, upright citizen, interested in whatever pertained to the public welfare, respected by his neighbors, and imbued with the lofty sentiments which were characteristic of those early and sturdy times in which his wife heartily shared, and in which their children were trained.

HIS DESCENDANTS.

In the years succeeding, as colonies multiplied, those bearing the common name were found in the various settlements of the State. Later still, they scattered more widely, until now they are to be found in almost every commonwealth of this great land and in the provinces to the north of us. How has it been with these descendants, what sort of people have they been through the generations? This is the question which concerns us at this time. What part have they borne in the unfolding life of the nation, as its laws have been framed, as States have been carved out of our wide domain, as the institutions of education and religion have been planted, as movements of thought and of progress in all lines have developed, as wars have arisen to secure or to preserve our independence, or to maintain the nation's integrity and honor? Have they been worthy descendants of those whose names they have borne, or have the ancestral spirit and the ancestral traits been gradually fading out? What kind of fruitage has our family tree, with its wide-spreading branches in this land, been bearing through the years—a tree whose roots reach far back into English history, even, to the Normans under William the Conqueror, with various ranks and titles appended from that time down?

These inquiries come close home to us all, and what more fitting time in which to consider them,—for our instruction, our inspiration, for our warning, perhaps,—then when we have assembled about the family hearthstone from all over the continent, to gather up the scattered threads of our history, to do honor to the memory of those who have gone before us, and to strew flowers of tender and grateful recognition upon the grave of him whose name we revere as the common father of us all.

OCCUPATIONS AND TRAITS.

First, let us inquire into their occupations and the qualities they have manifested in connection with them.

Among the earlier generations agricultural pursuits predominated. At first and for a long time this was the common occupation of the pioneers. There was little else, in fact, to be done for a livelihood. The migratory spirit among them was not marked, at least for several generations no one moved for permanent abode—so the records state—more than twelve miles from the ancestral home. As years advanced and the needs of the growing population developed, trade and business of various kinds and manufactures were taken up, until at the present time it is difficult to name an industry or profession in which some of them are not engaged. There are builders and bankers, merchants and mechanics, manufacturers of all sorts, wholesalers and retailers, farmers, lumbermen, weavers, blacksmiths and druggists, teachers, physicians, surgeons, clergymen, professors, lawyers, legislators, and so on almost ad infinitum. In the professions, physicians have been most numerous, then clergymen, professors, teachers, with members of the bar the fewest in number of them all. Why this latter should be the case when so many of the more ambitious youth seem to gravitate in that direction, is not altogether clear.

In all these callings, many have risen to positions of usefulness and honor, a few perhaps to pre-eminence. Among the physicians, the following are some of the conspicuous names. Representative men of other callings will be referred to later.

Dr. Ebenezer Lee of Farmington (b. 1727) was in his day, a physician of large and successful practice. After the close of the Revolutionary war, he and his family crossed over into Canada; undergoing many severe hardships incident to settling in a new country. It is noteworthy how many of his descendants have adopted the same profession and have been respected far and wide.

Then there was Dr. Samuel Lee of Windham, (b. 1743,) a man of attractive social qualities, skillful in his profession, and of very extensive practice. He held a position as surgeon in the Revolutionary army. One or two items of interest in regard to him will bear reproducing. He was the originator of the "Genuine Lee's Windham Bilious Pills and Family Physic," a remedy which is still somewhat in use for bilious affections.

This was the first medicine of the kind patented in this country. The patent was secured by his son, Dr. Samuel Lee, Jr., and was signed "G. Washington." Physically he was possessed of great strength and agility. Among other feats it is related that he would "hop forty feet at three bounds, and throw a stone a good distance with the precision of the ancient slingers."

Another was Dr. Thomas Lee, born in New Britain in 1808. He was a man of unusual promise, but died at the early age of twenty-eight. He was remarkably successful in the treatment of mental disorders. In other respects he is spoken of as an ideal man, social, cultured, and devoutly religious.

Dr. Charles Alfred Lee (born in Salisbury, Conn., in 1801, died at Peekskill, N. Y., 1872) became widely known as a teacher and writer. He held professorships at different times in a number of leading medical institutions, and was the author and editor of several important medical works. His son, Dr. Charles Alfred Lee, Jr., (b. 1829) served as a surgeon, mostly in hospital service, owing to ill health, in the Civil War. Afterward he moved to California, where he died at Oakland in 1888, aged 59. He was never married.

Another, whose name should not be omitted is Dr. Mary Victoria Lee, who was a graduate of Michigan University. After practicing for awhile, she taught for a number of years in various institutions, but latterly in the State Normal School at Oswego, N. Y., where she died a few years since. She was highly respected and beloved, and is spoken of as having been mentally very bright.

Among the Canadian Lees, Dr. William Hooker Lee and Dr. Hiram Davis Lee might be mentioned, and indeed many others.

Among the members of the bar were Elisha Lee and Thomas Allen of the last century, William P. Curtiss of Fulton, N. Y., of more recent years, to say nothing of others of the present day.

But in the main the Lee descendants have devoted themselves to business pursuits, adapting themselves readily to any branch which they have taken up. Whether or not as manufacturers they ever utilized wood in the production of such commodities as nutmegs, hams, pumpkin seeds, and even of oats by sharpening the other end of shoe pegs which had accumulated upon their hands, a phase of manufacturing industry which has been popularly attributed to Connecticut—I have been unable to determine from the records.

With slight exceptions, they have been noted for their industrious habits, for their careful attention to details, for their frugality, for their patient perseverance, and for their general efficiency. With such characteristics they have naturally achieved a fair measure of success. While few, perhaps, have attained to such wealth as to be classed among the millionaires, a goodly number have accumulated a liberal competency, most have been "above board," while but few could be called "poor relations." Only a very limited number have been known to seek a living by mere speculation or in any other discreditable way. Such a thing as dishonesty or trickery has been exceedingly rare. They have, as an almost universal rule, been straightforward, honest, and honorable in their dealings. Among business men the name of Wm. H. Lee should be mentioned as a prominent and successful dry goods merchant, for forty years in New York city. He was present at the Re-union in 1884, and presented a valuable paper upon "Our English Origin." It was through his generosity that the fine monument to John Lee was erected in the Farmington cemetery. He died last year at about 77 years of age.

But perhaps the most notable trait of all, and which has been characteristic of the great majority of the Lees, has been their indomitable energy, their push and perseverance, their ability to bring things to pass in spite of obstructing difficulties. This trait might be illustrated almost indefinitely. Time will admit of only one instance.

It is related of a well-known druggist of our name, whose home was on the western bank of the "Father of Waters," and who was widely respected and loved for his genuine worth of character, that, being always in a hurry, as the Lees generally seem to be, whenever he started down street to go to his store, all that could be seen of him was his coat-tails flying around the corner in a cloud of dust! In this respect he might be said to be a typical Lee.

II. CIVIL RELATIONS, EDUCATION, PATRIOTISM.

Notice next the Lee ancestry in respect to citizenship and its various relations. In general they have been intelligent, law-abiding, and ready always to bear their portion of the burdens of society, in which they have usually occupied what might be termed the upper middle stations, with exceptions both up and down. Though characteristically unobtrusive they have nevertheless been a positive force in the communities wherein they have resided, making their influence felt in behalf of righteousness and the general welfare.

It is noticeable how frequently they have been selected for positions of trust in civil life. The office of magistrate, for instance, was one of great local significance in former New England times, and not unfrequently some Lee would be summoned to it and be continued in it for many years in succession. Often they have been called to legislative responsibilities, Colonial or State. An aggregate of fifty-eight years of such service by native Lees in Connecticut is certainly a pretty fair record. Col. Isaac Lee, Jr., of New Britain was a member of the Legislature for twenty-four years, Captain Samuel Lee of Salisbury for eleven years, Captain Jared Lee of Southington, for several terms, and many others for longer or shorter periods. Hon. Wm. Wallace Lee of Meriden, one of the most active promoters of the Re-union of 1884, and of the present gathering, as well as of all efforts to secure accurate genealogical records of the family, has several times been chosen to the same position. Occasionally one has been elected to Congress, and one, Judge William Strong of Philadelphia, of the Tabitha branch, (John Lee's youngest daughter) was appointed Associate Justice of the U. S. Supreme Court. There have been several prominent characters of that name. Then there were Judge William G. Sterling of Northampton who was judge in New York city, and others. All these men have filled various positions with fidelity and honor.

As a rule, however, they have never manifested any marked ambition for political distinction. The pursuits of private and domestic life have predominated with them. Whenever there has been public preferment, the office has rather sought them, than they the office, which is as it should be. So that if they have failed of gaining specially wide repute in the civil realm, it has not been from lack of fitness for exalted station, but because, rather, of indifference to office for its own sake, and of the absence of a spirit of aggressive self-assertion, which now, at least, seems to be requisite in order to conspicuous political success. Yet they have ever been good citizens, supporters of good government, generally public spirited, while integrity, reliability, and conscientious fidelity to trusts committed to them, have been characteristic traits. Exceptional cases there doubtless always have been among the thousands who have lived in this country since 1634, but a confirmed criminal or vagrant has been a rarity in the family, and I have never heard of any member of our clan who was hung, although some may have deserved hanging!

Among the more notable citizens of the years past, one or two should receive special mention.

Jared Lee, grandson of John Lee, was born in Farmington in 1712. Settling in Southington when a young man, he was for many years a distinguished character. He held the office of Justice of the Peace, or Magistrate, for over a quarter of a century, and was a terror to evil doers. Although often arbitrary, his decisions were seldom reversed. He seems to have been particularly jealous of all violations of the rigid Sunday laws which then prevailed, and frequently parties were fined for whispering and laughing in the public services, or for neglecting to attend them. What preacher to-day would not rejoice in similar laws and penalties enforced with similar fidelity?

So many were the offices of honor and trust which he was called upon to fill that the people named him "all Southington." For thirty years he was deacon in the Congregational church. It is said of him that he was stern and unyielding in his orthodoxy, that he usually carried his point, and that he was never known to acknowledge an error. He is also said to have been a very silent and a very homely man. He died in 1780, in his 69th year.

Col. Isaac Lee, Jr., of New Britain (1716—1802) was another celebrity of his time. In many respects he was the counterpart of Jared Lee, with whom he was contemporary. Like him, he was tall and commanding, strong and muscular, proverbially dignified, and honored in church and town. For thirty years he was the principal Magistrate, and the office was administered with wisdom and impartiality. For twenty-four years out of the thirty from 1761 to 1791, he was member of the Colonial and General Assembly of the State, always active and influential. During the Revolutionary period he held relations of friendship and intimacy with the leading patriots. He was a constant attendant upon the sanctuary, and was for many years a faithful deacon. He died in 1802 in the eighty-seventh year of his age. His funeral was attended by a large concourse of people.

EDUCATIONAL SPHERE.

As to education, the Lees have always been loyal to the early sentiments which would place the school as an institution next in importance to the church. They have generally been fairly educated themselves, and have always favored a generous provision for the education of others. An illustration of this spirit, which I am sure is not an isolated instance, may be in point here. In a country school district in the West some years ago, there resided a Lee with a family of five children. Desirous of giving them as good advantages as possible, and interested in the cause of education in general, he became active in behalf of the school, and was soon the recognized leader in this respect. Through his influence the very best available teachers were secured for a number of years in succession, while the school itself was gradually equipped with helpful appliances, including a large and carefully selected library, far beyond the average of country schools. Soon it gained a reputation second to none in the county or the counties around, while the good effects of the start which the children and youth of the neighborhood then received have been apparent ever since. Not a few were led to seek a college training afterward, and the proportion of those who have made a mark in their several spheres is larger than from any similar school I have ever known. The credit of all is mainly due to one who is well known among the Lees for his active interest, with others, in pushing forward this Re-union and the forth-coming genealogical work, and the mere fact of a somewhat near relationship affords no sufficient reason, I am sure, in this presence, for refraining from giving honor to whom honor is due. I refer to my immediate progenitor Mr. Leonard Lee of Kenosha, Wis. (I might say in this connection that I was privately instructed by him to omit this section, but I became of age some years since!)

Nor has the higher education been neglected. There have been numerous graduates in the family from our best colleges and universities. It is difficult to secure reliable statistics, but there is reason to believe that the percentage of liberally educated men and of those filling high educational positions will compare favorably with most families of corresponding numbers. These graduates have gone largely into the various professions. Not a few have held chairs in the leading institutions, especially medical, and occasionally one has been called to the position of college president. Rev. Wm. Allen Lee, a graduate of Harvard of 1802, became President of Dartmouth College in 1816 and of Bowdoin in 1819. While it might not be strictly accurate to say that the Lees have generally been so given to literary pursuits as to warrant us in claiming this as characteristic of them, it is nevertheless true that some have been eminent as scholars, and a considerable number of very creditable medical, theological and other works have from time to time been produced by them. Occasionally one has given special attention to music and to musical composition, while the poetic instinct has not been entirely lacking. Upon the whole, the educational record of the family and their part in the promotion of this most important interest, have been greatly to their credit.

PATRIOTISM.

Under this general head of citizenship it remains for me to say something with regard to their patriotic spirit. There is no reason to be ashamed of their record in this respect. They have ever been ready to respond to the call of their country, in its hour of need. There has not been a war since John Lee came to manhood in which the Lees have not been represented, and many a battlefield has been reddened by their blood. There were differences among some of them in the Revolutionary period, a few remaining loyal to the mother country, and a few were also found in the ranks of the Confederates in the Civil War; but these were conscientious in their attitude, as they viewed the struggle, and we honor them for their honesty of purpose, while as soldiers all were full of bravery and daring. Indeed, from their characteristic energy and push in other relations, the courage and enthusiasm of the Lees in action can well be imagined. In connection with the recent war, it is related of a raw recruit, who if he did not bear the name of Lee, might have done so, that in taking part in the attempt to storm one of the Vicksburg batteries, the Confederate fire was so destructive that the Union forces recoiled; but he did not see the backward movement and kept going ahead until he came up to one of the guns, caught a gunner by the collar, and brought him within our lines saying, "Boys, why didn't you come on? Every fellow might have got one."

In military as in civil life, their fitness for responsible position has been repeatedly recognized, and we frequently find the name in the lists of officers from Captain upward to Colonel and General.

Gen. Kirby Smith on the Confederate side was a descendant of the Connecticut Lees, his grandmother having been Chloe Lee, born in New Britain. If we were considering the family in the broadest sense instead of the John Lee branch alone, I suppose we might speak with no little confidence of the soldiers in the various wars from the Virginia line of Lees, of whom Gen. Robert E. Lee was the most distinguished.

Going back to the pre-Revolutionary period, Stephen Hart, father of our maternal ancestor, took part in the Pequot war of 1637, under Captain John Mason. Daniel Lee of Farmington was a commissioned officer in the French war, leaving Farmington, with his company, July 12, 1759. He was wounded in battle at St. John's by a tomahawk thrown at him, taken prisoner by the Indians, and tortured to death in the most cruel manner. A fellow prisoner, who was intended for the next victim, but who happily made his escape, was an eye witness of the fearful scene, and brought tidings of his death to his family at Goshen, Conn. The name of Captain Samuel Lee appears frequently in the history of the town of Salisbury. He was prominent in church and civil relations, and commanded a company of Light Horse in the Revolutionary war.

Then there was Noah Lee, who served all through the Revolutionary struggle, as a commissioned officer, raising and equipping a company of Green Mountain boys at his own expense, acting for a time in concert with Colonel Ethan Allen, a man of remarkable efficiency as a soldier and a leader.

But as many of the records of military service are missing, it has been impossible to collect a full list of those who have served in the army from time to time. In some cases, family traditions are confirmed by the possession of heir-looms, which have been preserved, such as guns, pistols, or sabres; but, beyond these, there are no absolute proofs. The following Roll of Honor, however, which is likely to be increased, as further facts are discovered, will show beyond question that there is abundant ground for claiming a marked patriotic spirit as a characteristic family trait:

ROLL OF HONOR.

Pequot War, 1637,	1
French War, 1756-63 :
Lees,	14
Other names (descendants of daughters),	3
	— 17

Six of these Lees were born in Farmington.

Revolution, 1775-83 :
Lees,	27
Other names,	28
	— 55

Of these, sixteen Lees were born within the limits of ancient Farmington, five of them on Main street.

War of 1812-15 :
Lees,	19
Native Canadians in British service, (Lees)	2
	— 21

Mexican War :
One Colonel died at Vera Cruz in 1848,	1
One Colonel of New Orleans.	1
One, an artisan or mechanic in the Army,	1
	— 3

Civil War, 1861-65 :
Lees, Union Army,	48
Other names,	46
In Confederate Army,	8
	— 102
Killed, or mortally wounded,	15
Died of disease,	9
Wounded,	10
	— 34

Counting Mexican War, total in these Wars approximate, 199

Not all of these are of the Lee name, but all are of the Lee blood. Surgeons and chaplains are included. Certainly a creditable list.

In the latter part of the last century, Dr. Ebenezer Lee, a noted physician and a native of Farmington, removed to Canada and became a British subject. A large majority of his descendants are now citizens of the United States, but those who are residents of the Dominion are distinguished for loyalty to their adopted country, and several of them are holding important positions of trust.

III. MORAL AND RELIGIOUS.

In inquiring, in the third and last place, into the moral and religious traits of the family, we come to that which is deepest and most vital. That they have, generally speaking, been upright in character, straightforward and honorable in their various relations, we have already seen. Now we may advance a step and say that from the first they have been characterized by a deep conscientiousness, by reverence for God, by love of justice, and by a strong sense of duty. Our fathers were men of profound convictions, their religion was a thing of principle, and they were intensely loyal to the truth as they saw it. No doubt some of their views, judged by the more liberal sentiments and standards which now prevail, were unduly narrow and severe, but no great reform movement of lasting value has ever been free from more or less of extremes, and when we recall their moral earnestness, the great principles to which they were devoted, and the tremendous results which, in spite of all their shortcomings, they were instrumental in achieving for all time, we can certainly afford to be very charitable in regard to things which were merely the incidents or excrescences of character.

Going back to our ancestor, John Lee, he was associated with good men, and all the influences about him were of a nature to give a serious and earnest trend to his thoughts. It is upon record that he embraced the Christian religion, connected himself with the church of which his father-in-law was one of the original and leading members and a deacon, presented his children in baptism, and lived a consistent Christian life. His children were trained in the same way, and the records further show that for several generations, at least, in all branches of the descendants, connection with the church was common, that the observance of religious rites and duties prevailed among them, and that they were respected and honored for their Christian and manly virtues.

Their religious life has rather been deep and quiet than emotional and demonstrative, while their religious activities, if not always of the more conspicuous sort, have been none the less real. The same practical bent of mind and matter-of-factness which have been noted of them in other relations, have characterized them here. In some branches or subdivisions of the family more or less of religious apathy has prevailed, and in none, perhaps, has there been any excess of piety or zeal; but while the Spiritual side of their nature might have been toned up somewhat to advantage, which is by no means an exclusive peculiarity of this family,—generally speaking the Lees have shown a profound respect for things religious, and have been a church-going and a church-supporting people. While they have been strong in their prejudices, conservative in their tendencies, and firm in the maintenance of their opinions, they have at the same time been candid, open-minded to the truth, progressive in spirit, with faces ever turned toward the rising sun, and they have generally been found on the right side in the great moral issues which have from time to time arisen.

It is noteworthy how many have been chosen deacons and how long they have been continued in office. Whether any of those qualities which, in deacons, sometimes render a minister's life miserable have been characteristic of them I am unable to say. Probably not, if the ministers have always been in the right as the deacon regarded it!

Spurgeon says, that if any one resists the devil, he will flee from him, while if a minister resists a deacon he will fly at him. This is unquestionably true in the case of some deacons, and under such circumstances it is no doubt the part of wisdom for the minister to subside at once. Just as it was with a certain traveler who met a pack-mule in a narrow pass in the Rockies. He inquired of the attendant frontiersman if the animal was vicious. "O no," was the reply, "he ain't vicious, but he's a little versatile with his off hind leg." And the traveler climbed up the side of the canon. I do not know whether any of the Lee deacons have been of this versatile sort or not, although I can imagine that if one had a strong conviction upon any point it might be exceedingly difficult to dislodge it. Still, upon the whole, I am inclined to think that they have made pretty good, serious minded, consistent and conscientious deacons.

Among these numerous deacons of the past there have been some notable instances of Christian zeal. One of these was Deacon Charles Lee of Norwich, Conn. (b. 1790, d. 1865) to whose researches, together with the indefatigable labors of his daughter after him, Miss Sarah Marsh Lee who died in Feb. 1892, we are so largely indebted for the first publication of our genealogical records. He was the founder of the pleasant village of Willimantic, Conn., and the pioneer manufacturer in it. He led in all public improvements and was warmly interested in all that pertained to the general good of society. As a business man, he was upright, methodical, clear-headed, and of excellent judgment. After the work of the day in superintending his large business, he was ready for every religious meeting, in which he always took part. He was very active in organizing a Congregational church in Willimantic, throwing all his energies into it. Soon a congregation was gathered, a building was erected upon land which he donated and for which he gave a generous subscription. Two years of labor and self-sacrifice resulted in the establishment of a church of fifty members, a flourishing Sunday school, and a large congregation, with himself for the first deacon. Afterward he gave up his business there and moved to Norwich, where he died. As a Christian, he was revered and honored in all the churches with which he was at different times connected.

CLERGYMEN.

Of clergymen there have been a goodly number in the family. Some have risen to distinction as preachers or evangelists, some have been authors, all have been faithful. Their preaching has been practical, and they have been tactful in their dealings with men, whether in public address or in personal relations, more so at least in the former, I suspect, than in the case of the young divine at the West in addressing a congregation of cowboys, taking the parable of the prodigal son for his theme. After presenting a graphic picture of the wandering away, the return, the warm reception by the father, and the killing of the fatted calf, he turned to one of the cowboys in front of him and said: "What would you have done had you been in the father's place?" "Wa'al," said he, deliberately, "I think I should have shot the boy and raised the calf." After such a rejoinder it was useless to proceed. I am safe in saying that no one of the name of Lee would have been guilty of risking such an appeal before such an audience.

One of the notable divines of our name was Rev. Jonathan Lee, born in 1718 and graduating from Yale in 1742. In January, 1744, he accepted a call to a small church made up of eighteen families in the little New England town of Salisbury, Conn., at a salary of £40 per annum, or about $200, which was never increased above $225. Here he remained for forty-four years, viz.: until his death. He was a man of sagacity, of intellectual power, and was famous for his knowledge of Latin. He was of commanding presence and pleasing address, and the church prospered under his care. In 1749 a new meeting house was erected, and as showing the different sentiment which then prevailed upon the temperance question, the town had previously voted to procure sixteen gallons of rum, also eight bushels of wheat to be made into cakes, for the raising. In 1766 he preached the election sermon before the Governor and General Court of the colony. He was married just before accepting his call, and in the American Monthly Magazine for July, 1895, is to be found a copy of an address which he prepared and gave at his wedding. It is stately, very religious, and includes reflections upon the occasion, very gushing and complimentary words to his wife-elect, rehearsing her virtues, an address to her parents, also to her brothers and sisters, and closes with appropriate exhortations.

The log house parsonage at Salisbury not being finished, for several months they pioneered it, spending their honeymoon happily in the back end of a blacksmith shop. Unable to keep a horse, he frequently trudged down to the mill at Lime Rock with his bag of grain on his back and drew his wood home on a hand sled. In bringing up his family of six sons and four daughters, he gave every other son an education and every other one a farm. To have accomplished all that upon his meager salary, he must have been a man of unusual skill at financiering. His descendants may be said to be noted for the number among them who became clergymen, a considerable number of whom were Episcopalians. He died in 1788 and was buried in the Salisbury cemetery. His monument is a broad marble slab upon which is an appropriate inscription, together with a representation of himself in wig and gown in an old-fashioned pulpit, preaching to his people. His life is preaching still.

Mention should be made of Rev. Chauncey Lee, his son, who graduated from Yale in 1774, studied law for a time, then gave it up, and, entering upon a religious life, studied theology. He settled at Colebrook, was a ready writer, a sound reasoner, an earnest speaker, a thorough scholar, dignified in his bearing, and eminent for his social qualities. He was the author of a volume of "Revival Sermons" and other works, including school books, and also a composer of music.

Among many others who might be mentioned, did time permit, was Rev. Samuel Lee, born in Kensington in 1803, about whom a word should be said. He graduated at Yale in 1827, then studied theology. He was noted for his power of easy and compact extemporaneous preaching. As a consequence his services were extensively sought after in revival work. Perhaps no pastor in New England did so much work of the sort, and this was in addition to the care of his own large church and parish at New Ipswich, N. H. These labors were often attended with marked success. It is said that forty persons were once hopefully converted under a single sermon. Worn out with his incessant labors, he finally retired from the active ministry, and gave himself much to writing. For a time, he was a frequent contributor to the periodical press and to religious quarterlies. Later, he published two volumes, one upon "Eschatology," which was afterward used as a text book in Yale College, the other upon "The Bible Regained." He died in 1881. His daughter, Sarah Fiske Lee, who was an efficient aid to her father in his literary work as an author, has also rendered invaluable service in connection with the preparation of the genealogical work about to be issued, compiling the John and Stephen branches. She has been enthusiastic and persevering in her efforts.

MISSIONARIES.

A few have devoted themselves to missionary work and they should receive recognition here, as still further exemplifying some of the characteristic traits of the family. Julia Lee married Rev. Hubert P. Herrick and went out to the Gaboon Mission in West Africa under the American Board, which, by the way, was organized at Farmington in 1810. Rev. Graham Lee of Rock Island, Ill., is now a missionary in Corea. He was a graduate of the McCormick Theological Seminary, (Pres.) Chicago. Laura Elizabeth Lee, wife of Rev. John F. Smith, D. D., went to Marsovan, Turkey, where she died during the seventies. He died a few months since. At last accounts the family was still there. Rev. Lucius O. Lee of Kenosha, Wis., oldest son of Leonard Lee, after a successful pastorate of a few years at Owosso, Mich., accepted an appointment under the American Board to the Theological Seminary at Marash, Turkey, of which he is now President, and where he and his family and fellow laborers nobly stood at their posts through the terrible ordeal of the recent massacre of Armenian Christians there, by which nearly a thousand, perished, their own lives being meanwhile in imminent peril.

RELIGIOUS DENOMINATIONS.

As to the denominational preferences of the family, the majority have been Congregationalists, Episcopalians coming next. John Lee was a Congregationalist, which was the prevailing denomination in early New England, as it has been ever since. His descendants for a number of generations were mainly of the same order. Later, as his posterity increased, went out from the old home, spread over the land, came in contact with other religious bodies, or married into them, they became connected with various denominations, so that now they are to be found in all the leading Christian organizations of the country. Hardly a sect, in fact, can be named in which some representative may not be found.

SUMMARY.

Having now called attention to some of the leading traits of the family, as they have been manifested in their occupations and various relations and stations in life, and as they have appeared in the sketches given of representative characters, let us attempt briefly to summarize them. Some, of course, have manifested more of these traits, some less, and they have appeared in greater or less degree in different ones. Still they have been sufficiently general, I think, to warrant us in speaking of them as family characteristics.

As a whole, they have been an eminently respectable people. Hardy, wiry and enduring, many have lived to an advanced age, some attaining even to ninety years and upwards. While not a few have entered professional life, their chief occupation has been business, in which they have been industrious, painstaking, and generally successful. Especially have they been noted for their managerial talent, and for their energy, push and perseverance. In their dealings, they have been straightforward and honest.

As citizens, they have been peaceable, law-abiding, lovers and promoters of good order, and interested in the general welfare. Black sheep have been rare among them. They have been intelligent, self-respecting, fairly educated, and not a few have sought the advantages of college training in the best institutions. Though not given to office-seeking, they have been frequently sought out for positions of trust. In these positions, they have discharged their responsibilities with conscientious fidelity, and have shown themselves to be possessed of large efficiency and executive ability. They have been pre-eminently patriotic, responding promptly when their country has called, and making a record for high soldierly qualities on many a battlefield in the wars of our history. Politically, they have mainly been identified with the Republican party.

Religiously they have been noted for the depth and strength of their convictions, and for their persistency in them. With some exceptions they have generally been church goers and a good proportion have been church members. Although as a class they have not been over-zealous, they have ever been lovers of justice and fair play, and many of them individually have been exceptionally active and earnest. Infidels have been few, and out-and-out opposers of religion have been rare. Upon great moral questions they have usually given forth no uncertain sound.

In domestic life they have been warm in their affections though not unduly demonstrative, strong in their attachments to kindred and friends, and devoted to their homes. They have also been social, genial, and hospitable in their relations with others, and while far from stern and puritanic in their ideas, they have been less given to frivolities than many. No doubt they have indulged more or less in the bicycle craze with the rest of the world, but it would hardly seem in keeping with the traditions and spirit of the family to find the "new woman" of the more advanced type, who would, among other things, abolish the usual distinctions of sex in costume, largely represented in the feminine portion of it.

In family life their quiver has been full to an unusual degree. There were six children in the family of John Lee, while the aggregate of children in the families of these six was forty-nine. The genealogical records show that the Scriptural injunction to "be fruitful and multiply and replenish the earth" has not been disregarded by succeeding generations.

In general it may be said that as a family they have dwelt upon a high table land in character, in natural ability, and in commendable qualities in many lines. If there have been few towering mountain peaks, there have also been correspondingly few depressions and valleys.

What shall we say in view of all this, what lessons may we draw, what inspirations may we gather?

For one thing, it can hardly fail to lead us to a better understanding of ourselves and the deep currents of our own being. Streams of tendency have been flowing down through the generations, and these at length, in greater or less degree and with more or less of modification, have appeared in our nature. Such a review is calculated to throw light upon them, to show where they have come from, and to help to explain them. But such a study is important also because of its relation to the most intelligent training of our children. The influence of ancestry upon the living is freely acknowledged by nearly all great educators and religious teachers. The virtues and vices of those who have lived in other days affect those who come after them. So that the education of children may really be said to begin with their forefathers.

Again, we will, I am sure, henceforth be conscious of a new thrill of interest in whatever pertains to the history of the family—a kind of Gulf Stream to us in the great ocean of humanity about us; in the forthcoming work of our genealogy, a subject which ought to have, and doubtless will, a deeper significance than ever before; in future re-unions, which should come oftener and be looked forward to with something of the enthusiasm of the ancient Israelites as they made their periodical pilgrimages to the Holy City; and in cultivating the personal acquaintance of one and all who sustain to us these relations of kinship, near or remote. For myself I can truthfully say that as I have pursued these investigations, my respect for the family has steadily increased. I have come to feel a real pride in its record, and also to feel that the stock is a good one from which to be descended.

But, especially, should such a review as this be of value in the rich heritage it discloses—richer far than any imaginary English fortune which is popularly supposed to be awaiting most American families upon the presentation of adequate proof—to which we are heirs, if we will but avail ourselves of it; in the mental and moral traits which our ancestors possessed, the tendencies to which operate deeply within our own natures; in the pure and lofty principles which they espoused at the beginning, and to which their descendants have with greater or less zeal been devoted; in the wholesome example which has been set for our emulation, in the results which they have achieved, the institutions which they have helped to establish, and into the benefits of which we have entered; above all in the high qualities of character which they have displayed, in their indomitable energy, in their earnest spirit, in their consecration to exalted ends, so that all along the pages of our history there are glowing examples of exalted character and of lives well spent.

What shall we do with this heritage? Shall it be as nothing to us, or shall we not, rather, lay hold of it and utilize it for highest ends, going forward in life with a new and augmented self-respect in consequence of it, quickened in all our noblest impulses and aims, and then, recognizing our responsibility, hand it down unimpaired to those who come after us? For my own part, in regard to this latter, it is my deep desire that my little boy, with the blood of the Puritans from his father's side, and of the Pilgrims from his mother's, flowing in his veins, may, as he grows up, know these facts of his ancestry on both sides, go forward under their inspiration, and be animated by similar lofty aims in everything pertaining to a noble manhood and a useful life.

It is said that the pious Swiss herdsman of the Alps, when the sun is gone out of sight, takes his Alpine horn and shouts through it aloud, "Praise ye the Lord." Then a brother herdsman on some distant slope takes up the echo, "Praise ye the Lord." Soon another answers still higher up in the mountains, till hill shouts to hill and peak to peak, the sublime anthem of praise to God. So, let us, dear kindred and friends, cherish and keep sacred the memory of our ancestors, consecrate ourselves to the same great principles and lofty aims which inspired their lives, be filled with the same hopeful, praise-worthy spirit, and then seek to live such earnest, sweet and fruitful lives, that those who succeed us may catch our spirit, and others still catch theirs in turn, this in ever renewed succession down the generations, until a universal anthem shall ascend on high to join the Hallelujah chorus of the redeemed in everlasting praises "to Him that sitteth upon the throne, the chief among ten thousand and thousands of thousands."

This paper, though more lengthy than those preceding it, was listened to with profound attention, and called forth many flattering comments at its close.

CLOSING SESSION.

From 12:30 to 1:30 another social hour was enjoyed, while all partook of a generous collation.

On re-assembling in the hall, the exercises were opened by all joining in Auld Lang Syne, which was rendered with a hearty good will and which everyone appreciated.

Resolutions were then offered by Prof. H. C. King, and unanimously adopted with a cheer, expressing thanks to the people of Farmington for the hearty proffer of the use of their town hall, which made possible the holding of our re-union at the ancestral home, and the kind greeting generally received.

Also thanking those who had prepared papers for the occasion, and stating that the representatives of the Farmington Lees present desired to particularly recognize the untiring and enthusiastic research among old records of William Wallace Lee, Leonard Lee and Miss Sarah Fiske Lee.

William Wallace Lee now stepped to the front, holding in his hand what proved to be the diploma of Seth Lee, granted by Yale College, which had been in his possession several years. It was written in Latin on parchment, with seal attached, and dated September 22, 1759, signed by "Thomas Clap, Prest." and others of the faculty.

Mr. Lee wanted to present it to a younger Lee as a hereditary relic, to be perpetuated in the family, and had chosen Miss Ella E. Lee as the recipient, she being the great grand-daughter of Deacon Seth. Her heartfelt thanks were expressed in a few well chosen words gracefully delivered. She had brought from her home and exhibited several relics, but this she prized more than all others. Among the relics exhibited was a gold ring, presented to the graduate by his class, when a tutor in the college in later years. Other family relics were also exhibited more than 125 years old.

* * * * *

Amid all the sociability, the time arrived when separation became necessary. The several sessions had not been a monotonous round of business and literary exercises, but frequent intervals had been devoted to cultivating a better acquaintance among the newly-found friends and kindred, which were well improved. So full of enjoyment had the meeting been that it was unanimously voted a success, and the feeling was freely expressed that the century might be rounded out by another reunion, and that the proceedings of the meeting and papers read might be published in appropriate form for circulation. One more song, remained to be sung, and all joined in.

THE PARTING.

(Tune—BONNIE DOON.)

Adieu, a heart-warm, fond adieu,
Ye kindred of one common tie,
Ye favored ones, ye happy few,
Who've met and shared our social joy;
The time has come for us to part
And each pursue a separate pa'.
With kindling eye and kindly heart
We'll think of each when far awa'.

We've met and shared a happy hour,
In social joy, communion sweet;
Of common ties we know the power,
Have felt each heart responsive beat;
And though we part to meet no more,
As here we are assembled a',
We hope to meet on yon bright shore,
That shining shore so far awa'.

3.

May virtue, harmony and love
In each one's life e'er brighter shine,
Beneath th' all-seeing eye above—
The glorious architect divine;
So may we keep the rule of right,
And, guided by God's holy law,
Be led unto that world of light,
Where dwell our sires so far awa'.

And may the new friends we have made
Grow fonder as the years shall roll,
And be through all life's sun and shade,
A source of pleasure to each soul;
One fond request, we make it here,
Whenever ye shall gather a',
A kindly thought, perhaps a tear,
For all the kindred far awa'.

—W. W. L.

The piece was sung with much feeling, the last echo died away, and with much handshaking and many good wishes the company slowly separated, and the Lee re-union of 1896 was an event of the past.

Mrs. William H. Lee of Hartford, who had been detained at the hotel by indisposition, received a few friends after the adjournment, and the last lingering visitor retired.

The following paper, prepared by Julius Gay, Esq., by invitation, for reasons for which he was in no way responsible, was not delivered at the re-union, but he has kindly furnished it for publication.

Mr. Gay is a native of Farmington, as were his ancestors for several generations before him. No one is better acquainted with the history of the town, either ancient or modern, than himself. He is the acknowledged antiquarian of the county. He will please accept thanks of the Lee kindred for his valuable contribution.

Ladies and Gentlemen:—

A few days ago, I had the honor of an invitation to co-operate with other townsmen in extending a word of welcome to your association, assembled from many lands to visit the home of your forefathers. With the short time I have had for preparation, and in the few minutes I shall venture to detain you, I shall confine myself to a brief account of the location of the houses in which they were born, spent their useful lives, and in the fullness of time were carried one by one to the old cemetery which you have this day visited.

In January 1653, when this village had been settled thirteen years, John Lee records four acres of land with a dwelling house. This he had purchased of Joseph Kellogg, who bought it of John Andrews, and he of Thomas Upson,—transactions which show a great activity in real estate sales in those early times. Once, however, in the possession of the Lees, it remained in the family for three generations. Doctor Ebenezer Lee, grandson of John, sold it in 1767 to Seth Lee, successively a tutor in Yale College, a preacher and a tavern-keeper on the old homestead. He sold it in 1796 to John and Chauncey Deming, and then removed to Ludlow, Vermont. I presume you are all aware that the brick school house building of Miss Porter occupies the site of the house of John Lee and of the tavern of his great grandson Seth. If you desire to identify any of the present buildings as parts of the original tavern, you may compare the advertisement of Seth Lee in the Connecticut Courant, which describes a “house two stories high, 46 feet by 20, and a kitchen, 28 by 30 feet.”

Thomas Lee, son of Thomas and grandson of John, was born December 17, 1717, and lived in a house on the south side of the road to Unionville, not far from the Catholic church, described as near the North Meadow Gate. It was sold by Miles Lee on the decease of his father in 1807. A tin shop stood on this land two years before. The site is now occupied by a new house, recently purchased by John D. Rourke.

Thomas Lee, son of Ensign Joseph, owned, and probably built, between the years 1791 and 1795, the house fifty rods south of the meeting house, on the easterly side of the street, known to our grandfathers as the Little Back Lane. It is now owned by John Brady, and formerly by Selah Porter and his son, John C. Porter. You will easily recognize it as a small gambrel roofed house, just south of the large gambrel roofed house built by Timothy Pitkin, Esq., and now owned by Dr. Carrington.

Matthew Lee, who taught the South District School in the winters of 1797 and 1798, and died April 27, 1840, at the age of seventy-six, owned a house on the west side of the Main street, somewhat south of his school house, and, as the record says, one and one-quarter miles south of the meeting house, having land of Joseph Langdon to the north, and of Moses Hills to the south.

Capt. Hezekiah Lee lived in a house immediately north of that of his grandfather, John. He sold it in 1751 to John Hart, Jr., before he removed to Litchfield and Goshen.

The foregoing are all the localities which in a hurried search I have been able to identify as of interest to you as the homes of your ancestors. Members of the family early in its history removed to Berlin, Kensington, Litchfield, Goshen and all easily accessible towns. At the close of the Revolutionary war the more noted exodus to Vermont, and a little later, another to the far west, now central New York, lured away pretty much all the rest of the family, until now I believe there is no descendant of your family by the name of Lee in this village.

I have spoken only of places. Of men, your frequent gatherings and much research, must have made known about all that we can expect ever to learn. Nevertheless when we see thousands every year, guide books in hand, swarming over Europe to visit some noted shrine, surely you may properly feel some interest in the places where your ancestors lived and died. Nor among the localities deserving your regard must we forget the place where, in three successive sanctuaries they worshipped. In 1693 John Lee and Deacon Bull were appointed a committee to repair the meeting-house, and in 1697 Thomas Lee with four others were voted "liberty to build them a seat over the short girt at the easterly end of the gallery on the conditions that they do not damnify the other seats in the meeting-house." And last of all you will not fail to visit that most interesting place of all, the old burying ground where many generations of your family were laid to rest. Here more than two centuries ago was placed by the pious regard of his children a humble slab marking the grave of your ancestor John Lee and inscribed 8. 8. 1690, fixing the date of his death as October 8th, 1690, not August as it is sometimes read. It was the fourth stone in age in the burying ground and much valued by all who venerated the past. Would it not be a fitting act for this association to restore it to its former place the stone which for two centuries marked the resting place of your venerable ancestor? *

* The old relic was carried to New Britain. In 1895 it was furnished with a substantial base by James T. Lee and Leonard Lee and restored to a place beside the monument, after an absence of 18 years.—L. L.

LETTERS FROM ABSENTEES.

We append a few extracts from letters received from various parts of the country as specimens of several hundreds. Few were the exceptions in which words of encouragement were not expressed, and regrets that circumstances would prevent their mingling with the kindred whom they had never met.

ELMHURST, Ill., June 7, 1896.

My attendance will be impossible on account of age and infirmities. I hope there will be a large gathering on an occasion so interesting to the widely scattered members of our family.

(84 years old.)

OLIVER H. LEE.

WATFORD, Ontario, July 3, 1896.

I regret that circumstances will not permit my attendance at the Lee re-union at Farmington, but I heartily wish you a happy gathering which may tend to a better acquaintance. THADDEUS D. LEE.

SPOKANE, Wash., June 14, 1896.

It will be impossible to attend, as it will be my busiest season of the year, (mining engineer,) but success to your enterprise.

CHESTER F. LEE.

MARASH, TURKEY, (Asia,) June 26, 1896.

In response to your kind invitation to join the Lee family re-union, and also to inquiries, I would say that I do not know whether there are other Lees in the mission field or not. I fear the Lees have not been so prolific in this line as in some others.

The object of missions is not only to educate and Christianize, but to civilize, and requires some sacrifice to effect the result. Turkish massacres may retard, but cannot long block the wheels of progress.

It may be thought the life of a missionary is monotonous, but when I mention that during my residence here of sixteen years I have been shipwrecked, earthquaked, massacred and married, you will perceive that life in Turkey is not wanting in variety.

The distance between us will, of course, preclude the idea of attending the Lee re-union, but you will please present to the kindred my congratulations that they are so highly favored in their social relations. Could the occasion have been deferred till 1898, I might have been able to join you. My wife, daughter of Rev. Cyrus Hamlin, thirty-five years a missionary in Constantinople, joins me in kind wishes.

Very sincerely yours,

(Rev.) LUCIUS O. LEE.

Rev. Mr. Lee and family were present at the Turkish massacre at Marash, November 19 and 20, 1895, and also at Constantinople in August following.

POPLAR, O., June 10, 1896.

I am proud to know that an ancestral record has been kept, and would like to be at the re-union but cannot.

(Miss) ABBIE OGDEN.

HARBORNE, Eng., July 3, 1896.

Would gladly be present, if able, but doubtful if I can arrange it.
A happy gathering is the wish of Yours truly,

MARSHALLTOWN, Ia., July 18, 1898.

I am sorry to say that it will be impossible to be present at the Lee re-union, but I know it will be an enjoyable time.

JOHN P. WOODBURY.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., June 13, 1896.

I am greatly interested in the re-union, and if business should take me east of the Rocky Mountains, I will surely attend.

H. O. COLLINS.

Descendant of Mary Lee Upson.

PITTSFIELD, Mass., May 25, 1896.

My plans for the summer have been already arranged and it seems impracticable to change them. Be assured I shall be with you in Spirit.

WYCK, Iowa, July 1, 1896.

Nothing would please me more than to be present, but distance, ill-health and home cares will prevent.

(Rev.) SAMUEL W. LEE.

LONDON, Ont., July 9, 1896.

My health will not permit. Be assured of my hearty sympathy.

(Mrs.) SARAH ROOTS.

STUART, Florida, July 14, 1896.

It would afford me great pleasure to attend the re-union, but the probabilities are against me. A happy greeting to all who assemble.

O. O. POPPLETON.

ORANGE, Cal., June 18, 1896.

It would be pleasant to attend the re-union, but the distance will prevent. A joyful time to all is the wish of (MRS) FLORENCE S. WELLS.

LEWIS, Essex Co., N. Y., July 11, 1896

I am heartily in sympathy with the idea of a re-union, and it would afford me the greatest pleasure of my life to attend and visit the home of my grandfather, but I fear it will be impossible. A happy time to all.

(MISS) SYLVIA S. LEE.

Granddaughter of Deacon Seth Lee.

PORTERVILLE, Cal., June 10, 1896.

It will be very gratifying to hundreds of our kindred for many years. The gathering of '84 was an enjoyable occasion, but infirmities and distance will not permit me to enjoy another such time.

(MRS.) HIRAM BAILEY.

TACOMA, Wash., July 5, 1896.

It would be the enjoyable occasion of my life to attend the re-union. but the distance is too great. I can never forget my visit to the grave of John Lee, April last, escorted by yourself and Leonard Lee. Many thanks for the courtesy.

HERBERT M. LEE.

ALBANY, Texas, June 29, 1896.

Would be happy to attend, but health will not permit. A happy time to all.

LEWIS H. LEE.

MARTINEZ, Cal., June 7, 1896.

Shall be happy to attend if possible, but the distance is great. A happy re-union to all.

(Rev.) HAMILTON LEE.

CHICAGO, Ill., June 29, 1896.

Would be very happy to meet you all again, but,—very busy—dollars few—the miles are many and very long. A jolly time to the crowds.

CHARLES E. LEE.

SEATON, Ill., July 1, 1896.

I would be pleased to be present but fear it will be impossible. May it be a happy re-union.

(Mrs.) FANNIE LEE CABERN.

McMINNVILLE, Ore., June 4, 1896.

It would afford me the greatest pleasure, but distance forbids.

(Mrs.) JULIA JOHNSON

PORT ROYAL, Ont., June 10, 1896.

I am 84 years old, and smart as can be expected at this age, but it will be impracticable to attempt the journey. A happy success is the wish of

Yours truly,

(Mrs.) ADELIA BEAUPRE.

SPRINGFIELD, Ont., June 23, 1896.

I will encourage others to attend, but infirmities will prevent my own attendance.

SIMEON L. BRYNING.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., July 10, 1896.

It would give me the greatest pleasure of my life to be with you but it will be impossible.

WILLIAM P. LEE.

I remember with pleasure the gathering of 1884, but the burden of 86 years rests upon me and the journey is too much to attempt, but God bless the re-union.

WILLIAM LEE.

Marysville, O.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., July 17, 1896.

I regret that I cannot attend the Lee re-union on the 12th and 13th of August, for I would dearly love to visit the old family home. I am a Canadian girl visiting friends in this city, and I would like to know more of our American cousins, for I am deeply interested in family history.

Very sincerely,

(Miss) PHEBE LEE.

OSHKOSH, Wis., July 20, 1896.

It would afford me great pleasure to attend the Lee family re-union, but my health will not permit. Be assured, however, that I shall be with you in spirit.

We append a partial list of those who expressed their interest in the re-union by letter, response to circulars or otherwise, although unable to attend. It includes none of those who were present. The list also shows how widely scattered are our kindred.

Included in this list are the names of several who had expressed their intention to be present, but were unexpectedly detained from various causes, almost at the last day. Among these may be named Judge William G. Sterling and party, and Miss Mary A. Allen and friends, of Northampton, Mass.; R. L. B. Hart and Miss Mary L. Hart of Barkhamsted; Frederick J. Lee and wife, Howell, Mich.; J. W. N. Lee and family, Duplex, Tenn.; William C. Lee and others, of Louisville, Ky.; Mrs. H. C. Davidsou, Montgomery, Ala.; Prof. Thomas G. Lee, Minneapolis, Minn., and others, from whom letters were afterwards received.

CONCLUSION.

In concluding, we would say to our friends, that it is very desirable to keep alive the Lee Association and to look forward to a future re-union. The year 1900 has been suggested, that we might round out the century by such an event. But the future is uncertain. If the suggestion is carried out, it is evident that the burdens of management must be borne by younger shoulders.

A large attendance cannot be expected from distant States, but it is significant to note the feeling of kinship which is expressed, and which needs only to be cultivated by personal acquaintance to ripen into a general interest. Learn more of your ancestors, of their doings, and of their loyalty to their country, and you will feel more interested in their posterity. A deeper interest is manifested every time they are brought together.

Our kindred are earnestly requested to correspond freely with the secretary or assistant, and to communicate any changes, births, marriages, or deaths, with dates, or any other events of interest, that records may be kept with a view to future publication. Inquiries will also be cheerfully answered.

It will be borne in mind that there are still supposed to be the descendants of many families who have not yet been discovered. Among them may be named descendants of Jared Lee, second, son of Amos of the Thomas branch, and a large number of the David branch.

To those who are not familiar with the proceedings of the gathering of 1884, and the family information published soon after, we would state that the edition of the work is nearly exhausted. A few copies only may be had by application to the secretary.

Many letters of regret were received, expressing much interest in the re-union and heartily wishing it a success, although the writers were unable to be present from various causes. Some from old age, others from ill health, business matters, expense, etc.
